90th YEAR, No. 87 ★★ VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1973 15 CENTS DAILY, 20 CENTS SATURDAY

P.O. HAS YOUR NUMBER

The post office's new postal code mail system goes into effect in Victoria and other parts of British Columbia next Tuesday.

Every householder, business owner, box owner or persons with a regular mailing address will be sent a written notice telling them what their code will be.

Each code goes letter-number-letter, number-letter-number.

The first letter stands for a broad area (in this case, V for all of British Columbia). The first number represents one of 10 sub-areas. The second letter is for one of the 20 parts into which each sub-area is divided.

So it continues, until the last character — a number comes right down to one part of a mailman's route. It could possibly be just an apartment block that receives 50 or more letters a day.

Each piece of mail arriving in Victoria (or any postal station in B.C.) which bears the postal code with the address will pass through a machine whose operator transcribes the code into a small bar-like pattern.

Almost invisible to the naked eye, the pattern is "read" in ultra-violet light in the computerized machines which automatically sort the mail all the way until the moment it's popped into a mailman's bag.

In a year or so, however, even more sophisticated equipment is expected to be in operation. Optical character-reading equipment is to be added to the sorting machines.

B.C. Shoppers 'Victimized'

Times News Services

B.C. consumers are being victimized, especially in urban areas, by the major food retailing chains, the chairman of the federal Food Prices Review Board said Tuesday.

"Frankly, I'm angry," Beryl Plumptre told a news conference in Vancouver.

"Angry because some food retailers, and in a few cases even the processor, appear to be intentionally seeking to confuse the consumer through their merchandising practices."

Mrs. Plumptre said a complete report on a cross-Canada survey by 80 food price investigators will be issued next week and said it "will name names."

She said major food retailers had promised the review board they would cooperate in discouraging double-pricing and misleading advertising. But she said preliminary results of a three-month investigation across Canada show they have not kept their promises.

"Double pricing in B.C. is rampant," she said, adding that no longer is it simply double pricing but "multi-pricing." She held up a package of Kellogg's corn flakes which had four prices stamped on it and said although customers were to be charged the lowest price, investigators found otherwise.

"Last week in B.C. one of our researchers went through two different cashiers with double-ticketed items and was charged the higher price in each case," she said. She added the store had assured customers they would pay the lower price if two were marked on a product.

Mrs. Plumptre, also said "aisle-end rip-offs" were found frequently in B.C. as were "specials" which turned out to have higher prices rather than lower prices.

She also attacked "binning" — putting goods in bins marked "special" or "today only". She said often if prices were less than normal, so was the amount of the product.

She held up two jars of Heinz baby spinach, both the same price but one was 4½ ounces while the other was 4¾ ounces. She called the sizing "very misleading."

"Careful shopping can help counteract problems like these," she said, "but the board believes the consumer should not be required perpetually to be on his guard."

She said she had found the situation in British Columbia disappointing. "It may be that the over-all national picture may indicate a better general performance by processors and retail outlets," she said. "In Newfoundland, for example, the chains appear to have been more straight forward in their selling."

She said particularly in B.C.'s urban areas, "the consumer continues to be considered fair game."

Mrs. Plumptre told the news conference the review board "will not hesitate to take up the prime minister on his offer to recommend effective legislative measures."

LONDON — Thirty thousand people wrote in for the 3,000 available tickets to hear opera singer Maria Callas Saturday — her first performance in eight years.

Scalpers have had a field day, selling tickets for up to $275 each.

But today, Miss Callas, 49, cancelled her appearance.

A telegram from the prima donna said her eye doctor has ordered her to rest for at least six weeks.

Alberta Drug Roundup

CALGARY (CP) — RCMP and police forces in Alberta began a province-wide round-up of suspected narcotics traffickers at 3 p.m. Tuesday, it was announced today.

Police officials told a press conference that 117 warrants have been issued for the arrests of suspects in Edmonton, Calgary, Red Deer, Lethbridge, Banff, Hinton, Jasper, Fort Macleod, Fort McMurray, Canmore and Grande Prairie.

Insp. Jack Roy of the RCMP Calgary subdivision said raids were conducted simultaneously throughout Alberta as six undercover agents blew their covers.

The agents — three RCMP, two Edmonton city police and one Calgary city police officer — worked for a year to make more than 150 buys across the province.

The suspects being sought included 45 in Edmonton and 35 in Calgary. As of 9 a.m. (MDT), today, 18 of the 35 suspects were arrested in Calgary, Insp. Roy said.

He said a total of 189 charges will be laid against the 117 suspects, mostly for trafficking in heroin.

"There has been a fantastic increase in heroin use in Alberta over the last two years," said Sgt. Dutch Ryba of the RCMP Calgary drug squad.

The officials said the number of heroin users in Edmonton and Calgary has grown to 3,000 from 100 in five years.

Displaced Workers Top Issue

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Special consideration must be given to workers dislocated or laid off by new technology, Labor Minister Bill King told the legislature Tuesday.

In one of the most significant parts of a half-hour throne speech address, he appeared to indicate new labor legislation will offer job security in the area of technological change, where he said more concern was manifested "than any others" in labor-management conferences earlier this year.

King carefully avoided revealing details of the legislation, which by parliamentary custom must come first in the form of a bill or bills to the house.

He said great advances in science and technology bring with them special problems affecting employers and workers.

"While it is difficult to fully assess the dimensions of this problem, it cannot be denied that some special consideration must be give to those workers who are dislocated or laid off by new technology," he said.

King said a "substantial portion" of the fall session will be devoted to labor legislation to be introduced "very shortly."

Some people think legislative change alone is the answer to problems, he said, but "this government recognizes that healthy social relationships cannot be legislated. There must be a desire and a motivation to make new laws workable and acceptable."

He referred to the three-man advisory committee appointed earlier this year, which received more than 70 written briefs and convened three conferences of labor and management representatives.

But, he said, "quite frankly I do not take the position new legislation will adequately solve all of these problems.

Obviously it will be necessary to continually scrutinize and monitor the effect of new legislation over a period of time."

Disputes in essential services were also mentioned, and King appeared to be suggesting some new mechanism for dealing with them, possibly through encouragement of voluntary (as opposed to compulsory) arbitration.

"The dilemma is to seek an alternative to the strike when it seriously threatens or imperils the public health and welfare without denying to workers the full rights of collective bargaining.

"The problem must be faced and labor and management must be willing to each

Gun-holding Koreny wins three-day reprieve

IROQUOIS HUSTLE NON-INDIANS OUT

MONTREAL (CP) — The militant Warrior Society began evicting non-Indian families from the Caughnawaga Iroquois Reserve Tuesday after their deadline for voluntary eviction had passed.

The warriors issued a warning two weeks ago to all completely non-Indian families telling them to get out by Sept. 18.

Members of the society, surrounded by a large crowd and escorted by reserve police, went from house to house telling non-Indians to leave the reserve.

When they came to evict James Koreny the former Hungarian freedom fighter appeared at his door brandishing a shotgun.

No shots were fired, and after a brief meeting with society representatives, Koreny was allowed to remain on the reserve for three more days.

'Muscle' In Ottawa

CALGARY (CP) — If the battle between the federal and Alberta governments over the 40-cent-a-barrel oil export tax came to a head, Ottawa would have the constitutional muscle to win, federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday.

Macdonald was commenting on the hard stand taken against the recently-announced tax by Premier Peter Lougheed in a television broadcast Tuesday night.

Lougheed lashed out at Ottawa's planned export tax on oil and then pleaded with the federal government to pave the way for an $800 million development in Alberta's Athabasca oil sands.

The premier said the province would fight Ottawa's discriminatory tax move.

He then announced Syncrude Canada Ltd. will proceed with a huge oil sands extraction plant provided the federal government cooperates by not imposing price regulations on synthetic crude oil.

However, Macdonald said the federal government has not yet decided to exempt synthetic crude from the export tax or price regulation. His comments were made before Lougheed's televised speech.

Describing the plan to levy the export tax as a federal "power play to control Alberta's oil and gas resources," Lougheed said it was "clearly detrimental" to Alberta and would result in the province becoming another "have-not" area of Canada.

"We've been able to avoid a sales tax in this province — the only province without a sales tax — because of the revenues from oil and gas."

The proposed federal tax means money will be diverted from Alberta and siphoned off to be spent essentially in other parts of Canada, he said.

Construction of the immense plant, using 3,000 workers near Fort McMurray in northeastern Alberta 225 miles from Edmondon, depends on federal co-operation because the four-company consortium that owns Syncrude insists that synthetic crude be exempt from price regulation, the premier said.

At the same time the province will be seeking Ottawa's approval of a new approach to calculating royalties. The province is to take 50 per cent of Syncrude's profits compared with present conven-

Cigarettes Raise Price On Life

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's newest insurance company, MONY Life is offering a premium discount of about six per cent to potential policyholders over 20 who attest they haven't smoked a cigarette within a year.

Users of tobacco in other forms — such as cigars and pipes — also qualify for the reduced premium. The reduction is available only on ordinary or whole life policies.

"This is not a moral judgment about smoking," said MONY President Jack Birkenshaw. "It is a well-considered business decision."

"Smoking is clearly a health hazard, and an important factor in some types of cancer, cardiovascular ailments and tuberculosis. Our mortality tables bear out the statistics of government and health organizations. They show that, on average, a non-smoker can expect to live somthing like three years longer than a person who smokes."

Heath's Remarks Trigger Storm

LONDON (Reuter) — Prime Minister Edward Heath has touched off a political storm in Britain and Ireland by his warning Tuesday that Northern Ireland might have to be fully integrated with the rest of Britain.

Heath added later that his government hopes instead for a system that will allow Northern Ireland to manage its own affairs, with integration only a last resort.

Heath's remarks provoked an immediate response from the violent Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army. It said the war in Northern Ireland will be brought right to the doorstep of the English people if such a policy is proceeded with.

The IRA warned it would lay Britain in ruins if integration was attempted.

"If Mr. Heath wishes to have the war right on the doorsteps of the English people then he should proceed as quickly as possible with his policy of integration," the IRA said.

"He can be assured of ruin, devastation and suffering in his own land," the statement said.

It was the second time within a week that the IRA had referred specifically to the possibility of extending its campaign of violence to Britain itself. In a statement on Sept. 13 the IRA warned that British civilians might be killed if British troops were not withdrawn from Northern Ireland.

There was an outcry, too, from Britain's opposition Labor party. It urged Heath to clarify his statement to a television interviewer.

Such remarks, they said, might threaten the bipartisan policy on Northern Ireland built up in recent years by both Conservative and Labor administrations.

Heath made the remark when dealing with Britain's possible reaction if politicians in Ulster do not form an executive to run their new assembly by next March, when their mandate expires.

CURB GAS EXPORTS, B.C. TELLS OTTAWA

British Columbia has asked the federal government to force Westcoast Transmission to cut back its exports of natural gas rather than curtail supplies to domestic customers.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald told the legislature Tuesday he made such a request to Ottawa by telegram.

In Ottawa today the government asked the National Energy Board to make an immediate assessment of possible natural gas shortages.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald told reporters, after the matter was raised in the Commons, that a decision will be made on action to prevent shortage when all factors in the situation become clear.

B.C.'s Alex Macdonald said the National Energy Board has been "remiss" in not making Westcoast establish a contingency reserve supply of natural gas to cover such emergencies as the shortfall in pro cthewnihioud r in production which it is now experiencing.

The attorney-general also said the NEB should not have approved Westcoast's application to ship an extra 70 million cubic feet of gas per day, which if did less than a year ago, without first ensuring that domestic needs of British Columbians were looked after.

Among the industrial operations which are bound to be affected by the natural gas shortage, Macdonald mentioned Cominco, which is supplied by Inland Natural Gas, one of Westcoast's domestic customers, and Canadian Cellulose, the government-owned forest company supplied by Pacific Northern Gas.

Agnew Shaft From Top?

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The White House apparently was behind the report that Vice-President Spiro Agnew had discussed resigning, according to a source close to Agnew. He said the vice-president will "fight" rather than step down.

The source, who declined to speak for attribution, said there were "indications that it's coming from people over at the White House." He referred to a Washington Post report Tuesday morning quoting an unnamed "senior Republican" as being "99½ per cent certain" Agnew would resign.

"It just isn't true," the Agnew associate said. "He's talked to a number of senators and congressmen about what he ought to do, and the unanimous feeling is to fight, and that's what he intends to do. There's never been any question in my mind of his resolve to fight this thing."

Agnew's press secretary, Marsh Thomson, said Tuesday that the vice-president may have discussed resigning with others while in "a dark mood," but does not intend to do so.

One congressman who has been a strong supporter said he also was suspicious that Agnew was being "sandbagged" by some persons at the White House.

"Let me tell you something," said Rep. William Scherle (Rep.—Iowa). "As far as I'm concerned, the White House is not cleaned out. Haldeman and Ehlichman are gone ... and they were no friends of the vice-president — but their ghosts still haunt the place."

Federal prosecutors in Baltimore plan to begin presenting evidence against Agnew to a grand jury either next week or the following week, reliable sources said Tuesday.

The federal grand jury is scheduled to meet Thursday when it may return more indictments involving officials of the Baltimore County government, which Anew headed from 1962 to 1966 before becoming governor of Maryland.

Army Holds Chile Quiet

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Soldiers in battle gear patrolled downtown Santiago overnight Tuesday and today, arresting 53 persons and confiscating 60 weapons in their effort to crush the final opposition to the military coup which took power eight days ago, officials said.

The troops occasionally clashed with armed leftist workers loyal to former president Salvador Allende who died in the bloody coup on Sept. 11.

Earlier, the junta said documents found in the interior ministry indicated a plot to assassinate the leaders of Chile's armed forces. So far, none of the documents have been made public.

Sex Appeal Still Basis for Hiring

Men would be outraged if they were hired on the basis of sex appeal but men subject women to that type of insult every day, provincial Human Rights director Kathleen Ruff said in Victoria today.

She told a luncheon meeting of Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce at The Empress that many job openings for women specify the applicant must be physically attractive.

She said despite some progress made by women in recent years society still tends to think of women primarily as sex objects.

Advertisements aimed at 10-year-old girls invite them to attend charm schools where they can learn grooming, poise and skin care.

She took the chamber to task for a recent seminar on women it sponsored, offering tips on beauty care, telephone manners and how to please your boss.

Meanwhile, the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce refused to let women join the local branch but the association continues to sponsor the Miss Victoria beauty contest.

The Jaycees are perpetuating the concept that physical beauty is the main requirement for women to succeed, she said.

"I think we have a double standard in our society whereby it is pretended that women have a suitability to perform routine, dull, dead-end, poor-paying jobs," Ruff said.

"The reaction of bank managers in Vancouver was most interesting when a male applied for a job as teller.

"Said one manager: 'This is a dull, routine job and therefore only suitable for women.

"Another stated he would not think much of any man who applied for such a job.

"In other words, this job is too lowly for any male to perform and fit employment only for women."

She said there was no mental or physical efficiency rendering men incapable of carrying out jobs as telephone workers, bank tellers or typists — or dish washers and floor moppers.

"A man is not incapable of making a cup of coffee and serving it to a woman, yet somehow it almost always happens the other way around in almost all the homes and offices of this nation.

"The reason is simply that all work that is judged dull, menial, low-status work has been relegated and classified as women's work."

She said opposition to equal status for women is often cloaked in humor or amused tolerance.

While it is not considered polite to use racial words like Nigger it was still common to hear women publicly referred to in contemptuous terms like chick or broad.

It is taking a long time for women to gain equality because the campaign is not treated as seriously as the drive by minority groups for equal rights.

She said the chamber could play a positive role by offering a scholarship to assist women on welfare to get good jobs and break the poverty cycle.

Over 62 per cent of welfare recipients are women, more than half of whom have children under 21, she said.

She said members of the chamber should also make known their willingness to hire members of minority groups.

Ruff is director of the provincial human rights department and helps to enforce the provincial Human Rights Act which bars discrimination on the basis of race, religion, sex, color, nationality, ancestry or place of origin.

CHURCH-SPONSORED SEX FILMS SEIZED

LONDON (AP) — Sex education pictures sent to Britain by an American church group were held by customs authorities Tuesday on grounds they are indecent.

The strips of still photographs were part of a consignment of books, movie films and records ordered by BBC television for a sex education program. The materials were prepared by the Unitarian Church in the United States, the BBC said.

"We like to keep abreast of current trends in sex education throughout the world," a spokesman explained.

Customs officials said the films were impounded under a law passed in 1876.

"This prohibits the import of indecent books, pictures and publications. We considered the two 12-foot strips were unsuitable for importation into this country."

The spokesman would not disclose what the offending pictures portray. The BBC said it does not know what is in them.

The BBC has 28 days to appeal the confiscation. So far it has not made up its mind what to do.

accept a measure of responsibility for the solution of public interest disputes," he said.

King noted that in the B.C. Railway dispute voluntary arbitration was accepted, which he said shows that in "some circumstances workers are willing to be bound by voluntary arbitration."

(The previous government dealt with public interest disputes through compulsory arbitration contained in the Mediation Commission Act, Bill 33. These features were deleted by the new government in its first legislative session one year ago.

In other areas, King said there have been valid complaints of workers being deprived of their rights to organize into unions "because of intimidation and unfair labor practices."

In this he appeared to indicate legislation containing a reverse onus of proof, similar to the Manitoba Labor Relations Act, where employers must prove they haven't committed unfair labor practices, rather than unions prove that they have.

He also said that sometimes the "right of collective bargaining has even been denied after employees have been certified by the Labor Relations Board because of the refusal of some employers to bargain in good faith."

(King said Monday the three-year-old Sandringham Private Hospital strike is a "classic example of certification being granted and then rendered ineffective by bad faith bargaining" by hospital management).

He said the right to certification is "really meaningless" if an employer fails to bargain in good faith — and execute an agreement with the employees.

He said there is a "need for a new design and a better approach than court injunctions and public outcry have provided" as methods of dealing with illegal strikes. He said there is an "inability of the law to respond to the source of these illegal 'wildcat' strikes in an effort to alleviate their cause."

King also said there is agreement among labor and management for a new approach in the administration and enforcement of labor legislation.

"While there is a great divergence of opinion as to the substance of law relating to strikes and picketing, there is a real conscience between labor and management on the need for a new structure to enforce the law on strikes and picketing."

Lougheed 'Ignored' Own Expert Advice

EDMONTON (CP) — By accepting only limited ownership by Albertans in the Syncrude Canada Ltd. development at the Athabaska oil sands, Premier Peter Lougheed ignored the recommendations of his own government, publisher and politician Mel Hurtig said today.

A report prepared for the government by civil servants from 20 different departments, boards and agencies recommended the province control and regulate development for the benefit of Albertans.

Hurtig, chairman of the Committee for an Independent Canada, released copies of the 80-page report which he described as a confidential Alberta government document.

The report said the province should control the rate of oil sands development in a manner "which will minimize the need to import foreign capital, labor and products."

"Foreign investment often makes it it difficult to control the resource development in the best interests of Canadians," the report said.

Hurtig said the report was "one of the best statements of principle ever produced in Canada about natural resource development."

It was a tragedy the Alberta government opted for another round of "foreign exploitation of Alberta resources."

tional royalties which average about 20 per cent of the gross production from oil fields. Royalties now are tax deductible.

In Toronto, Gulf Oil Canada Ltd., part of a consortium behind the Syncrude project said today its involvement is conditional on such synthetic oil being exempt from the proposed two-porice system and any export duty.

President Jerry McAfee said in a statement:

"We are taking at face value Energy Minister Donald Macdonald's assurances that oil from the . . . sands will be granted free access to international markets and prices to permit an adequate return on the huge investment involved.

Explaining Ottawa's position, Macdonald said once a province talked of moving a product across its borders, the matter became federal jurisdiction.

He said the Social Credit government, during its early years in power in Alberta, had taken actions that were found unconstitutional and added that he didn't think Lougheed would attempt a similar action.

The premier, in fact, had toned down considerably from his earlier statement on the matter, he said.

From the federal government's view point, the Canadian oil price must be separate from the United States price, at least for the foreseeable future, Macdonald said. This could be accomplished through an export tax or some other control mechanism.

Socred Charges 'Snow Job'

A bitter dispute over the drafting of the final report of the legislature's committee on health care delivery erupted today, with charges of "snow job" raised by opposition members of the committee and denied by the committee chairman.

Two members of the social welfare and education committee charge that three cabinet ministers, who did not attend a majority of the committee's hearings held across the province this summer, exerted undue influence on the final form of the committee's report. (See Page 41).

Scott Wallace (PC—Oak Bay) said Health Minster Dennis Cocke in particular was responsible for large sections of the committee's draft report being cut back and tailored to his own liking.

Bob McClelland (SC—Langley) said committee members never even saw the final report of the committee, which was tabled by chairman Rosemary Brown (NDP—Vancouver Burrard) in the legislature Tuesday afternoon.

McClelland said the committee was "rushed off its feet" in its final meetings recently "so that it does not look like a snow job."

The Socred MLA charged that the government already has legislation prepared for introduction which deals substantially with the subject matter studied by the committee.

"The travelling committee idea is a good one, but it has to be done honestly," McClelland said.

Wallace charged that the three cabinet ministers on the committee — Cocke, Education Minister Eileen Dailly and Human Resources Minister Norman Levi — did not attend any of the hearings the committee held in the province's interior this summer, with the slight exception of Levi, who he said attended two meetings in Kelowna.

But the same cabinet ministers "had a lot to say" at the committee's four in-camera meetings recently which were intended to finalize the committee report, Wallace said.

Committee chairman Brown, in an interview this morning, denied McClelland's charges and countered Wallace by saying that every member of the committee has an equal right to say what form the final report should take.

MLA Bennett Sworn In

Bill Bennett, the newly-elected Social Credit MLA for South Okanagan, took the oath of office this morning in a one-minute ceremony held in the clerk's office of the Legislature.

Eight beaming Socred members looked on as the 42-year-old son of W. A. C. Bennett was sworn in by clerk Ian Horne and his name formally added to the parliamentary role.

the weather

Cool cloudy weather has now settled in over all areas of southern and central British Columbia, leaving only the far northern part of the province in sunshine. The disturbance which spread the cloud and cooler air over the province Tuesday gave up to an inch of rain to the west coast of the Island but falls elsewhere were mostly light.

A new Pacific storm is now giving rain to the south coast and the rain is expected to spread to the north coast and the interior. Although the frontal system will move inland across the province tonight, it will leave a low pressure area behind off the west coast of Vancouver Island. As a result skies will remain cloudy throughout the province and showers will linger on in most areas.

ISSUE OF
GOVERNMENT OF CANADA BONDS
DATED OCTOBER 1, 1973

Bank of Canada is authorized by the Minister of Finance to receive subscriptions for a loan, to be issued for cash as follows:

5 year 7¼% bonds due October 1, 1978

Issue price: 100.00% yielding 7.75% for 5 years

Interest payable April 1 and October 1
Denominations: $1,000, $5,000, $25,000, $100,000 and $1,000,000

at the option of the holder into an equal par value of 7 year 2¼ month 8% bonds to be dated October 1, 1978 and due December 15, 1985, yielding about 7.87% for the full 12 year 2¼ month period commencing October 1, 1973.

Bank of Canada has agreed to acquire a minimum of $325 million of the new bonds.

Proceeds of the offering will be applied to the redemption of $475 million of Government of Canada 5% bonds maturing October 1, 1973.

The new 7¼% bonds due October 1, 1978 will be dated October 1, 1973 and will bear interest from that date. Principal and interest are payable in lawful money of Canada. Principal is payable at any Agency of Bank of Canada. Interest is payable at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank without charge. Definitive bonds will be available on October 1, 1973 and thereafter in two forms: bearer form with coupons attached and fully registered form with interest payable by cheque. Bonds of both forms will be in the same denominations and fully interchangeable as to denomination and/or form without charge (subject to Government transfer requirements where applicable).

To enable the Government of Canada to establish six months in advance the amount to be redeemed for cash on October 1, 1978 and thus plan any required refunding, the option permitting holders to exchange their 5 year 7¼% bonds due October 1, 1978 into an equal par value of 7 year 2¼ month 8% bonds due December 15, 1985 may be exercised only during the six month period commencing October 1, 1977 and ending March 31, 1978. On the 8% bonds due December 15, 1985, 2¼ months' interest will be payable on December 15, 1978 and thereafter interest will be payable on June 15 and December 15.

The new bonds are authorized pursuant to an Act of the Parliament of Canada and both principal and interest are a charge on the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada.

Applications for the new bonds may be made, subject to allotment, through any investment dealer eligible to act as a primary distributor or through any bank in Canada.

Rabid Bat Victim Traced

LONDON (UPI) — A 19-year-old Canadian student read in a newspaper today htat he might have rabies and turned himself in to a hospital in Manchester for treatment, police said.

Police had mounted a major nation-wide hunt for Robert Woodfine of Hamilton, Ont., after the Canadian High Commission told them Tuesday that he had been bitten by a rabid bat shortly before leaving for a tour of Britain.

A police spokesman said there was sufficient time to cure the disease with shots before it completed its incubation period and became incurable.

They said the bat bit Woodfine five days ago, but that it was not discovered to be rabid until after he had left Canada.

B.C. Teachers Seek 13-15% Pay Increase

The president of the B.C. Teachers Federation announced Tuesday teachers will be seeking 13 to 15 per cent salary increases for 1974 and a local trustee spokesman responded today: "Be reasonable."

Proposed increases were detailed by Jim MacFarlan, federation president, as negotiations between local teacher associations and the province's 74 school boards got under way today.

Where contracts have not been bargained by Nov. 14, the Public Schools Act provides for arbitration and arbitration awards must be made by the year end.

MacFarlan told teachers in Victoria the increases are needed to meet the "astronomical rise in the cost of living" and the federation does not expect any major problems in bargaining this year because of the major increases granted other groups such as ferry workers.

"The rate of increase for teachers' salaries has always followed the trend set by other workers."

Pat Walsh, president of the B.C. School Trustees' Association, said most school boards will fight the sort of increase MacFarlan says is the target.

"If this is what the teachers are looking for, you can expect upwards of 65 to 70 school boards fighting the teachers in justice to their publics."

In Victoria, Peter Bunn, school board chairman and chairman of the board's agreements committee, said today that 13 to 15 per cent is "far too high" and would not be accepted by the public.

The board is not naive and is aware of the "incredible" rise in the cost of living but he said he hopes teachers "don't want to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs."

This year the board is not hiring an outside negotiator as it has in the past but will use two of its staff for "in-house" bargaining, said Bunn.

If trustees can talk reasonably, with Greater Victoria's 1,400 teachers about the local situation here and now he suggested a reasonable increase can be negotiated.

"But 13 to 15 per cent is just nonsense."

Teachers are relatively well-paid and by-and-large deserve to be, he said. A teacher locally with a master's degree and 14 years' experience gets more than $16,000 for 196 workdays a year.

McFarlan said the federation holds the position teachers are entitled to the kind of increase going to other major employee groups in their community.

"The evidence is overwhelming for a substantial increase in teachers salaries," he said. "We would like to see salaries settled in six weks. In the long run the school boards will have to pay the going rates."

He said teachers would also like to negotiate working and learning conditions.

Because of this salaries in some districts are lower than in others. For example, salaries in Victoria are lower than in Vancouver.

Also in terms of the length of time needed to reach maximum salary a Victoria teacher needs 14 years to reach the maximum of $17,000 compared to 10 to 12 years in other districts.

Bob Mitchell, president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, said Victoria rates are lower because trustees have succeeded in convincing arbitration boards the board can't afford to pay Vancouver rates because of the large number of Victoria residents on fixed incomes.

Health Care Stressed

Programs of preventive medicine and physical fitness will be undertaken by the B.C. Medical Services Commission in legislation introduced in the house Tuesday.

Amendments to An Act Respecting Medical Services was introduced by Health Minister Dennis Cocke and will change the name to the Medical Services Act.

"The main effect of the bill," Cocke said outside the house, "is it gives us the right to put on programs in preventive health work."

Programs will include "studying, researching, diagnosing, counselling, or providing other services for the encouragement of physical fitness and the prevention of illness or physical disability."

Funds will also be available for other persons establishing similar programs and for distribution of information concerning physical fitness and preventative health care.

The first program will be a physical fitness conference in November, said Cocke.

The act includes an amendment specifying that the commission itself can directly operate and administer the medical insurance plan.

The section will allow for the incorporation of the three insurance carriers (B.C., MSC, MSA and CU and C) under the direct responsibility of the commission, making it the sole carrier.

Also included in the bill is an amendment which will prohibit any action being taken against medical committees or individuals giving advice to the commission.

Looking Ahead—and Sideways

Proposals for a federal government venture into a new environmental protective system should arouse wide support throughout the country. Mr. Jack Davis, in whose department the concept arises, merits the approval of the government in transforming the idea into a practical program.

The new procedure would apply to large-scale federal building projects, or those in which federal financing was involved, where there would be extensive changes to or effects on the environment. A case in point — which also demonstrates the urgent need for such a federal procedure — is the vast James Bay hydro project in Quebec which will affect a large territory.

The same sort of conditions should also be applied provincially, so that such a project as Mr. Bennett's hydro program on the Peace River would have been thoroughly studied from an environmental standpoint as well as engineering and financial, and so have avoided the drought effects which were caused in nesting areas in Alberta.

The plan calls for a preliminary study by the federal government to lay out the basic considerations, then a more detailed examination to identify alternative plans or methods which might be needed to circumvent problems found by the first study. Only after this stage would the project be approved, and a continuing supervision would be conducted during construction to ensure that any new threats to the environment would be avoided or kept to a minimum.

Finally, upon completion of the project, an assessment would be made to determine how well the safeguards had worked, what mistakes had been made, and how future situations might be successfully met. After the initial examinations, private promoters would meet the costs of further studies.

It seems clear that this sort of approach to larger undertakings that will affect the world around them — or perhaps far afield — is already overdue. We have seen forested lakes drowned under dammed-up water, rivers dangerously reduced in flow, valleys flooded without adequate compensating advantages, and many other demonstrations of the fact that man cannot change nature at one point without repercussions on others.

The idea of having the studies made before permission is given to go ahead — so that costly investment cannot be made an argument for proceeding regardless of the environmental effect — is an excellent one. We have long passed the frontier conditions which permitted almost any treatment of nature. The vast size of present-day projects, rendered possible by modern equipment, methods and managerial expertise, makes obvious the need for close appraisal and care before, during and after such constructions.

The adverse effects on the environment which are caused by many public or private building programs have normally not been included in the costs of construction or operation. A river, for instance, has a value — perhaps a very high one — and loss of this value through pollution should properly be noted in the cost accounting for the project. This would be cost accounting on a regional or national basis, rather than merely on a basis of the immediate plant or process involved. There is little gain in making a profit out of activity at Point A, if valuable Points B, C, and D are depreciated or destroyed in the process.

Under the new federal proposal, at least we would know exactly what we were doing to the environment when we planned large undertakings — and perhaps be moved to alter or abandon the plan if the wider view showed it to be counter-productive.

"... I can't help thinking something terribly fine and decent will come of all this ..."

Tantalizing Opportunity to Vanish

At least some of the provincial Tories appear to be nibbling at the possibility of a Socred-Conservative fusion. Conservative Association President Peter Hyndman says there are lots of good reasons for such an alliance. And after Tory Leader Derrill Warren's defeat in the South Okanagan byelection it is understandable that the Conservatives might take a more pragmatic look at the B.C. political scene.

But there are also good reasons against such a political alliance. In the recent Manitoba election Tories and Liberals chose a coalition candidate in 18 ridings, yet the New Democratic party rode roughshod over the combined opposition.

Looking even further back, it was a B.C. Liberal-Conservative coalition that gave way to more than 20 years of Social Credit government in this province.

Despite what Mr. Hyndman describes as a "tantalizing opportunity" for his party, many Conservative supporters would not be enamored of the idea, and might even desert the party colors — a fact which Liberal Leader David Anderson is well aware of as he continually rejects any political fusion with other parties. And finally, the Conservatives, with only two sitting members, could find themselves swallowed up by the Social Crediters.

If the Conservatives ride with the Social Credit party they will never develop the muscles for the long climb to power which is the ultimate goal of any political party.

MAURICE WESTERN

A Few New Angles on Money

OTTAWA — On a casual reading the emergency debate on inflation was a chaotic, incoherent, sprawling affair; political sound and fury signifying nothing.

In fact, the few good speeches were important and revealing. Plainly, there has been a partial shift in the Conservative attack, which now focuses much more on monetary policy. In addition, and for the first time, Parliament's attention has been directed forcefully to the long-term perils of the inflationary spiral. If what goes up comes down, what then?

There has been a semantic argument for some time about "tight money." In reality, this term is political short hand, a convenient description of something quite different. Whatever the confusion on the Opposition back benches, Jim Gillies, the Conservative financial critic, has a clear enough view of his target—an overabundance of expensive money. Even Mr. Gillies, however, keeps slipping into a short hand plainly unsuited to his own argument.

"A major reason for the inflation facing this nation at the present time may be found in our monetary policy. The rate of increase in the money supply in this country between 1970 and 1973 has been roughly in the neighborhood of 50 per cent, whereas the real increase in our gross national product over the same period of time is probably somewhere between 9 and 11 per cent. Now, Mr. Speaker, to increase the supply by that dimension will cause its value to go down. Of course the purchasing power of the Canadian dollar has gone down. It is because we have practised no restraint whatever on the money supply.

Expensive Money

"The Minister of Finance, now, I grant, has recognized this, but he is afraid to lower the boom on it. He says instead, "We'll put interest rates up, but we won't reduce the money supply." The only thing that happens in such a situation is that you get expensive money. What we find, therefore, in the Canadian economy today is not only the beginning of a tight money policy, but an expensive money policy."

A persuasive analysis. The alarm is being sounded, however, when the horse is out of the stable and out of sight. The Conservatives, until now, have seemed much more concerned about a too restrictive than an overly expansionist Bank of Canada policy.

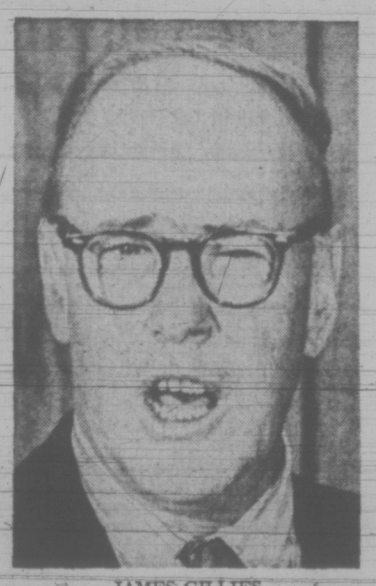
Mr. Turner now has doubts of his own on this subject. "Indeed," he said at one point "the money supply may well be expanding too rapidly."

But the minister is unshaken in his view that the problem is one of excessive world demand. In contrast, Mr. Gillies maintains that "the cost-push inflationary element in the economy has not gone away." Thus he considers it "blindness to the point of tragedy not to support a monetary, fiscal and exchange rate policy with an incomes policy."

Food, obviously is the best Liberal exhibit supporting the demand case. But it is a fact, as noted by Ed Broadbent of the NDP, that shelter is a heavier cost than food in the family budget. There is little doubt that many people are now incurring very heavy interest obligations on the basis not of present incomes but of inflationary expectations, including anticipated subsidies in the form, for example, of higher family allowances. This is not solely a problem of desperate young couples since mortgage rates are being constantly renegotiated and move in one direction—upwards.

Mr. Gillies is also critical of exchange rate policy; the acceptance, as he sees it, of a continental North American exchange rate.

His answer to the Bank of Canada's problem, the threat of an outflow of Canadian funds, is a short term interest equalization tax.



JAMES GILLIES
... clear enough view

Whatever its merits, the argument illuminates the utter disarray that now characterizes all the parties. For Donald Macdonald, the Minister of Energy, is attempting in the energy field, against fierce Conservative resistance, what Mr. Turner finds unthinkable in the monetary field. Mr. Macdonald is in head-on collision with Premier Lougheed because he is trying to separate the Canadian from the continental price structure.

Traditionally the party of controls, the NDP have become determined enemies of controls. Some are a bit useful about the switch, "Selective controls" is the compromise formula of the moment. It is of interest, though, that Andrew Brewin is for a nation-wide plan of rent regulation. For a variety of reasons rents are particularly difficult to control—especially, one would think in an otherwise unregulated economy.

Although he is not a member of the Conservative financial "troika", Alvin Hamilton delivered a speech considered by some Liberals the best of the debate. There was little partisanship in it. Mr. Hamilton does not hold Mr. Turner primarily to blame for the present mess; he thinks instead that a succession of ministers have been getting very bad advice from entrenched officialdom in the department of finance.

Mr. Hamilton also concentrated on cost-push inflation, not failing to note the contribution of enormously increased costs of government, which have quadrupled in a decade.

His concern was not solely with the present. In his view the great unmentionable of the present Parliament is the knife edge on which the whole world trading system is perilously poised.

"What is of more concern to me is that we have never been closer than we were in 1924-29 to a breakdown in world monetary affairs. The government knows this, the NDP know it and we certainly know it. The meeting in Nairobi, referred to by the hon. member for Don Valley (Mr. Gillies), will deal with this problem.

Trade Increasing

"In essence, it is that trade between nations is increasing at such a rate that we do not have the monetary media to handle it. Just as in 1924-29 gold and English sterling would not do it, so in 1973 neither American dollars nor SDR's are sufficient, yet we cannot get out of this government any indication from their philosophy or policy that this is the problem.

"If the world machinery of trade breaks down, what country will suffer the worst? We will."

On the issue of controls, Mr. Hamilton does not profess to be very happy. He put it this way:

"It is not any accident that the Conservative party, surely the last party that would ever go for controls, should come out and say we see no recourse but for a 90-day freeze, then one and a half or two years of controls to ensure stability so we can move forward with our long and short-range policies. Whenever the Conservative party accepts that position, great is the danger to the nation because in the long run, controls are inflationary. You have to get out of them as fast as you can. However, you cannot put in these policies unless there is that economic stability. That is what I am asking this House to consider."

As the Liberal convention showed, this view now extends to some in the governing party. In the face of rising inflation the government is finding it more and more difficult to hold its ground. There is even some danger in a too vigorous defence of its present policies for this would merely increase the difficulties of changing course if and when it becomes necessary to implement the government's own contingency plans.

TOM WICKER

Agnew's Agonized Accusation

NEW YORK — Vice-President Agnew appeared to be at his alliterative apogee the other night when he told a Republican audience that "we have reached the watershed of Watergate" (although that could be taken to mean that everything will be downhill from here on). When he got to his main theme, however, Agnew sounded like nothing so much as a nattering nabob of Nixonism.

Watergate, he said, was "the misguided actions of a few zealots" that had been blown into a storm by the "rain dance" of Sen. Ervin and his committee. The true story was that "embittered critics of this administration and (Republican) party who could not discredit us at the polls in November will make every effort — no matter how reckless — to discredit us now."

Well, there are some "embittered critics" of this administration, all right, but no one other than Agnew has suggested that the Republican party was to be blamed for Watergate; and in fact, no one other than Agnew has suggested that the Republican party was even involved in the Nixon re-election effort, since he neither used its name and machinery nor campaigned for its other candidates.

Undeniable Facts

Apart from all that, and bearing in mind Agnew's useful reminder that those accused have not necessarily been proven guilty of anything, it is undeniably fact that:

1. Seven former employees of the Nixon White House, the Nixon re-election committee, or both, have been convicted of crimes.

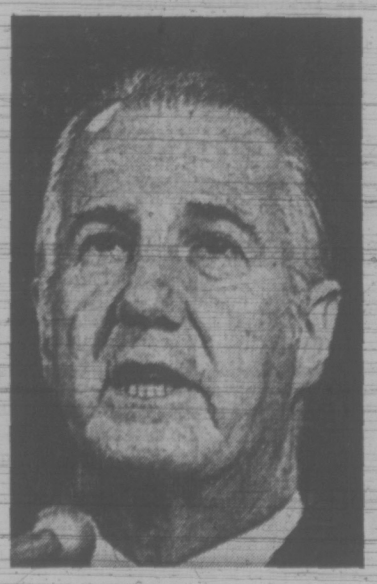
2. Four former Nixon White House staff members have been indicted as a result of the burglary of a psychiatrist's office in Los Angeles in 1971.

3. Although no other cabinet or former cabinet official has been indicted for criminal acts for nearly half a century, two former Nixon cabinet officers, who were also at one time the highest ranking officers of his re-election committee, went on trial this week for obstruction of justice, conspiracy and perjury.

4. These cases resulted not from rain-dancing in the Senate but from the deliberations of three separate grand juries in Los Angeles, Washington and New York.

5. At least a dozen officials of the Nixon administration have resigned or been fired in connection with the Watergate and related scandals, all within less than three months.

6. At least one major company has admitted making an illegal contribution to the Nixon re-election committee, under pressure from its fund-raisers and with an eye to a case pending before a government regulatory agency.



VICE-PRESIDENT AGNEW
... could use help

Without pre-judging any of these facts, as to the guilt or innocence of any person charged, this record alone is more than enough to refute the Agnevian assininity that "embittered critics" are merely doing through Watergate what they could not do at the polls. Who could even have conceived such a conspiracy, let alone carried it through?

In fact, Agnew — himself potentially in trouble because of an investigation that might reach still a fourth grand jury in still a fourth city — appeared mostly to be reaching for needed political support within his party and within the White House, in both of which he undoubtedly needs it.

The president and his lawyers may well have a good deal to say — if not the final say — as to whether the Agnew case goes to grand jury; if Agnew is indicted, the president could and probably would bring tremendous pressure on him to resign, so that Nixon could nominate a new man. Agnew had good reason, therefore, to parrot the White House line that its enemies are out to get Nixon.

Valiant Defence

He had good reason, too, to make a valiant defence of a Republican party that is not noticeably under attack. The same night he spoke, John B. Connally Jr., Sam Yorty's predecessor in party-switching, was appearing before an important California Republican assembly; the next day, that state's Gov. Ronald Reagan plugged his tricky new tax plan before the same group. Republicans being notably clannish, Connally apparently got an apostate's welcome, Reagan one for a hero. But each is a potential heir to Agnew's hitherto solid conservative backing, at a time when every indicator suggests that the investigation hanging over his head already has dimmed the vice-president's prospects for 1976.

Not that Nixon would necessarily choose one of those two for vice-president if Agnew had to resign. Unless the president has changed his mind in recent years, he would rule out Reagan because of the governor's know-nothingism in foreign affairs; and to give a recently recycled Democrat like Connally such an important political leg-up might well split the Republican party for 1976 and further alienate Congressional Democrats.

But with so many — the grand jury, Nixon, Connally, Reagan — breathing hotly on his neck, Agnew can hardly be blamed for setting up "embittered critics" as straw men he could knock over. That's just good Nixonism.

Tenants

I read with interest your article on the troubles that landlords in Victoria are having with tenants. I say "with interest" because I have been trying for the last eight days to find a home for myself, my wife and my three-year-old son. The article explained, to a certain extent, the attitude of some people who, as soon as they hear we have a youngster, automatically turn off, and say "sorry — no vacancy." I have actually had one woman say to me: "Yes, we have vacancies. But not for you."

I have never broken a window, or punched a hole in the wall, or allowed my apartment to be inhabited by any "ill-defined group" of youths or elderly people.

I do not want to challenge the facts set out in your article. But I would like to say that that kind of reporting does not do anything for landlord-tenant relationships. Perhaps landlords do need some more protection. But prospective tenants need more of a chance, too. I feel badly that we are judged by what other people have done. Young people, and young families, are not, in my opinion, being given any chance.

I think your readers should be made aware of the people—young and old—who have been responsible, trouble-free tenants. I am sure there are at least as many good examples in this city as there are bad ones.

I sincerely hope your article has not jeopardized our attempts in the future to find a home. — Michael Giles, Room 537, Canterbury Inn Motel, 310 Gorge Rd. East.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of September 19, 1913

With the enterprise which has always marked the municipal council of Oak Bay that body is now directing its attention to the necessity for the extension of the sewering and water system to the entire area within the municipal bounds. It will take some time to complete this work and it is not the intention of the council to proceed with it wholesale, but it will be necessary that the authority of the ratepayers be obtained, and to this end a bylaw is to be drafted. An estimate by Robert Fowler, the engineer of the town, places the cost of the work at about $150,000.

Chile: Standing By and Watching a Mugging

By JAMES EAYRS

Like a group of bystanders unconcernedly gazing at a mugging, the world's democracies stood to one side last week as one of their number was brutally beaten to its death.

Not that they could have helped the beleaguered Allende leadership when it came under attack. Much as the United States had done to lay it low, there was little anyone could do to prop it up.

Still, you could have hoped for more decent obsequies for the deceased than those in which the survivors permitted themselves to indulge.

Only the statement of the prime minister of the Netherlands comes close to an adquate contrition. "Allende's socialism was not my socialism", Dr. Joop den Uyl declared, "but that does not make it less respectable. It is bitter that this democrat has had to see his government smashed".

As for the comment out of Ottawa—Mitchell Sharp's primly correct expression of condolences to the Chilean people on the loss of their president, coupled with his assurance offered in unseemly haste that the regime of thugs who did him in could count on Canada's recognition provided they exercised their "sway"—it would better have been no comment at all, like Washington's.

It is difficult to find in history's annals any analogy that fits Allende's fate.

Could he be Chile's Alexander Kerensky—the Russian liberal democrat whose government was overthrown by Lenin from the left? Or Chile's Juan Negrin—the Spanish liberal democrat whose government was overthrown by Franco from the right?

Whatever turn events may take, neither analogy is perfect—if only because both Kerensky and Negrin lived on in exile into a peaceful old age. It is more apt to see Allende as Chile's Jan Masaryk—the Czechoslovakian liberal democrat who jumped (or was more likely pushed; suicides do not leap from second stories) to his death following the Stalinist coup in Prague a quarter century ago.

It is easy to understand, if not easy to forgive, the embarrassed silence around the North Atlantic chanceries. Western propaganda has for so long dinned the doctrine that all Marxist democrats are communist Trojan horses pledged to destroy the democracy foolish enough to entrust power to them that we had begun to believe it. And Allende had given it the lie.

Allende wore his Marxism proudly. (More proudly than had Marx himself whose most intriguing aphorism was to say "I am not a Marxist".) Yet his was no "People's Democracy" in its odious Eastern European sense, nor did he take Fidel Castro as a model. (Only a Sophocles or a Shakespeare could have devised that scene wherein Allende kills himself with the weapon given to him by Castro.) "We are not going to imitate either the Soviet Union or Cuba or China," he told an interviewer soon after his election. "We are going to look for our own way".

Allende's way for Chile would not be Lenin's way for Russia. "We shall not enter into the kingdom of socialism in white gloves on a polished floor", Lenin had sternly admonished his followers in 1917, but such an entrance for Allende, whose personality and background both exuded the discreet charm of the bourgeoisie, would have been entirely in character.

Still less would it be Stalin's way. That throwback to Tartar tyrants if confronted by striking lorry-drivers wrecking the economy would have machine-gunned all of them as "kulaks of the highways". Allende's revolution was to require neither shoot-ups nor lock-ups.

He thus defied the Cold War categories, set ideologues both right and left upon their ear. He would make democracy and socialism compatible. He would create a society at once egalitarian and free.

Nor was socialism a la Allende all that different from socialism a la Frei. Agrarian reform and nationalization alike were on the menu of his predecessor. But Allende proposed to speed up the service.

The experiment was by no means doomed to failure. With a little bit of luck (higher copper prices in 1971), a little better management (a rate of inflation near 300 per cent per annum can't be all the fault of fascist saboteurs), and a little help from those who ought to have been his friends, Allende might have made it.

United States reaction was critical—and in the end proved fatal. A Nixon administration seeking extrication in South-East Asia was in no mood for armed intervention in South America. But short of armed intervention the Nixon administration did all it could to hobble Allende's government, not help it. U.S. aid was cut. Lines of international credit were blocked. Markets were disrupted.

The economic hardship that this U.S. foreign economic policy was designed to, and duly wrought, hit the Chilean middle class with especial severity and shock — and hit it where it hurt. People who can't afford meat aren't badly rattled by meat becoming scarce, expensive, rationed — any more than people who can't afford the train between Santiago and Valparaiso care if the air fare between Santiago and Paris costs a million escuedos. But the people used to Argentinian steaks and European safaris were badly rattled and deeply cared.

Soon bread followed meat into short supply and soaring price, and Allende's own constituency followed the bourgeoisie into opposition and defiance. In August 1971 housewives poured into the streets, beating their pots and pans: they were dispersed by teargas. (An ironic confrontation: no one in Chile worked harder for women's rights than Senator Allende during his many years in Congress.) In congressional elections held earlier this year, twice as many women as men voted against his government.

President Allende's term had less time to run than President Nixon's, like Nixon he could not constitutionally succeed himself. But the military — egged on, it is being said, by its womenfolk — would not wait until September. It attacked his palace, perhaps attacked his person.

The attackers, to justify their deed, cite "the very grave economic, social and moral crisis which is destroying the country," and "the incapacity of the Goverment to adopt measures to stop the growth and development of chaos." The same charges are daily laid in Parliament by the leader of the Opposition, but Robert Stanfield so far has not seen fit to plot a coup d'etat.

The successful coup d'etat — so a connoisseur of coups has noted — requires above all a people outside the mainstream of politics: "The social and economic conditions of the target country must be such as to confine political participation to a small fraction of the population." Nothing could be further from reality in Chile. There a sophisticated electorate cares passionately for, partakes fully of, a rich political culture. To try in such circumstances to swing a coup d'etat is to bring on civil war. Many thousands may join the thousand who have already fallen in the fighting in the streets.

But the casualties are not to be confined to these and the slain president. Also among those killed in action is the Allende alternative to the totalitarian routes to social change.

Allende never underestimated the risks his route entailed. "In the framework of a bourgeois democracy," he would freely admit to all, "it is very difficult to carry forward a genuine revolutionary process." But only "very difficult." Henceforth others will consider it impossible. General Pyrrhus, legendary winner of battles and loser of causes, has won another Pyrrhic victory — not in Rome or Thessalonica, but in Santiago.

The Reforms Came Slowly

By LEWIS H. DIUGUID

(Diuguid is former Latin America correspondent and now assistant foreign editor of the Washington Post.)

Salvador Allende's political legacy may turn out to be the sense of participation that he gave the working class.

Just how much the workers actually participated is open to argument. But the hundreds of thousands who turned out when called were evidence enough of how real they felt their role was.

Yet by the measure of the planks in his own political platform, Allende's accomplishments were limited in his three years on the road to socialism.

Allende's greatest impact came through his concentration of economic power in the government. The most celebrated acquisition — of the American copper interests — came through legislation passed unanimously by the opposition-controlled congress.

No government that now evolves is likely to roll back that takeover, though it could promise to make at least a token compensation for the companies whose investments were taken.

Other government takeovers were by government purchase of shares, as in the case of the banks, by negotiated purchase of foreign holdings, as with several American companies, or by seizures to assure production. The latter route was used to take factories idled by labor disputes.

In the first year, the government encouraged unionists to strike companies that it wanted to seize. Later, the workers often paralyzed plants which the government would have preferred to leave in private hands.

Communists, Socialists Split

Many of the interests that called for the coup will seek reinstatement of their own properties. But Chileans in power before Allende were never enthusiastic about private ownership of industry as a principle — it was always a highly statist economy by western standards.

The Christian Democratic party, the main opposition, has for years been trying to evolve a concept of "communitarian" socialism, whereby communities of workers would own individual factories. The Christian Democrats can be expected to seek modifications in the state-held sector of the economy, but not to work for a rollback of the concentration.

Allende's other major impact came through rapid application of an agrarian reform law passed by the Christian Demoerats in 1967 under then president Euardo Frei.

The Allende team used the law to acquire virtually every farm larger than 200 acres. But Allende had neither the financing nor political accord within his coalition of parties to carry out a coherent redistribution and development of the land taken.

Allende dismissed agriculture minister Jacques Chonchol, who was the author and guide of the reform, when pressures within the six-party Popular Unity coalition made it expedient to make room in the cabinet for an appointee with more political clout.

The Communists and Socialists might have agreed that Chile's land tenure pattern should be built around state farms, but they could not come to terms on who should control the resultant bureaucracy.

Other plans in Allende's platform for profound change received little attention.

Figures indicate that at first he did achieve the proclaimed goal of redistributing income rapidly to the lower classes. But because this was done largely with printing press currency reflecting no real expansion of the economy, the redistribution began to vaporize in the super-heated inflation that followed.

Educational reform proved even more ephemeral. The issue was avoided at first, probably to avoid conflict with the Catholic church. The church's liberal leadership was an important source of support until Allende's education minister proposed to decree state control of curriculum in private — that is, catholic — schools.

The reform also called for re-orientation of education away from the classic liberal arts and toward more practical studies, to prepare technicians. Most educators agree such changes were needed. But the opposition by then was convinced that the unspoken goal was inculcation of Marxism — by means of rewritten school texts.

The net of the educational reform venture was alienation of many Catholic supporters — and no substantial change.

Even in the area of popular participation, it can be argued that charges under Allende were more psychological than real.

Allende's body removed by firemen

'I'll Live to See Them Return'

A main reason for failure to enact further substantial change was, of course, the opposition in congress. Allende did not command a majority, and the Chilean political system gave ample means to those opposing his measures to defeat them.

But other important reasons were incapacity of Allende officials and the unwillingness of the Popular Unity coalition factions to compromise among themselves or with the opposition.

Some of the changes wrought by the Allende government are too subtle for measurement, but real. A lawyer of and for Chile's first families predicted three months ago that Allende would soon fall.

But he added:

"It was a disaster. But not all of its ideas about society were wrong. The Marxists will go out, and the ideas will be absorbed. I'll probably live to see them come back again."

After the War Was Over . . .

By JAMES M. MARKHAM

SAIGON — Andre Malraux slept there. Graham Greene's quiet American had a fateful encounter on its terrace. During the Communists' 1969 Tet offensive, American journalists took refuge in its hallways.

But these days few people are checking in to the Continental Palace Hotel, an institution that is intertwined in the history and fiction of Saigon at war and, occasionally, at peace.

"The Continental is the thermometer of Vietnamese society, if you will," said Philippe Franchini, the hotel's ironic, easy-going proprietor.

"First came the French planters, who gambled in the casino. After them came the French officers—non commissioned officers were not permitted to stay here. Then the cafe was full of Americans, above all, journalists. At the height of the war I opened the restaurant downstairs and called it La Dolce Vita. Black humor. No one understood it."

Now the Americans too are gone, and the Continental must content itself with the Polish, Indonesian and Iranian delegations to the International Commission of Control and Supervision as representatives of a Saigon that is, as Franchini puts it, waiting. Waiting to see what the uncertain future holds.

"And us, we are waiting for the tourists," the hotelier said with a grin, alluding to the government's hopes of turning a country still at war into a cheery vacationland.

Though most of its high-ceilinged rooms are empty and its two restaurants are rarely full, the Continental's famed ground-floor terrace on Tu Do Street — once Rue Catinat—remains the place to watch Saigon, or the foreigners' Saigon, go by.

Squatting on the sidewalk, five child beggars divide their daily take with their mother. A little girl persistently peddles a wreath of sweet-smelling jasmine to the sole customer in the terrace restaurant.

A few evenings ago Thich Tam Giac, the head monk of the Vinh Ngiehm Pagoda, one of Saigon's newest and richest, gave a champagne dinner for businessmen and other notables in the Continental's dining room and interior garden.

A sign of the times, some say. The venerable Tam Giac is president of the National Tankers Oil Company, which hopes to cash in on South Vietnam's great distant hope: offshore oil.

"In the past it was the priests and bishops who went into business," an old-timer at the hotel remarked. "Now it's the bonzes' (monks') turn."

Indeed, the story goes it was the Roman Catholic head of the Foreign Missions in Indochina who lent an obscure Corsican named Mathieu Franchini the money to buy the Continental in the wake of the 1929 crash when no one wanted it.

The elder Franchini, who had arrived in Indochina as a cabin boy and married the daughter of a Mandarin from the Mekong Delta, converted the turn-of-the-century four-storey structure into the headquarters of Saigon's expatriate money-making elite. In the process he reportedly became a financial adviser to the court of the Emperor Bao Dai, a counselor to the Binh Duyen river pirates—and a millionaire.

Although the hotel was very expensive in the 1950's, now its fanciest double room, where an air-conditioner clankingly diminishes the tropical heat, runs less than $14 a day.

And Philippe Franchini, the 43-year-old son of Mathieu—the father died in 1965 in France—insists that he is just breaking even.

He's Rolling With Money

By JOHN NICHOL

My old friend Crudley Budget, is leaving the Department of Finance. He has been there for years — a key man, as they say. But he is leaving — and he is sick about the whole thing.

Last night, he came over to the house, and we talked. "Sit down, Crudley," I said, "and tell me what terrible troubles are gnawing at your vitals."

He had a beer, and then the whole story came out.

"I was happy at Finance," he said, "but in recent years it's all got to be too much for me. My stomach can't take it. I have to make a change."

"Tell me about it, Crudley," I said. "Put your feet up on the couch here, close your eyes, sniff your beer, and tell old Uncle John about the whole mess."

He relaxed then, and, between sobs, his story came out.

"It began," he said, "when we started to fight creeping socialism. In order to fight creeping socialism we had to deal with galloping inflation. And as everyone knows, galloping inflation is caused by runaway costs.

"We had runaway costs, and also falling profits. Falling profits were coupled with rising expectations.

"We came up with a sliding scale of revolving credits, all planned on the basis of rolling forecasts."

"Up till now," I commented, "it sounds like everything was under control."

"It was! It was!" he sobbed. "But then we got hit with plunging stock prices, and a soaring cost of living.

"That, of course, was the turning point — our curves escalated. Something had to be done to prevent the tipping of the scales one way or the other. Our running balances were yawing and pitching."

"But Crudley," I said, "you are an economist. You are used to the ups and downs of the business cycle. Please try to get a grip on yourself. There's nothing new here. You have seen it all before. What happened?"

By this time his face had turned green, and he asked me to throw out my cigar.

I said, "Crudley, you don't look at all well. Can I get you some ice cold tomato juice? Loosen your tie? What in Heaven's sake is wrong?"

He turned his poor pale face from his beer, and with a staggering lurch went to the window and threw up into our bed of mangey geraniums.

Then he turned back from the window with wet eyes and said "I am leaving the Department of Finance because I get sea sick."

"Sea sick!" I gasped, "Sea sick! How can that be? You haven't been out of Ottawa since 1953. Everyone knows nothing moves there!"

"That's what you think," he replied, wiping his mouth on the curtain. "Everything we deal with is either creeping or galloping, running away or falling back, rising or falling. Some things revolve. Others are rolling, if they are not sliding. Some are plunging. Others are soaring. Curves are tipping, escalating, topping out and diminishing! I even work a staggered shift on a rotating basis. I take a pound of dramamine a day, I tell you, and still I'm sick, sick, sick! I need shore leave! I want to feel the earth under my feet again."

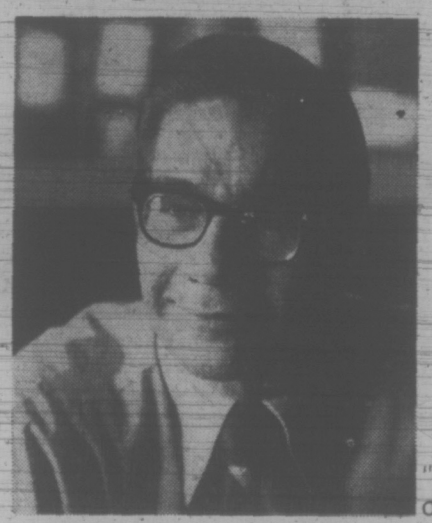
"But Crudley," I gently asked him, "what will you do?"

"I have applied for a job at the Queen's Printers."

"The Queen's Printers? Why? In what department?"

"Stationery."

"What does mining mean to you, Hughey Prins?"



"Over one-third of our business is with the mining companies," says Hughey Prins of a Vancouver independently owned tire service company. "Our retread and repair plant really depends on mining business to keep operating at full swing . . . and without new tire orders and retread orders for those huge mining equipment units, many of our people would be out of work. We all know about the thousands of people employed by the mining industry itself — our company is a good example of the many other industries which rely on mining to keep employment at a high level."

Copper Mine To Reopen

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Churchill copper mine in northern British Columbia will be reopened and another brought into production under a joint venture agreement announced in Vancouver Tuesday.

R. E. Hallbauer of Brameda Resources Ltd. and G. W. Walkey of Kam Kotia Mines Ltd. announced Kam Kotia will provide the necessary financing to reopen the Churchill Mine and to bring the Davis Keays copper mine, also situated tin northern B.C., into production.

Both are scheduled to have a capacity of 500 tons of ore a day. The Churchill mine was shut down in October, 1971, because of low copper prices.

The agreement calls for ore from the Davis Keays mine to be trucked to the Churchill mill 80 miles west of Fort Nelson.

The agreement is subject to approval of shareholders, the Vancouver Stock Exchange and to Davis Keays being issued a B.C. government production lease.

The agreement calls for Kam Kotia to recover its financing costs from each property with Kam Kotia eventually receiving 30 per cent of Brameda's shareholding in Churchill and with Kam Kotia, Brameda and Davis Keays Mining Co. Ltd. sharing proceeds from the Davis Keays mine.

Moscow Trade Centre

NEW YORK (AP) — The Occidental Petroleum Corp. and the Soviet Union's Chamber of Commerce and Industry have a formal agreement for construction of a $110 million international trade centre in Moscow.

"This is an occasion of great significance for businessmen throughout the world," Armand Hammer, Occidental chairman, said in announcing the signing.

"The action of the Soviet government in agreeing to construction of this centre is another sign that detente through East-West trade is a reality."

The centre will have office space for 400 foreign firms, living quarters for their employees and a 600-room hotel.

Boris A. Borisov, president of the Soviet chamber, signed for the Russians and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin witnessed the ceremony.

The trade centre agreement evolved from a July 1972 trade agreement that Occidental signed with the Soviet government.

Japan to Balance Trade

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan and the European Common Market agreed today to seek balanced trade in order to avoid import-export frictions between them which marked trade between Japan and the United States last year.

The agreement was announced by Sir Christopher Soames, vice-president of the European Economic Community's commission for external affairs. Soames' announcement came after two days of talks with Japanese Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira.

Soames said the EEC believes there is "certainly plenty of room" for expanding trade between the EEC and Japan, but cited two dangers which parties agreed to avoid.

One, he said, is the possibility of over-all trade between the two parties getting widely out of balance and the other is the possibility of Japanese exports advancing on "too narrow a front concentrating too much on a few products on the markets of particular member states."

Soames said he and Ohira agreed to seek balanced trade so that Japan would not run into the same experience she faced in her trade with the United States last year.

Japan's favorable balance of trade with the United States in 1972 totalled $4.1 billion, which brought pressure from the United States on Japan to balance the trade by relaxing certain import restrictions.

Soames said he and Japanese officials also discussed the tariff and trade negotiations due to begin in Geneva.

"We reached broad measures of agreement that it is desirable for different parties to put forward detailed negotiating proposals on such matters as tariffs and non-tariff barriers," he said.

"We also agreed on the desirability on reinforcing political reality of the time limit" so the multilateral trade negotiations could be completed before the end of 1975.

Ohira said "we came to a meeting of minds on the fact that co-operation between Japan and the European Community is an inseparable ingredient for the new round of (trade) negotiations."

Galveston Involved In Gas Well Plan

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver firm, Galveston Mines Ltd., today announced it is participating with eastern Canadian associates in a 55-well natural gas drilling program in the Prairies.

John Gunther, president of Galveston, said the program, now under way, will cost $2.5 million and will include a series of shallow natural gas wells in the Alberta-Saskatchewan border area to the east of Medicine Hat.

"We'll be working closely with Merland Explorations of Toronto," said Gunther.

The company has made several land acquisitions in the Meridian area at the Saskatchewan border, and has added further interests in 19 sections of land in the North Atlee district of Alberta, in which the wells will cost $800,000 to complete, he said.

Gunther said his company is also participating in 12 wells to be drilled near Hilda, Alta., and in nine wells to be drilled at Schuler, Alta.

Consumers Ask Hike

TORONTO (CP) — Consumers' Gas Co. is asking the Ontario Energy Board for eprmission to increase natural gas rates Dec. 1 to cover additional cost.

The company said the increase of seven cents per thousand feet would raise the average residential customer's annual bill by about five per cent.

Consumers' said that by postponing the increase until Dec. 1 it was giving the customers the benefit of gas held in storage on which the increased prices from suppliers did not apply.

Recession 'Unlikely'

EDMONTON (CP) — The economy may slow its growth during the next few months but a recession is not likely, says president R. M. Thomson of the Toronto Dominion Bank.

He noted wheat sales are strong, lumber, pulp and paper prices are near the highest in years, prices in the mining sector are rising, consumer income is high and retail sales are holding up well.

"Things look good."

The only possible problem was inflation and steps have been taken that "hopefully will cool down the rate of inflation in '74."

"We could see a turndown in the rate of growth, but I think that might in fact, be a good thing. I don't see a recession."

Parking Lease Okayed

Owners of the Mayfair Shopping Centre obtained approval in principle Tuesday from city council for leasing city-owned property at Blanshard and Finlayson to provide increased parking capacity.

Alvin Poettcker, director of development for Canadian Allied Property Investments Ltd., told council's informal caucus session the extra parking is needed as part of a program of expansion and improvement to the shopping centre.

This would see the addition of about 15,000 square feet of retail space, as well as the roofing over of the present mall system that runs through the centre of the complex.

The property the firm wants to lease is the roughly circular-shaped parcel of land adjoining the southeastern tip of the Mayfair parking lot, where Finlayson sweeps around to merge with Blanshard.

Poettcker said the "turning circle" area of about 60,000 square feet would accommodate 120 cars, intended mainly for staff parking but also for overspill customer parking on sales days.

Preliminary discussions with the city land commissioner indicated the lease figure would be about $20,000 a year, he said.

In addition, the company was prepared to pay the cost of span construction involved in the tentative capital works project of providing a Finlayson bridge across Blanshard. If this came about, access from the circle to the main shopping centre area would be via an underpass.

Poettcker said CAPI also proposed to provide another 100 parking spaces by decking over a portion of the parking lot at the northern perimeter, so that it is almost on a level with Tolmie.

He said the improvements will see the phasing out of the Imperial Esso station on the Douglas frontage, and extensive landscaping and screening, with the general aim of bringing Mayfair up to present-day standards for shopping centres.

Mayor Peter Pollen said while the city should "nurture" Mayfair, he would prefer to see a five-year renewable lease rather than the 20-year term sought by the firm.

ELFORD

YOUNG, ELFORD SEEK 3RD TERM

Mayor Frances Elford of Oak Bay and Mayor Art Young of Esquimalt will seek third terms at the Nov. 17 civic elections.

Elford, 10 years on council as alderman and mayor, said one of her main reasons for running is to see the new recreation complex, due to be completed next year, through its final stages.

Young, who has served two terms as mayor and one as alderman, won by acclamation in 1971, as did Elford.

"I am sure this year there will be an election," he says, "I would hope there's an election for both mayor and aldermen."

Funds Granted Handicapped

Members of the Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee Tuesday supported an application for a $1,000,000 grant toward a proposed activity centre for the handicapped on Vernon.

The committee agreed to recommend to member municipalities that the grant be paid over a five-year period, but not before Mayor Peter Pollen objected to the principle of such projects having to rely on municipal support.

Pollen said municipalities have only one source of income, property tax, and it is unfair that they should have to finance much-needed community services when they cannot partake of the "growing feast of income tax" and other sources of revenue in partnership with the senior levels of government.

He described his backing for the activity centre, which will form part of the Battin-Fielding memorial complex, as coming "from the heart and not from the mind."

Under the intermunicipal cost-sharing formula, the $100,000 grant would be shared as follows: Victoria, $36,860; Saanich, $35,540; Oak Bay, $11,350; Esquimalt, $7,550; Central Saanich, $3,100; North Saanich, $2,790; Sidney, $2,810.

In other business, the committee tabled the proposal to purchase the Royal Theatre for $250,000 after the Saanich and Oak Bay representives said their respective councils were still studying the scheme's feasibility.

Pollen reminded the committe that the municipalities' extended option to purchase the theatre from Famous Players Ltd., as an interim base for the Victoria Symphony, expires Oct. 15.

Women Offer Plays

Secondary roles for women are the rule in the majority of plays, especially those by male authors.

So a group of nine women in Vancouver decided to do something about the inequality and combined to present plays, readings and workshops focusing on women and their contemporary problems.

They call themselves the Women's Theatre Co-operative and on Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Open Space, 510 Fort Street, will present two of their plays.

The first, Three Women, is subtitled A Poem for Three Voices. It presents the conflicting responses of women in a maternity ward and is by poetess Sylvia Plath. The performers are Kathryn Daniels, Svetlana Smith and Liz Nickson.

Titty Titty, Bang Bang, is the title of the second offering.

Refuting the allegation that the women's movement lacks humor, this piece is a feminist send-up of everyone and everything, including the movement itself.

The cast includes Ann McQueen, Nicola Cavendish, Michelle Fisk and Ardele Lister as well as the three from the first play.

Starting time is 8 each night.

Mobile Home Rule 'Unfair'

Mobile home owners who live on private lots have complained of unfair treatment to provincial housing commissioner Jack Williams.

The problem concerns a regional district requirement demanding a building permit and engineer's seal on plans to locate a mobile home on a private lot.

This was the protest filed by local land owner Jim Gillespie.

He said he did not get a satisfactory answer to the question at the meeting this week with Williams. Present were Esquimalt MLA Jim Gorst, regional engineering director Bill Gerry and a group of mobile home property owners.

Gillespie, who lives at 119 Helmcken, owns two building lots on Florence Lake Road, which is in unincorporated area and comes under the regional district. He rents out the lots to mobile home owners—one home to each lot.

Last week, Gillespie claims, the regional building inspectors informed his tenants they must have a building permit to locate on the property and they must present building plans which bear the seal of an engineer.

But, if these mobile homes were located in a mobile home park there would be not such requirement because the regional district does not have jurisdiction of building standards in such parks. There is such a park on the same road.

"A building inspector wouldn't even be allowed into a mobile home park," says Gillespie.

He said a regional district requirement is that mobile homes be placed on a cement foundation.

"Do you think a person who is renting on a 30-day basis should be forced to take our a building permit or to build a cement foundation?" he asks.

Gillespie was promised further meetings with the municipal affairs department.

Oil Nation's Price

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The price the west must now pay for oil in the midst of a world energy shortage is the industrialization of Saudi Arabia, the Saudi minister of petroleum said Tuesday.

Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the minister, said oil consuming nations will be asked to pay prices high enough to finance industrialization of his country "to build a substitute for our resources when they are gone."

Yamani's position was expressed at an energy discussion of the International Industrial Conference, a meeting of top busines and financial leaders.

The energy shortage, Yamani said, is "the most critical problem mankind will face in this century."

The Arabian people are "more concerned than anyone can think about the possibility of using up their oil resources and then finding themselves economically dependent on the rest of the world.

Changed But Active Press Role Forecast

Lord Astor of Hever, president of the Commonwealth Press Union, said in Victoria today newspapers will continue to thrive but toward the end of the century could be much different.

The president of Times Newspapers Ltd. of London is in Victoria to address members of the Commonwealth Society at 7 p.m. today in the Bay Street Armory artillery mess.

Lord Astor said in an interview he is optimistic about the future role of newspapers despite the growth of electronic journalism.

"We are on the threshhold of some tremendous changes in newspapers. The printed word will always survive, although possibly not in the form we see it today."

He said interesting experiments were being conducted in Japan on transmitting newspapers into homes through electronic means.

A wide range of other technological improvements is also on the horizon which will enable newspapers to keep pace with developments in television journalism, he said.

Lord Astor said he would not hesitate to recommend to young people that they select newspaper journalism as a career because newspapers in one form or other would continue to exist throughout their lifetimes.

Kitimat Mayor Likes Planning In 22-Year-Old 'Instant Town'

By WAYNE HARDING
Times Staff

Community planning really works says George Thom, mayor of Kitimat, the first community in British Columbia to be planned right from the beginning.

It was 22 years ago and the term "instant town" had just been coined. The Aluminum Company of Canada had retained a New York firm of planners to lay out the pattern of streets and lots that would be Kitimat. Zoning, height limits, setbacks, "how to do what where" were all decided long before there were citizens to approve or protest and before there were aldermen and mayors to listen.

Plan Stuck

Other towns had early master plans, of course. The Sappers laid out New Westminster when it was only a garrison and the Grand Trunk Pacific planned Prince Rupert before there was a railway station there. But unlike these communities, Kitimat struck to its plan and still is.

Thom, who was in Victoria this week for talks with government officials, was upset by an article in a Vancouver newspaper which was subsequently carried across the country by Canadian Press which, Thom feels, was unjustly critical of his community. He denies many of the complaints made by the writer—who visited the town for four days — especially the charge that smoke and ash fall over the main centre and residential areas.

"Of course, we have to make adjustments over the years," admits Thom, "but the basic plan is still unfolding."

No Sprawl

Among the current developments is a subdivision of large lots (up to five acres) where people who want to keep animals or just have a lot of space can live.

"It won't be suburban sprawl though," says Thom.

The district municipality which was incorporated 20 years ago now has a population of 12,000 within its 10 square miles. Only five per cent of the land is developed, most of it Crown land.

Alcan is the largest private land owner and still provides most of the jobs — abut 2,000. But Thom insists the town has lost much of the "company town" flavor it had in its early years. Thom is the first mayor of the distict not to be an employee of Alcan and three of his six aldermen are not with the company. (The first council was all Alcan people.)

Also Pulp Mill

The Eurocan pulp mill went into production three years ago and now employs 700 people.

As the second major industry in the community, it provides a diversity of jobs available to young people — which Thom feels is important if the population is to remain stable — and also adds to the handsome tax base of the municipality.

Prosperity has had a lot to do with the success of community planning. The 10 years slump in the aluminum industry had serious effects on the community — 6,000 construction workers moved out for good — but on the whole everyone lives well in Kitimat.

Thom estimates there are "30 to 40" people on the municipal welfare roles. "They tend to move on."

Not Utopia

Still it's not Utopia. And The Plan hasn't been foolproof, Thom agreed. The pie-shaped lots in the cul-de-sacs of the early subdivision were too small. They usually had 50-foot frontages. In the new subdivision frontages are between 65 and 70 feet.

The roadways were too small. "They just couldn't imagine the kind of car ratio we would have 20 years later."

Thom feels the community is behind in recreation facilities. Voters turned down a $3.2 million bylaw last year which would have provided a community centre, second ice arena and library. The municipal council will put up another recreation bylaw in November.

There has always been a housing shortage in Kitimat. Recent tax law changes that discouraged apartment construction hasn't helped.

Kitimat is the kind of town where people want to live in single family detached homes and condominium apartments don't seem to be the answer to the town's shortage.

Civic pride and involvement in the community has been harder to develop than streets and houses. Thom admits it lagged for many years.

"But now people are more involved, they're inclined to protest if they don't like things. Remember we have a second generation coming up now."

Labor Council Raps Gov't

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Labor Council strongly criticized the provincial government Tuesday for considering legislation which would allow workers to opt out of paying dues to unions on religious grounds.

Council member Bill Stewart said such legislation woul dend the closed shop. He said if it were passed it might "steamroll into a full-scale attack on the labor movement."

In the throne speech, the government promised that forthcoming labor laws will "recognize the sanctity of individual religious beliefs."

This phrase has been interpreted by some observers to mean recognition of the Christian Labor Association of Canada which advocates allowing members of unions to give the equivalent of their alloted union dues to a specified charity.

A Tragedy in the Sun —On Losing a Friend"

The picture of Arthur Fraser, as I'll call him, in this paper earlier in the week, announcing his appointment to the board of directors of a certain major firm, had the embalmed look characteristic of such pictures, but it sent my mind back over the years with an almost frightening clarity.

Finis Farr, in his new biography on John O'Hara, writes of O'Hara's total recall, his fantastic ability to remember exact detail and dialogue from his younger days. Certainly that was O'Hara's greatest gift.

Yet I wonder if it's all that rare, if, in fact, everyone does not have precise, photographic memories of incidents from years past, particularly those incidents freighted with tragedy, grief or unhappiness.

My own memories of an uneventful, marble-playing boyhood are mostly misty in recapturing the happier times, but startlingly clear in recalling events which brought sorrow. I suppose this is a natural thing. Sorrow in a boy's life is a rarity, leaving its mark on raw, new emotions and, thus, remembered.

All of this is preamble to the recollections which came flooding into my mind when I saw Arthur Fraser's middle-aged face staring out at me from the financial page.

I could have been no more than 10 or 11 at the time yet the events of that afternoon are as sharply in focus as if they had happened yesterday. It seems to me now that this was my first realization that the big, pleasant world was full of dark complications and that life was not all as serene or tidy as it seemed.

My memory of that day has a feeling of space and sunlight and, paradoxically, that is the most dramatic backdrop for sorrow. The funeral in the rain never seems as gloomy as the funeral in the sun.

It was early afternoon and Artie and I were truants from school hiding out for the afternoon in a playground then at the far end of a board-walk which skirted Kitsilano Beach. The tingling sensation of danger in playing hookey was heightened by the loneliness of a place usually crowded.

I remember the sun on the asphalt volleyball court in the middle of the playground and the empty swings hanging straight down from the cross-bars, the board-walk, the deserted stretch of the beach and the glinting bay beyond.

Long before she was recognizable to me Artie had identified the walk and figure of his mother far down the board-walk. We ran and crouched in the shelter of a small building and watched Artie's mother and a man stroll by and then on and out of sight down the beach.

I remember turning to Artie, elated that his mother was obviously not searching for us, and the shock in seeing his face, white and pinched and holding a nameless melancholy.

"That man isn't my father," he said in a voice full of shame and close to tears. I hadn't any remote conception of what this meant, but suddenly all the simplicities of life were gone and the bright, empty afternoon seemed strange and frightening.

I remember following Artie when he ran down to the beach and then cutting back up through a small park, searching for the adults. Then seeing them on a log on the beach below us and in each other's arms.

We crept through the tall grass until we were at the edge of a steep bank. We could see Artie's mother and the man. We lay on our stomachs watching them, the man and woman almost directly below us and beyond them the bay dancing with sunlight. The long, yellow grass was cool and the birds were singing, but there was no joy left in the world.

I stayed there only because of Artie. I wanted to run away. I was filled with embarrassment and disillusionment and a kind of furtive indecency, spying on the grown-up people.

Finally Artie squirmed around in the grass and crawled away. I followed him until we were out of sight of the place on the beach, not talking or looking at each other. Then he began to run ahead. I made no effort to go after him. I watched him run on down the long, deserted beach, knowing that we could never be really deep friends again.

It was still time before the school was out, but I walked slowly home anyway and found my mother in the kitchen and told her I had played hookey. I knew I would have to tell her something and that was the easiest to tell.

Moonlight Assessing Hit

Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer today promised legislation that will stop assessors from using their specialized knowledge to make money in real estate dealings.

Lorimer told the B.C. Association of Assessors, which began its 24th annual conference at the Empress Hotel today:

"I am distressed when I hear of assessors dealing in real estate or, in fact, moonlighting by doing private assessment work. They are able to use confidential information or special knowledge they have obtained or their own special gain.

"This practice must stop."

Stating that the numbers of assessors doing this were small, he added, "There is great need for conflict of interest legislation and I believe we can look forward to this in the not too distant future."

Lorimer said his department is considering regional assessment as a replacement for the provincial plus municipal assessment system.

"Equalization between urban and rural land would be more readily attained (by regionalization)," he said. "Assessors could move periodically from region to region and so assist further in the equalization of assessments. This would do away with the necessity of combining the assessor, the building inspector and the dog catcher in small communities."

Lorimer said a thorough study of assessments and taxation is being made and "This next year we hope to have some interesting suggestions tested in municipalities to see what results might appear."

"Techniques should be standardized," he said, "so that one data centre could assist all areas in preparing (tax) rolls. It should not be necessary for every municipality to go into the expensive computer field on their own."

Lorimer said that owners of residential properties, in the past, had been subsidizing industry and commercial property owners.

The "stop gap change" of removing the 10 per cent limitation of assessment increase per year on industrial and commercial areas in 1972 Lorimer said had helped improve this situation.

"Assessors generally have done a good job in this province," Lorimer said, "Industrial and commercial sites have probably lagged behind increases in assessments for homes."

LORIMER
. . . practice must stop

He said he did not "buy the argument" that homes in a neighborhood sell frequently and so assessors can easily arrive at evaluations while this was not the case with industrial and commercial sites that do not change hands so often.

"It is not too great a chore," he said, "to determine at what price sales would take place. Values of this kind should be much closer in touch with reality."

Gallery Gets Funds

Funds are available and major developments in the Greater Victoria Art Gallery can be expected, new director Richard Simmins said Tuesday night.

He did not elaborate on details to several hundred gallery members, saying this would have to await his return from a visit to Ottawa.

Simmins, regarded as one of the ablest and most creative personalities in gallery administration, was a former director of extension services at the National Gallery of Canada and for more than three years director of the Vancouver Art Gallery.

He was introduced by art gallery president Bertram Butler. Simmins paid warm tribute to retiring director Colin Graham.

The occasion also marked the opening of four uniquely different exhibitions.

The works of three Canadian artists — Mary Filer, Ian Garrioch and John Charnetski — will be on view until Oct. 7. Landscape silk screen abstractions by Cathrin Hoskinson will be shown to Sept. 30.

Region Seeks Major Role In Land, Houses

The Capital Regional Board should take over responsibility for land assembly, land banking and housing on southern Vancouver Island.

This is the main recommendation expected to go before the district board Oct. 10 by the region's planning committee.

If the recommendation is approved the matter will then go to the provincial government for action.

Committee chairman Ald. Edith Gunning of Saanich said the role of the district would be mainly that of "initiator and facilitator" with capital costs being carried by senior governments.

The committee agreed with the following purposes and activities for the proposed functions of land assembly, land banking and housing:

—Land assembly will be to make available lands now planned for servicing or which can more readily be serviced in order to meet immediate needs for residential housing and related uses in five-year growth periods.

This would include assessing and forecasting urban land requirements and acquisition of a proportion of the supply of land to meet immediate urban residential requirements.

It would also include reducing the cost of residential land by:

—Influencing the land market by marketing a proportion of land requirements for each year;

—Supplying serviced land at less than market value;

—Leasing land.

To ensure housing for all income groups, the committee agreed to a number of steps. These included an inventory of housing needs assessed and forecast, assistance given to non-profit organizations to enter the field by supplying information, locating suitable sites and acting as "facilitator or ombudsman" with senior governments.

After much discussion, the committee agreed land banking should be the acquisition of significently large areas of undeveloped land to direct and control growth on a long-term basis in specified areas by:

—Withholding land from development for 20- to 30-year periods.

—Controlling price and availability of land in designated areas when future needs arise.

These points will go to the regional board as supporting information for the basic recommendation, that the district apply to the provincial government for letters patent to assume the functions of land assembly, housing, land banking, development of rental housing, co-operation with senior governments in schemes for home ownership and new communities.

Cost of these areas is largely met by provincial and federal governments. Loans for land assembly and developing land for housing, under the National Housing Act, cover up to 90 per cent of the cost.

The local budget for administration and rental subsidies would be met by a ¼ mill levy throughout the regional district which would raise $145,000, the committee was told.

Implementation would involve close co-operation with municipalities in which projects are planned.

Leasing of land, one aspect of the entire subject, was described by Mrs. Gunning as a "great idea" but one which will take time to become popular.

She said leasing is common in Britain and Europe but "people here are used to owning land."

The district's executive director, Dennis Young, said this attitude is changing and added there are "short-range benefits but some very significant long-range benefits to leasing land."

It meant that after 50 years or so, with government ownership in what are by then older communities, the ability to redevelop is improved a great deal over a multitude of private ownerships of land.

Fishing Harm Feared If Durrance Lowered

A proposal by Butchart's Gardens to bolster its water supply by taking water from Durrance Lake could harm the lake's trout fishing and recreational use, says a report to Victoria city council's parks committee.

Acting parks administrator Alan Smith says the Butchart's application to the provincial water rights branch asks for removal of two vertical feet of water from Durrance Lake for irrigation purposes.

If permitted, this would reduce the size of the lake by about two acres by exposing shallows portions, Smith states in the report, which will be considered Thursday by the parks committee.

Smith explained today that as the lake is a small one, reducing its size will increase its water temperature to the detriment of fish stocks. "Trout can't stand the temperature when its gets into the 80s," he said.

The 254-acre lake property in the Highlands district was acquired by the city several years ago from B.C. Hydro, in a land trade when Hydro sought a right of way through Thetis Lake. But at the same time Butchart's apparently bought the dam at the eastern end of the lake for a nominal $1.

Smith says in his report the water rights branch has indicated it will turn down the application if the city has sound reasons for opposing it.

However, parks committee chairman Ald. Malcolm Anderson said today he will propose tabling the matter until further information is available. It may prove possible to meet the Butchart's Gardens needs for water at least partially, he said.

A spokesman for the water rights branch said Butchart's Gardens experiences water shortages in the summer months and would like to draw additional water from Durrance Lake via Tod Creek — for which it already has a licence.

The creek is also fed by Prospect Lake and Heal's Lake, Smith suggests the latter, a small lake southeast of Durrance Lake situated on Crown land, be considered as a source of extra water for the gardens.

Big Car Seller Shifting Down

Victoria's car dealer mayor, Peter Pollen, found himself Tuesday in the somewhat awkward position of having to betray Ford's big line products and promote the advantages of small cars.

It happened at city council's committee-of-the-whole meeting, after aldermen had given the green light to construction of a new downtown carpark between Courtney and Broughton.

Pollen said council should give serious thought to having the $898,000 structure designed specifically for small cars, "... like VWs and Datsuns," so that its capacity would be greatly increased.

The man whose firm sells full-sized LTDs said:

"It tears my heart out to even say it, but 81 per cent of the cars being sold in the Greater Victoria area now — compared with only about 40 per cent five years ago — are small cars."

The decision to approve the new parking facility, which council hedged at two weeks ago, was opposed only by Ald. Tom Christie and Ald. Mike Young.

Young repeated his earlier objections the carpark in that location would benefit only the monthly parker, and would not attract the shopping short-term parkers.

"The only people-generator I can see in sight of that location is Hayward's funeral parlor," he commented.

To which Pollen replied: "And they're going, not coming."

GIRL PULLED FROM BAY

A woman found Monday lying in three feet of water at Horseshoe Bay on Dallas Road is in fair condition in Victoria General Hospital after spending the past two days in intensive care.

Police have identified the girl as Christine Smith but have not been able to determine her address. She is agout 20.

An ambulance and fire department rescue team rushed to the scene at about 4:40 p.m. Monday when a citizen reported a girl had slipped off a pathway and fallen 50 feet.

FIRE WAS HANDY

It was a case of the right man being at the right place at almost the right time.

Central Saanich volunteer firemen only had to travel across the street to fight a basement blaze at the home of one of their members, Peter Cellarius.

Cellarius was returning to his home at 7843 East Saanich at about 10:30 p.m. when he saw smoke.

Firemen were on the scene for two-and-one-half hours.

The fire, which was confined largely to the basement area, caused an estimated $10,000 to $15,000 damage.

Cause has not been determined.

Cuban Casas for $14 a Month!

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

A four-room apartment in a new building that rents at $14 a month.

The aroma of his Havana cigar tweeks at the nostrils, a fragrant reminder of his apparent Utopia.

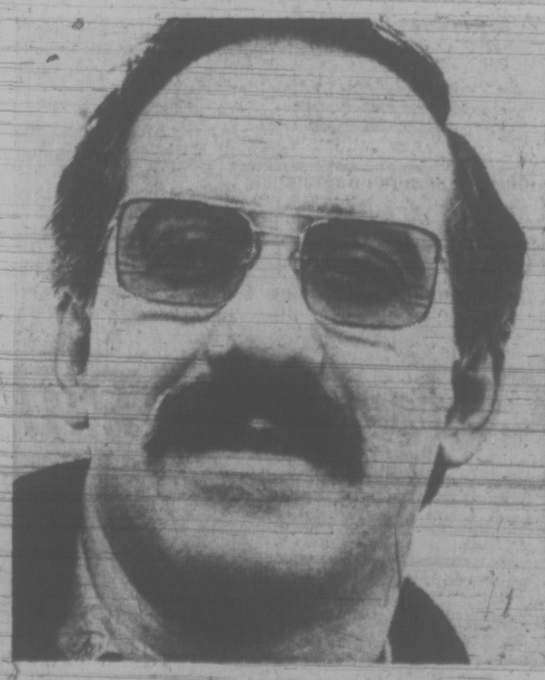
This is Cespedes first glimpse of Victoria, which he finds "nice and clean and very quiet."

On her way back to Havana from Japan with a load of general cargo, the Imias put in to Victoria so her crew can do some engine repairs.

There's no language barrier. The captain has taught himself to speak English during his 10 years at sea.



CESPEDES . . . and beef at 55 cents

"I have a book aboard," he explains. "It took me a long time but I pick up a little on this trip, and some more on the next."

This is his first glimpse of western Canada but he's no stranger to other parts of the country.

"I've been to Montreal, St. John's in Newfoundland and Halifax. When we knew we were coming here we were afraid it would be as cold as in those other places — but it isn't."

A print of Fidel Castro looks down on us. The captain tells how Cuba's merchant fleet, which Castro began, is building:

"We are getting ships all the time — new ships and old ships from all over the world."

He tells how Cuba exports lobster, shrimps, frozen tuna, sugar "and of course, tobacco" to Canada, importing Canadian flour, baking powder and other items in return.

He offers a demitasse of Cuban coffee — strong and very sweet.

"Our coffee is why we're called the sweetest people in the world," he quips.

Cespedes hails from Santiago de Cuba, the second largest city in Cuba with a population of one million. He says he turned to seafaring because "freighting costs a lot of money so we must have our own fleet and somebody has to go to sea."

He says his countrywomen are rapidly becoming emancipated.

"The women are getting liberated. They have all the opportunities of men. They can be anything they want."

The captain has four daughters.

Will they be able to follow in their father's footsteps?

Cespedes concedes that, to date, women have not been able to infiltrate the ranks of the seafaring.

Will they be successful in breaking into this male-dominated sphere?

He thinks so.

This visiting "salt," admits:

"That would be nice."

Bomber Find Stings Lions

VANCOUVER (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers' offence has suffered this season without Mack Herron but John Bledsoe was an adequate replacement Tuesday night.

Bledsoe ran for two touchdowns to pace Winnipeg to an easy 33-13 victory over British Columbia Lions. It was only their second win in nine games.

Herron, the mini-back who terrorized the Western Football Conference last season, was released by the Bombers and waived through the Canadian Football League after he was charged with drug offences during the off-season. He is now with New England Patriots of the National Football League.

At six-foot-one and 218 pounds, Bledsoe has about seven inches and 30 pounds on Herron and he runs with a completely different style, preferring to grind out yardage through the middle of the line.

Winnipeg quarterback Don Jonas used him to perfection, sending him through the middle of the B.C. defence for 148 yards on 26 carries, then faking and throwing over the drawn-in B.C. secondary for good passing yardage.

The Bombers scored both ways.

TRIED THREE TIMES

They opened the game by taking the kickoff and going 45 yards, eating up 9:07 on the clock, for a touchdown. Bledsoe was the workhorse, ending the drive by taking three tries from the one-yard line before making it into the end zone.

On the first play of the second quarter, Jonas did it the quick way.

Faced with a second down and long yardage on his own seven, the veteran quarterback went back to pass and found Willie Miller all alone behind the B.C. defence. A simple game of pitch-and-catch and a Miller sprint later and the Bombers were 13 points ahead.

Bledsoe added his second touchdown in the fourth quarter on an eight-yard run which put the game out of reach and Jonas threw a seven-yard pass to Paul Larose to complete the rout with less than a minute remaining.

Walt McKee completed the Winnipeg scoring by adding two field goals and converting two of the touchdowns.

Meanwhile, the Lions were having their problems.

MUSSO HURTING

Johnny Musso, who has been the workhorse of the Lions, wore an extra-large shoe to protect an injured toe and was used sparingly. He carried only three times, about 17 less than in other games this season, and totalled 40 yards.

The B.C. ground game, usually the bulwark of the offence, managed just 51 yards.

The only touchdown for the Lions came in the second quarter when quarterback Don Moorhead threw to tight end Lefty Hendrickson, who battled his way into the end zone with three Bombers clinging to him. The play covered 73 yards.

Ted Gerela added field goals from 24 and 25 yards and converted the touchdown to round out the B.C. scoring.

Moorhead, who had an injured shoulder going into the game, suffered even more damage.

HIT BY HEIGHTON

He went back to pass in the third quarter and defensive lineman Jim Heighton roared into the B.C. quarterback, who was gazing downfield at the time.

Moorhead left the game in noticeable pain, sat out one series, but returned.

The Bombers picked up 499 yards in net offence, 314 by passing, and 22 first downs.

Their defence held the Lions to just 10 first downs and 272 yards in net offence.

The win gave the Bombers a 2-7 record, leaving them in last place in the West, but closing in on the fourth-place Lions, who are now 3-6.

Pulford Likes Shape of Things

Skip Schamehorn has Bob Pulford in his corner now, but three years ago they were on opposite sides of the fence.

Schamehorn is the Esquimalt-based army phys-ed instructor drilling Los Angeles Kings into condition. Pulford Coaches the National Hockey League team now training at Memorial Arena.

But before he retired from playing ranks after the 1971-72 season, "Pullie" took orders from Schamehorn. Now he helps give 'em, and that may be the reason Pulford is more appreciative of Skip's efforts.

This is Schamehorn's fourth year as the Los Angeles conditioner. It may be one of his easier terms because the weights and the condition of most players has pleased Pulford in the early stages of camp.

"These are professionals," said Pulford, "and they know how tough it can be if they don't report in good condition."

The emphasis on conditioning is particularly important this year because the Kings will have worked in only four days of training before embarking on their pre-season exhibition schedule. They play the first of eight exhibitions Friday in Calgary against Vancouver Canucks.

The only player excused from hard callisthenics is Vic Venasky, a centre and former All-American at Denver University. The sophomore pro is nursing a groin injury and has been excused from scrimmages.

A total of 77 players are on hand, including those ticketed for assignment to the Springfield and Portland farm clubs. Springfield and Portland candidates have been working out at the Juan de Fuca Arena while the parent club trains at Memorial Arena.

Roadrunners To Join WHA

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Phoenix Roadrunners announced Tuesday they will move to the World Hockey Association next season.

Phoenix president Jim Wells, who made the announcement at a news conference, said the Roadrunners would continue to play in the Western Hockey League this season but participate in all WHA business affairs and the WHA amateur draft in the spring.

The granting of a franchise was announced simultaneously in Santa Ana, Calif., by Gary Davidson, president of the 12-team league which will expand to 15 for the 1974-75 season.

Ownership of the Roadrunners will remain unchanged.

Wells did not disclose the expansion fee, but the Phoenix Gazette said it was believed to be $2 million, the same price paid by an Indianapolis group for another franchise last week.

Wells said the Runners, WHL champions last season, were the first team to move "in toto" into a major league and might not want to draft 12 players from the expansion pool along with Indianapolis and Cincinnati, the other expansion teams.

It was reported here that the WHA probably would be divided into three divisions of five teams each, with Phoenix playing in a division with Los Angeles, Vancouver, Edmonton and either Houston or Winnipeg.

Involvement Is the Key

A name out of the past with a project that may mean a brighter future. The name is Valerie Parker, the project concerns recreation, and the future is that of Canadian track and field.

If the name Valerie Parker doesn't ring a bell, perhaps Valerie Jerome might. The sister of world sprint record-holder Harry Jerome accompanied her brother to the 1959 Pan-American Games in Chicago where she finished fourth in the 100 metres and was a finalist in the long and high jumps.

In 1964, Valerie married Ron Parker, a leading Canadian decathlon athlete who now is administrator of recreational track and field for the B.C. government. For several years Valerie and Ron have been promoting recreational track, especially among the province's age class athletes.

They live in Vancouver but were in Victoria last weekend for the Autumn Track Championships at Centennial Stadium. A high point for Valerie, now 29 and the mother of a one-year-old son, was a third-place finish in the 100-metre hurdles in 15.3 seconds.

"I was hoping for a 15.5," she explained, "so I'm certainly pleased. This was my first real hurdles race. I'm trying it because I heard it was more fun than just straight sprinting."

Valerie and Ron ran an age-class track club in the Kerrisdale area of Vancouver for five years but had to pack it in when time and expenses became excessive.

But since Ron's appointment as recreation track director a year ago, he has started five age-class clubs in Vancouver for athletes 14 and under. Three weeks ago, he formed a senior club for pentathlon and decathlon competitors.

"The idea behind recreational track and field is to get large numbers involved," Valerie explained. "Up to now, establishing standards of performance in track and field has tended to narrow the numbers taking part.

"When we were running age class track in Kerrisdale, we had one girl who seemed to do nothing but finish last in every race she ran. But she really was interested and two years ago, when she moved to California, she started a recreation track club of her own."

This is exactly what the Parkers are trying to achieve in track — a broader interest. They're banking on the belief that quantity sooner or later will produce quality at the international level.

Wilt Negotiating With San Diego

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain, holdout centre of Los Angeles Lakers, said Tuesday he's talking with San Diego Conquistadors, but refused to confirm or deny he is on the verge of jumping to the American Basketball Association.

"I'm negotiating with the Conquistadors as possibly being a player and coach, but that's as far as I can say," the seven-foot one-inch veteran of 14 National Basketball Association seasons said during an interview.

The San Francisco Examiner reported Tuesday that Chamberlain, 37, would sign a $600,000-a-year contract with San Diego.

"I haven't even heard from the Lakers," Wilt said of the team he has served the last five seasons.

Chamberlain, who was at a Hollywood Boulevard bookstore to autograph copies of his new book "Wilt", said he did not know where the newspaper report originated.

Chamberlain's contract with the Lakers has expired, but it contains an option clause binding him to the club for another season.

ONE MORE DAVIS MAKES FOUR

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League have signed wide receiver Dave Davis of Tennessee State.

He becomes the fourth Davis on the Steeler squad. Davis, released earlier this season by Green Bay, has been placed on the Steelers' taxi squad. He joins linebacker Henry Davis, guard Sam Davis and running back Steve Davis.

None is related.

Grid Injury Fatal

DOTHAN, Ala. (AP) — A 15-year-old Dothan high school football player died Tuesday of head and neck injuries he received in a practice session last Thursday. Hospital officials said the youth, Johnny Davis, never regained consciousness after being hurt.

SWIM TRAINER'S PLAN RATHER INTERESTING

MONTREAL — West German trainer Gerhard Hetz has come up with a daring plan to clip seconds off swimmers' times at the Montreal Olympics — racing in the nude.

Hetz claimed that both male and female East German swimmers train in the nude. He said that eight West German girls who he timed with and without swimming costumes clocked in two or three seconds faster in the altogether.

But Pierre Charbonneau, vice-president of the Montreal organizing committee, poured cold water on the idea: "It is interesting, but unworkable," he said.

Pre-Season Brawlers Draw Stiff Penalties

SASKATOON (CP) — Brawls similar to the one that erupted Sunday between Medicine Hat Tigers and Calgary Centennials will not be tolerated in the Western Canada Hockey League, Ed Chynoweth, league president, said Tuesday.

Chynoweth made the statement announcing "the most severe suspensions ever handed out" during the league's exhibition game history.

Three players, Calgary's Malcolm Zinger and Randy Marshall and Brad Gassoff of Medicine Hat, were suspended for the remainder of the exhibition series in addition to the first regularly scheduled-league games.

Barry Dean of Medicine Hat was given a two-game suspension for leaving the players' bench and team-mate Bryan Maxwell received a one-game suspension after being involved in three separate fights which automatically led to a game misconduct penalty.

Zinger and Marshall engaged in a stick-swinging duel and Gassoff molested an official during the game at Calgary. Centennials won the game, 12-0, as officials handed out 36 penalties, 20 to Medicine Hat.

Jack Shupe, Tigers' coach, was fined $500 and Scotty Munro, coach of the Calgary team, was fined $250.

Chynoweth, who previously promised to clean up the league, said there was "no room in the WCHL or hockey in general for these kinds of actions."

"I'm prepared to put my reputation on the line that I will not tolerate this kind of nonsense and if this is the way coaches and players want to act there will be many more suspensions and fines."

He said he wanted the league to "sit up and take notice" because it has had a reputation of a lack of discipline.

Meanwhile, both teams recorded victories on the exhibition trail Tuesday.

Medicine Hat fired five goals in the opening period enroute to a 7-1 decision over visiting New Westminster Bruins while Calgary hammered in three third-period goals to beat host Edmonton Oil Kings, 5-3.

Former Victoria defenceman Cliff Bast led Tigers with two goals while singles were added by Gary Vaughn, Ed Johnstone, Cliff Lane, Greg Vaydik and Morris Lucowich. Al Cameron averted a shutout for Bruins.

Danny Gare and Mike Rogers each scored twice to lead Centennials while Dennis Walker contributed a single. Terry Bucyk (2) and Terry McDonald replied for Oil Kings.

Island Women Superb

What B.C. couldn't do, Vancouver Island managed to achieve Tuesday at the University of Victoria.

With a superb all-round team performance, Vancouver Island Selects edged a touring Australian team 3-2 in a women's exhibition field hockey match.

The Australian women swamped a full B.C. Rep team 7-1 in Vancouver Sunday.

Jenny John, Michelle Williams and Ann Bover got goals for the Island Selects while Anne Dumbrowski scored twice for the Australians.

Behind the excellent goalkeeping of Liz Dixon, the Island team took a 1-0 lead in the first half and boosted this to 3-0 before the visitors got two quick goals in the last few minutes.

The Australian team now goes to Seattle and Los Angeles to complete an eight-week tour of The Netherlands, Canada and the United States.

Parkland's Debut Spoiled by Tyees

Victoria Tyees, B.C. champions two years ago, ended their losing streak at two games Tuesday, when they trounced Parkland 8-1 in a Greater Victoria High School Soccer League game.

Parkland, a new school playing its first game in the league, grabbed a 1-0 lead on Brian Clark's goal after only two minutes.

Tyees soon took command, however, with Jim Bergen, Duane Pack and Ron Quitter scoring two goals each and Mike Mulholland and Allan Fokkena getting one goal each.

Open Mouth Cuts Down Pill Intake

Rheo Blair, nutritional scientist from Los Angeles, rushed across the red carpeted room and placed a plateful of white pills in front of the most celebrated tennis has-been.

Bobby poured the whole batch, perhaps as many as 20, into his hand and swallowed them with one gulp. He washed them down with a glass of lemonade.

"Ah," said Bobby. "I feel better."

"This is what will beat Billie Jean King," said Blair, a specialist who has treated several Hollywood and television personalities. "These nutriments don't just give you strength. They sharpen the mind.

"Bobby will have such power of positive thinking, such concentration that you couldn't distract him with a bomb."

Two days before the highly ballyhooed, $100,000 winner-take-all match at the Astrodome Thursday night with 29-year-old Wimbledon titleholder and feminist, Riggs relaxed in his hotel suite surrounded by bottles of pills, sparring partners and friends.

One table contained a dozen bottles of pills, some of the bottles quart-size. The pills came in different colors and varied potency.

"There are 70 known nutriments," said the nutritionist, who is being paid $15,000 to watch over Rigg's physical well being, "and Bobby is getting all of them.

"The pills are like food, just don't take up as much room. In a day, Bobby gets the equivalent of 2000 fresh oranges, two pounds of liver, four pounds of beefsteak and two gallons of milk.

"Our aim is to have Bobby take 415 a day. Sometimes the number falls to around 300. Bobby doesn't keep his mouth closed long enough."

The match will be televised in the Victoria area on Channel 4 Thursday, starting at 8:00 p.m.

Absence of Brown Trout Worries Cowichan Angler

Maurice Wrixon, an ardent fly fishermen through and through, is more than a little unhappy over the decline of fishing success in the Cowichan River.

"As you know, the Cowichan was renowned as a trout river not only in B.C. and Canada but all over the world," he wrote in a letter to Charlie Lyons, fish and wildlife branch supervisor for Vancouver Island.

Maurice has been fishing the Cowichan for the past 24-odd years and believes "this renown would not be warranted today."

"The fishing has been deteriorating for the last four years, especially with regard to the Brown trout," he said.

"I fish the river in the spring and fall with a wet fly and when the river is really low, as at present, I have always enjoyed great fortune with a small dry fly."

Maurice, who uses only light leaders, caught eight-pound, seven-ounce brown on a number-12 dry fly in 1971 and has hooked at least two fish over 12 pounds, which subsequently broke off "after a good fight".

However, Maurice hasn't had much luck in the past two years, despite using the same flies and same techniques in the same stretches of the river above Skutz Falls.

"No signs of browns of any size.

"One never sees a fish rise and there is no doubt in my mind that something is radically wrong.

"Many of my friends who are old and devoted Cowichan fishermen will not even bother to go up there."

Our own observations, while fishing the area, bear this out.

Several families of otters are occupying the river between Cowichan Lake and Skutz Falls and a lot of fish must be needed to keep them alive.

Maurice suggests the otters should be trapped and moved elsewhere.

He also urges prohibition of salmon roe as a bait.

"I strongly urge the Cowichan above Skutz Falls should be restricted to fly fishing and that the river be closed to all fishing from Nov. 1 to March 31. The river is 29 miles long, so surely the other 24 miles should suffice for those who wish to use hardware, worms and salmon roe."

Otter and roe-fishing probably aren't the only factors effecting the population of brown trout. Increased development along the banks of the Cowichan, a steadily increasing number of fishermen and easier access to more of the pools must also play a part.

In addition, the high water temperatures this summer may have depressed the catch.

Nevertheless, the situation deserves closer scrutiny.

Close Is Good Enough for Cards

By The Associated Press

Leaners used to count only in horseshoes, but now St. Louis Cardinal manager Red Schoendienst is counting on a leaner in his sport.

"If we can keep on winning, and if we're leaning the right way, maybe we can fall into first place," said Schoendienst after the Cardinals beat Montreal Expos 7-4 Tuesday night.

The victory, coupled with Pittsburgh Pirates' 6-5 loss to New York Mets, pulled St. Louis to within 1½ games of Pittsburgh, leaders in the National League East Division. Montreal is in second spot, one game behind the Bucs.

Elsewhere, Philadelphia Phillies and Chicago split a pair, the Phils taking the first 5-2 and the Cubs the second 3-2; Cincinnati Reds blanked Houston Asros 1-0; San Diego Padres dropped Atlanta Braves 9-4 and Los Angeles Dodgers downed San Francisco Giants 3-1.

The Expos move into Chicago today while Pittsburgh visits the Mets and St. Louis is in Philadelphia.

It's rare to hear a manager talk of backing into first place, but the NL East race is the exception. The four contenders would be fighting with Houston for possession of fourth place in the West.

"I think the thing that may help us now," said Schoendienst, "is that the Expos and Pittsburgh are playing each other six times and the Mets and Pirates are playing each other three more times."

"It looked good enough to hit, so I swung at it," said Don Hahn of his two-run single that capped a five-run ninth, rallying the Mets past Pittsburgh.

The Pirates loaded the bases in the bottom of the ninth and reliever Buzz Capra went 3-1 on Manny Sanguillen.

"I was made up my mind I wasn't going to walk Sanguillen," Capra said. "So I threw him a fastball on the inside of the plate."

Good enough to hit would have been Hahn's description, but Sanguillen lofted a fly to left that Cleon Jones grabbed up for the final out.

Steve Arlin held Atlanta to five hits and Hank Aaron to a single and a long out in pitching San Diego to a 9-4 victory.

Aaron lofted a long fly in the sixth that seemed destined to be his 712th lifetime homer. But the ball dropped at the warning track and Gene Locklear put it away.

"I thought if it was out, then he was the strongest guy in baseball because that was a bad bad ball," said Arlin.

Chicago's Bill Bonham stopped Philadelphia on three hits, 3-2, after Greg Luzinski's 28th homer carried the Phillies to a win in the opener.

Andy Kosco's run-scoring, pop fly single in the eighth drove in Cincinnati's only run and Don Gullett pitched a four-hitter for his ninth straight victory, 1-0 over the Astros.

Joe Ferguson raced home with the tie-breaking run in the seventh on Roy Cey's infield grounder, sparking a three-run inning as the Dodgers beat the Giants 3-1.

In the American League, Oakland's Jim Hunter reached the 20-victory mark for a third straight year by hurling the Athletics to a 5-4 victory over the California Angels.

Hunter now has a 20-4 won-lost record for a .833 percentage, the best in the league. He was last year's ERA leader with a .750 mark, and no AL pitcher has led in that department since Lefty Grove did it for three consecutive years, 1929-31. Chief Bender, also with the old Philadelphia Athletics, did it in 1910-11.

In other games, Baltimore Orioles downed Detroit Tigers 6-2, Kansas City defeated Minnesota Twins 4-3, Boston Red Sox topped New York Yankees 4-2, Cleveland Indians overcame Milwaukee Brewers 6-5 and Texas Rangers beat Chicago White Sox 7-2.

Carefree Fijians Coming

Selectors Don Burgess and Tom Browne have named the Victoria Crimson Tide Rep team to play Fiji here on Thursday, Sept. 27.

The Fijian national team on its way home from a short tour of Britain and France, will meet the Tide at 8 next Thursday night at Royal Athletic Park in what for Victoria fans could well be the rugby treat of the season.

Playing-coach Alan Rees, now with the University of Victoria Vikings, will be in the fullback berth and the other Tide backs are Tom Lippa and Stu Barber (James Bay Athletic Association), Tim Cummings (Oak Bay Wanderers), Graham Hunter and Gillie Greig (Castaways) and Darryl Noulette (UVic).

The Fijians, who have already scored several impressive wins on their tour of Britain including a 31-0 decision over Swansea in Wales, are famous for their unorthodox style of rugby.

The burly Fijian forwards are orthodox enough in the scrums and lineouts but in the open play, forwards and backs combine in a carefree running and handling spree.

Always fit and skillful and obviously enjoying every minute, the robust Fijians have delighted huge crowds in Britain on this tour, just as they did in 1964 and 1970.

Of the 22 Fijians in the current tour party, 10 played in Vancouver in 1970 when the visitors beat a Canadian XV 35-18 at Swangard Stadium.

The last time the Fijians played in Victoria was in 1964 when they defeated a Canadian team, captained by Burgess, 13-3.

PCOs Edge 'Runners To Capture Minto Cup

NEW WESTMINSTER, (CP) — Peterborough PCOs staged a third-period drive Tuesday night to defeat Richmond Roadrunners, 9-6, to capture the Minto Cup, emblematic of Canadian junior lacrosse supremacy.

The two clubs, who had split the opening six games of the best-of-seven series, were tied at 6-6 after two periods but Peterborough banged home three unanswered goals in the final session to win.

The PCOs moved ahead, 5-1, in the first period but the roadrunners fought back to tie the score at the end of the second period.

It was a hard-hitting game but the referees were lenient, handing out only 26 minutes in penalties.

Peterborough coach Ben Floyd credited his goaltenders Fred Gardner and Tim Barrie for the series' victory along with Paul Evans, who was named the most valuable player for the seven games.

Evans scored three goals for the third time in the series, including two in the third period to wrap up the game for Peterborough.

In addition to Evans' three goals, Peterborough marksmen were Ken Byers, Gord Duncan and Randy Bryan with two goals each.

Rico Bellusci with two goals and three assists led Richmond with Brian Tasker, Taki Vohalis, Ron Pinder and John Gamble each scoring once.

Richmond won the first game of the series by 10 goals and it looked as if the west would win with no trouble, however the series was moved from the small, noisy Richmond arena to New Westminster where less than the normal number of Richmond fans turned out.

Peterborough won the second game, 16-7, and the third game, 10-9, before Richmond came back with a pair of victories to go ahead in the series.

Then, sparked by excellent net-minding PCOs came back to win the final two games.

Ollie Drops Axe In Cougar Camp

Twelve hopefuls were cut this morning as coaches Ollie Dorohoy of the Western Canada Hockey League's Victoria Cougars and Bob Briscoe of their B.C. Junior League affiliate Nanaimo Clippers went about paring the combined training camp at Memorial Arena.

More cuts were expected later today.

Dorohoy has been especially impressed with the performance of goalkeeper Glen Beuckert and winger Brad Anderson.

Beuckert, who attended the Cougar camp last season but left to play for Penticton Broncos in the B.C. Junior League, is back and in fine shape.

While playing for Penticton, he helped his club to the league and playoff championships and played a strong part in leading Broncos to the Western final of the Centennial Cup playoffs.

Anderson, obtained in an off-season trade with Regina Pats, is big, has a powerful shot and is expected to be the on-ice leader.

Cougars and Clippers will play an exhibition game Saturday in Nanaimo and return to Memorial Arena for a 7 p.m. tussle on Sunday.

Montreal Grabs Oakland Catcher

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos announced Tuesday they have purchased the contract of catcher Jose Morales, 29, from Oakland Athletics of the American League.

Morales will join the Expos today in time for their National League game in Chicago against the Cubs.

Sanderson Injures Back

FITCHBURG, Mass. (AP) — Boston Bruins announced Tuesday that centre Derek Sanderson will be lost through the club's first two pre-season games because of a back sprain suffered in practice scrimmage Monday.

Your Pontiac-Buick dealer invites

Small cars look better than ever!

Going small can be a beautiful experience. Witness the new shape of our economy car ...the 1974 Pontiac Astre. Astre introduces the shape of the future, a new look you'll be seeing plenty of. But for all its great styling and performance, Astre is still an economy car, priced right in there with the imports. Right on!

Your Pontiac-Buick dealer is big on small. And Astre is only part of the story for 1974. There's a small car to fit just about any need.

Ventura, the pocket-size Pontiac. Apollo, Buick's luxury compact. And, for the driver who wants all the excitement going—Firebird and GTO!

Has there ever been a better time to go small?

Looks like mid-size may now be the size!

Today's kind of people will be right at home in '74's like Buick's Century Regal. On-the-go people—today people—who know what they want and refuse to compromise, will recognize the new Pontiac and Buick intermediates as their kind of cars. The new Buick Century Regal 4-door sedan opens the doors of the sporty car to the family man.

And the Wide-Track way with trim-size will become even more popular with the '74 Le Mans.

While Grand Am is as different as it looks.

Heres what's new in full-size cars!

New styling in front, new Coupe roofline, new glamour inside...as in Pontiac Parisienne Brougham. Lots of people continue to hold that full-size is the only size. Where else can you get it all, they ask, except in cars like full-size Pontiacs and Buicks?

Their position strengthens in 1974—with magnificent new styling—with engineering refinements and improvements—and the greatest-ever choice of interior trims.

If your size is full-size, see what's happening at your Pontiac-Buick dealer's. It's your best year yet!

Blackout Fight Warms Up

(Times News Services)

Controversy over a new United States regulation that provides home television of sold-out games in the National Football League is shaping up to be as interesting as some of the on-field action.

Kansas City Chiefs' front office declared Tuesday the team lost $30,000 because of the blackout lift Sunday, and that "may be only the tip of the iceberg."

And in Harrisburg, Pa., two Pennsylvania lawmakers have promised Philadelphia Eagle owner Leonard Tose a battle in his attempt to sell stadium seats with obstructed views — a move aimed at beating the local telecast regulation.

Senators Henry J. Cianfrani and Joseph Smith, both Philadelphia Democrats, said they will introduce legislation banning saleof a block of 500 seats with obstructed views unless the tickets are marked as such and offered at reduced prices.

President Nixon lifted the blackout on televised home games when all seats are sold 72 hours prior to kickoff. Tose reacted by saying he would "live up to the letter of the law."

"I guarantee you that if every one of those seats are not sold, we will not televise locally," Tose said.

The Philadelphia owner's remarks brought the two lawmakers into the act.

At Kansas City, the Chiefs' Jack Steadman, executive vice-president and general manager, said the 15,718 fans who stayed away from the opener against the Los Angeles Rams Sunday caused a $20,000 loss to concessions, $6,000 in parking fees and $4,000 in program sales.

"More important than the financial loss to me is that ticket holders failed to use those tickets for opening day, which proves the effect local television can have when you are competing against it," Steadman said.

Sunday was the first test of the new law.

No one has been able to compete successfully against television, Steadman said.

"If the lifting of the blackout is allowed to continue, pro football will never again have a full stadium," he predicted.

Moore Holds His Spot

LONDON (AP) — The England soccer team retained Bobby Moore as its captain Tuesday, and the West Ham United club, under pressure to sell him for $300,000 or more, decided to keep him too.

"Bobby Moore stays at West Ham," said secretary Eddie Chapman after the club's directors had discussed a situation which has kept the whole British soccer world in a state of excitement for days.

Derby County, English champions in 1972, made an offer for Moore during the summer and West Ham turned it down.

But last weekend Moore was reported ready to make a move, if West Ham agreed.

The club re-emphasized that despite all the publicity and talk of a transfer, Moore had not asked to leave West Ham.

A few hours before the West Ham directors decided to keep Moore, England team manager Sir Alf Ramsey included him among 22 players for a friendly international match against Austria next week.

Moore, England's regular captain for the last eight years, will be playing in his 108th international game.

Island Hunters Face 13 Charges

Conservation officers are cracking down on hunters for infractions of the Fish and Wildlife Act.

Since the buck deer season opened Sept. 8 on Vancouver Island, 13 charges have been laid.

On the mainland 15 charges were laid during the weekend as a record number turned out for the opening of the moose season.

Des Haddleton, regional protection officer at Nanaimo, said two of the charges involved juveniles who were not accompanied by an adult while hunting.

"Under the Wildlife Act, any person under 18 years of age, whether he has passed a hunter's course or not, must be accompanied by an adult," he said. "There have been serious accidents involving juveniles in the past."

He said four other persons were charged with carrying loaded firearms in their vehicles; two for hunting without a permit, and one for shooting an anterless (doe) deer.

Four others were charged for having untagged deer.

For each deer shot, hunters are required to state on the tag the day and month the animal was shot. They are allowed three deer per season.

"This is pure negligence," said Haddleton. "There is no reason for not tagging a deer."

Similar charges were laid against hunters on the mainland.

One man was charged under a new regulation which makes it illegal to kill a game animal within a quarter of a mile reserve along highways.

Another recipe from the Gold Seal Galley

Salmon Rice Loaf

1 7¼ oz. can Gold Seal salmon
2 cups cooked rice
2 eggs, well beaten
2 tblsp. butter
Juice of a lemon
¼ tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. salt

Flake salmon and drain off liquid for use later. Mix salmon with rice and beaten eggs. Add liquid from salmon, melted butter, lemon juice, salt and pepper. Mix gently. Bake in closed casserole at 350°F. for one hour. Serve with tomato sauce, or parsley and egg sauce if desired. Serves 4.

Prairie Waterfowl On Move

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ducks Unlimited (Canada) says ducks still are widely dispersed on smaller ponds and waterholes of the prairies and parklands but concentrations are starting to develop in the staging areas.

The conservation organization's Saskatoon southeast project is holding more than 20,000 mallards and pintails. The Saskatchewan River delta of northwest Manitoba is drawing concentrations of these species as well as widgeon and shovellers.

Whitefront, snow and Canada geese are moving into the big staging marshes of the Hay Lakes and Peace-Athabasca delta in northern Alberta and the first whitefronts are expected any day on the prairies.

Because of late nesting in many areas, there still are flightless mallard broods and there will be flightless bluebills well into late September.

Because of dry spring conditions on the southern prairies, Ducks Unlimited earlier forecast over-all waterfowl production much below the level of the last four years. Its mid-August survey report says a heavy spring run-off will be needed to restore these areas to prime condition but the northern parklands are in excellent shape.

In British Columbia, shallower marshes through the Thompson and Fraser plateaus deteriorated in late summer after a good production year. Above-normal spring run-off will be needed to maintain present population levels.

Meet Josef Caveno...

By JEREMY BOULTBEE

If you have not done so already, meet Josef Caveno — artist, inventor, philosopher.

He is the sort of man one feels has to out-eat at lunch just to keep pace with his dynamo-mind.

A treat.

He and his creations are not unknown to Victorians.

But he is a hard man to catch up with, for one thing; and to nail down with comprehensible conversation for another. It takes at least a lunch — and if he happens to be hungry, all the better.

Like many another artist — but with more to say than many — his talk is shaped around the abstract ideas that come to a sort of apex between physics and metaphysics.

It goes something like this:

"When working with form, one must realize the intangibility as well as the tangibility of the materials available. He must enter that threshold beyond which the inter-action of opposites is felt — past the restricting boundaries of esthetic or numeric values which have led man to the misuse and over-use of that which is to him presumably known."

An idea (the metaphysical) is taken one stage further (the physical) and even at that point one must avoid the pitfall of "thinking linear" — always remaining open to a new and unformulated, or undefined, given.

He opens his eyes wide. There is a flash of the obvious.

"I'm talking of reform," he says.

We box our thoughts. We package them, gift-wrap them maybe — but essentially keep them packed away in cotton wool and mothballs, safe from innovation.

We are not open. Our rhythms have been reduced to a constipated system of 2—4.

We literally accept the two-by-four as the only possibly convenient measure of our cube.

Which is possibly why a man like Caveno started thinking in circles, and open spheres.

"We take a Buckminster Fuller dome, and make a giant edifice of it that defies all our former pre-conceived ideas.

"Liberated at last, we move into this giant sphere . . . and what do we do with it?

"We put in levels and floors and walls, and linear tables and chairs — and thereby defeat the very concept that moved our minds into the open in the first place . . ."

Caveno is actually taking out a world patent on his ingenious spring sphere development.

He has built several prototypes, and a six-foot version of his development will be on display for the next several weeks at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Let your mind move into this sphere. Allow your imagination to expand or contract its size to any dimension.

Then tell yourself that it does not occupy space, but only enclose and define it.

Move this miniature world in any direction. Move through it. Look through it.

Utilize it as a way-station the moment, and some point in space you have not visited before.

Space — motion. Expansion — contraction. Tension — compression.

Rhythm.

Caveno talks about a balance to life. The objects he makes are a physical extension of that most basic rhythm.

Somewhere in all of this is the philosophical concept of man — ancient as the dust — to break ties with linear thought, and move into an open area that is less defined and permits maximum flexibility — both physical and metaphysical.

West Gets Least

By PAUL JACKSON
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The federal public works department has consistently spent more money in the single province of Ontario each year for the past five years than in all the four Western provinces combined.

And, Calgary South MP Peter Bawden was told in an official written government reply to questions he raised, with the exception of the year 1969-70 Ottawa has also spent more money in Quebec than in the entire West combined.

The vast amount of federal spending going into Quebec apparently ignores the fact that the populations of Quebec and the entire West are roughly the same and geographically the West covers a much larger area.

Public Works Minister Jean-Eudes Dube said in 1972-73 Ottawa pumped some $162 million into Ontario and $54 million into Quebec for public works but only a total of $43 million in the four Western provinces combined.

Figures for the first quarter of the 1973-74 fiscal year, which should reflect Ottawa's policies of decentralization, fail to show much change. Ontario received $26 million, Quebec almost $11 million, and Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia combined some $10 million.

The West's $10 million in public works money was out of a complete quarterly total of $51 million — meaning that Ontario alone received more than half the quarterly spending.

Spending in other years was:

—1968-69: Ontario, $103 million; Quebec, $39 million; the West combined, $31 million.

—1969-70: Ontario, $105 million; Quebec, $37 million; the West, $39 million.

—1970-71: Ontario, $123 million; Quebec, $66 million; the West, $26 million.

—1971-72: Ontario, $145 million; Quebec, $57 million; the West, $37 million.

Over the past five years British Columbia has consistently got the largest portion of public works funds allocated to the West.

Hunt Ban Delayed

SURREY (CP) — Surrey council has voted to delay its ban on hunting in the municipality for six months while a joint committee examines the issue.

The move came after a three-hour session during which hunters and environmentalists argued to convince council to alter or remain steadfast in its decision to ban hunting in 1974.

Douglas College environmentalist Dr. Barry Leach presented council with statistics on the dwindling wildfowl population on the lower mainland and called for boards of management which would govern husbandry and hunting in packages — consolidated farms and rural areas.

Gun club spokesmen argued hunting organizations which lease rights from farmers actually insist on more restrictive practices than the municipality.

A committee to examine the feasibility of hunting in Surrey will be appointed by Mayor Bill Van der Zalm and will be made up of representatives of both sides.

Council will consider a report from the committe six months from now.

Nine Butchers Killed in Blast

BADEN-BADEN, Germany (UPI) — An explosion in a slaughterhouse Tuesday killed at least nine butchers and injured a dozen others, police said.

They said the butchers were buried under tons of concrete rubble.

ESKIMOS 'BARGAIN' FOR MORE BEAR TAGS

SPENCE BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — Collective bargaining, over the allotment of polar bear hunting licences to Eskimos, has come to the North.

Commissioner Stuart Hodgson, on a visit to Gjoa Haven during his annual tour of the Central Arctic, was told residents of the community received only seven tags this year while their neighbors at Spence Bay got 22.

The commissioner said he would try to correct the inequity and arranged for representatives of the two communities and the senior wildlife officers at Cambridge Bay to find a more suitable distribution.

"This is probably the first collective bargaining in the history of the Eskimo people," he said.

IBM HITS BACK

NEW YORK (Reuter) — International Business Machine Corp. (IBM) struck out Tuesday at a massive antitrust suit against it as its stock continued to plummet on Wall Street.

The chairman of the giant computer company, Frank Cary, maintained after the stock market closed that the judgment, issued by U.S. district court Judge A. Sherman Chirstensen Monday in Tulsa, Okla., contained serious errors of fact and law.

Judge Christensen ruled that IBM must pay more than $325.5 million to Telex Corp. because IBM had engaged in monopolistic practices that could drive potential competitors in the computer equipment industry out of business.

The judge also set guidelines for IBM to follow so that it would be more competitive in the future.

The attack on the ruling came from IBM, which had refused comment Monday other than to say it would appeal the decision, after IBM stock on the New York Stock Exchange fell 38½ points in two days.

Monday, the issue lost nearly 10 per cent of its value as it fell 26 points to close the day at 272. Tuesday's after trading in IBM was delayed because of all the orders to sell pouring in, the stock fell another 12½ points and closed at 259½.

The stocks of other companies that hold dominant positions in their industries also fell Tuesday. Eastman Kodak stock dropped 3¾ to close at 129½ and the shares of Zerox declined 8¼ to 139¼.

IBM's reaction came in a letter by its chairman to shareholders, issued for corporate headquarters in Armonk, N.Y.

In the letter, Cary said the company had finished reading Judge Christensen's 222-page decision and said that "We are convinced that the judge's ruling against IBM goes far beyond that of any judicial precedent and contains serious errors of fact and law."

"For example," Cary said, "the damages which the judge awarded Telex are scarcely supportable under any theory."

The actual damages cited in the decision — a figure IBM says it does not know how the judge arrived at — were $117.5 million. The actual award to Telex was 352.5 million.

Cary said, "This award, before beng trebled to 352.5 million, suggests Telex could have, in a period of three years, increased its profits more than tenfold. This is a highly unusual growth rate."

The IBM chairman said his company would do everything it could to expedite a reversal of the decision by the U.S. court of the decision by the U.S. court of appeals.

Tories Back Grits on Mortgages

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democrat warnings of an impending tax rip-off on mortgages drew little government reaction in the Commons Tuesday as the Conservatives put on a rare display of support for the minority Liberals.

The rip-off charges came during second-reading debate of a bill the government says will increase the supply of private mortgage money. The Conservatives pledged support for the proposed legislation, guaranteeing its passage.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) said proposed mortgage investment companies, with special tax treatment for their shareholders, make the bill "a tax rip-off."

The bill would establish a Crown corporation to buy and sell residential mortgages. The Federal Mortgage Exchange Corp. would begin with $100 million in capital and $300-million borrowing power.

Provision also is made for special mortgage companies to help individuals and organizations invest in mortgages. The special tax treatment for shareholders of these companies drew the ire of the New Democrats.

Second reading, approval in principle, may come today, but that could be as far as the bill gets for now. The Conservatives were to hold a caucus meeting today to reconsider their opposition to adjoining Parliament.

The Liberals and NDP have indicated they wish to resume the summer recess which began July 27 and was to last until Oct. 15. It was interrupted when the House was recalled Aug. 30 to settle the national rail strike.

Housing Minister Ron Basford, waiting for the last word in the mortgage debate, did not speak before the House adjourned for the night. Neither did any other Liberal.

However, support was expressed by both Conservative and Social Credit spokesmen.

The Commons did give second reading to a bill to exempt certain religious sects from Canada Pension Plan contributions. The proposed legislation affects established religious groups which can prove pension plans are contrary to their beliefs.

Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) opposed his party's official position by voting against the bill.

Mr. Horner said last week that Hutterites, one of the sects involved, are not good Canadians. To exempt them from pension plan payments would be unfair to other businesses.

Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde called the bill a humane measure that will remove an unintended penalty for practising religious freedom.

Taxpayers Eyed Nervously As Hike for Poor Studied

OTTAWA (CP) — Social planners cast a nervous glance at the taxpayer this week as they debated proposal to lift the poor financially closer to higher income groups.

Government officials and members of the Canadian Council on Social Development both said the fate of any income redistribution plan depends on the whim of the taxpayer. Their comments came during the council annual meeting which ended Tuesday.

The council endorsed Tuesday a study group report which called for a federally-financed permanent work opportunity program and two income supplement plans costing $2.7 million to $2.9 billion annually. The report set an income-poverty level which would rise with the average Canadian family income.

The report was critical of the recent government paper on social security for being vague about specific plans for redistributing income.

Toronto lawyer John Godfrey, study group chairman, said Tuesday he would try to appear before the federal-provincial conference of welfare ministers in October to press the council's case.

But, in an interview Godfrey said:

"It depends how much the country will tolerate it."

This was similar to remarks on Monday by A. W. Johnson, deputy welfare minister, who told the council that the government deliberately avoided a specific income plan so taxpayers would not be unduly alarmed.

There were suggestions that government's failure to outline a specific plan could result in a step backward. The gap between rich and poor could widen. But this was denied by Johnson.

Leaders to Meet

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka will leave next week for two weeks of summit meetings in France, Britain, West Germany and the Soviet Union, the foreign ministry anndunced today.

Rail Rates Can Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — An 18-month freeze on rail freight rates does not prevent railway companies from raising agreed charges, Transport Minister Jean Marchand told the Commons Tuesday.

Agreed rates — those contracted between certain companies and railways — total about 25 per cent of freight revenues to the companies.

Marchand made the comment in a reply to John Reynolds (PC—Burnaby-Richmond-Delta).

Reynolds asked why the rail companies increased their agreed rates by six per cent immediately after the 18-month freeze was announced by Marchand this summer.

Safeway Ruling 'Lacking Meat'

EDMONTON (CP) — Limiting the growth of Canada Safeway for the next six years is "like throwing a bone to a dog—I can't see much meat on it," says president Ken Quinn of Horne and Pitfield Foods Ltd.

Horne and Pitfield owns 15 IGA stores and is linked to 65 other IGA stores in the province.

It is second to Safeway in retail operations in Alberta, although in Edmonton and Calgary it is the third-largest chain.

Quinn, of Edmonton, said retail grocery operations in Edmonton and Calgary are close to the saturation point and it takes three years for a new store to break even.

However, three new IGA stores might be built in the next three years.

Safeway now has the "lion's share" of the retail business and the absolute moratorium on growth for the next 3½ years " will not be too effective."

The major benefit of the Alberta Supreme Court order would be to restrict the "saturation advertising" of Safeway, making advertising campaigns of other grocers more effective, Quinn said.

U.S. Firmly Denies Role in Chile Upset

By LAURENCE STERN

WASHINGTON (WP) — The swift toppling of the Allende government in a military coup last week has inevitably touched off speculation about American involvement in the upheaval.

From the White House, from the state department and even from the Central Intelligence Agency there have been stolid denials of U.S. intervention in the Chilean crisis.

Involvement, in the popular imagination, suggests marine landings, cloak-and-dagger operatives, gunboats and paramilitary espionage teams. There has been no evidence, as yet, that any such under U.S. auspices in Chile.

Nonetheless, since its inauguration in 1970, the Marxist government of the late Salvador Allende has been the target of economic policies that have squeezed the fragile Chilean economy to the choke point.

These policies were conceived in an atmosphere of economic strife between the Allende government and a group of large U.S. corporations whose Chilean holdings were nationalized under the terms of Allende's socialist platform.

The instruments for carrying out the sustained program of economic pressure against Allende were the U.S. aid program, the Inter-American Development Bank. the U.S. Export-Import Bank, the World Bank and also private U.S. banking institutions.

Allende himself, in a speech to the United Nations General Assembly last Dec. 4, complained that from the day of his election we have felt the effects of a large-scale external pressure against us, which tried to prevent the inauguration of a government freely elected by the peopele and has tried to bring it down ever since.

The effect, he said, has been to cut Chile off from the world, to strangle the economy and paralyze trade in their principal export, copper, and to deprive the country of access to sources of international financing.

The U.S. economic hard line against Chile was adopted in mid-1971 when the question of compensation for expropriated American properties was still in doubt.

One of the first actions under the new policy was the denial by the Export-Import Bank of a request for $21 million in credit to finance purchase of three Boeing passenger jets by the Chilean Government Airlines, Lan-Chile. The credit position of the airline, according to a U.S. official familiar with the negotiations, was excellent at the time.

In August, 1971, the Ex-Im Bank notified Chile that it would no longer be eligible for new loans and that loan guarantees would be terminated to U.S. commercial banks and exporters doing business with Chile. The bank also cut off disbursements of direct loans that had been previously negotiated by the Frei government, which proceded Allende's term.

Meanwhile, in the Inter-American Development Bank, a $30 million loan application for development of a petrochemical centre was stalled after the U.S. director protested plans to send a technical mission to Chile to evaluate the request. The mission never left.

IADB financing for Chile came to a virtual standstill in 1971 and thereafter, with the exception of two loans of $7 million and $4.6 million to the Catholic and Austral Universities.

Because the United States contributes the lion's share of the Inter-American Bank's development fund, it exercises a virtual veto power over loan requests.

The World Bank pattern was much the same. In August, 1971, the World Bank was scheduled to send a project appraisal mission to Chile to evaluate prospects for a fruit processing facility as part of the agrarian reform program. The mission, according to an authoritative government source, was cancelled in response to state department objections.

Early in 1971 the private banks followed the lead of the international lending organizations. Chile's short term credit float plummeted from $220 million in 1971 to $35 million in 1971.

There were allegations that Chile, under the Allende administration, had become too grave a credit risk for development lending.

Nonetheless in 1971 the United States granted a $5 million line of credit to the Chilean military for purchase of C-130 four-engine transports and in December, 1972, extended an additional $10 million in credit for military activities in 1973.

Chile, one of the heaviest beneficiaries of U.S. aid programs in the world during the 1960's, was reduced to $15 million in aid loans in 1970 and has been granted nothing since. The cut-off in aid credit further darkened the prospects for the Allende government to pay off prior obligations incurred under prior governments.

Credit standards have been variably applied to Latin American countries seeking U.S. and international financing. Bolivia was granted $30 million in aid financing after the coup of conservative Hugo Banzer in August, 1971, even though the economy was in shambles. Brazil qualified for a $50 million development loan program within six weeks after a military junta ousted the Goulart government in 1964 — also at a time when the country's economy was in severe disarray.

JUNTA HEAD RESERVED, MODEST MAN

SANTIAGO (UPI) — Gen. Augusto Pinochet Ugarte, 57, who has taken power in Chile as the head of the new ruling junta, is considered by his friends to be "an old guard officer interested in maintaining the army as an institution with full professional performance."

Three times in the past year he had been in and out of the post of commander in chief of Chile's traditionally politically non-aligned army.

Each time he inherited the top military post when Gen. Carlos Prats Gonzalez resigned in order to take up cabinet assignments in the shaky government of Marxist President Salvador Allende.

In the end, Pinochet, along with the chiefs of the other military and national police branches, decided to depose Allende and establish military rule, Prats was banished to Argentina.

Pinochet, an army veteran of 40 years, is known as a quiet, reserved and modest man.

He has written a history, "The War of the Pacific," describing the conflict between Chile and Peru a century ago and is the author of several school text books. One is a standard text for all Chilean high school students.

Born in Valparaiso on Nov. 25, 1915, Pinochet entered the Chilean Military Academy after graduating from public school. He was commissioned second lieutenant of infantry in 1936 and moved up the promotion ladder with steady advancement.

As Maj. Pinochet in 1955, he was aide to the sub-secretary of war. A year later he was a member of the Chilean military mission to the United States and then transferred to Quito, Ecuador.

Davis Pushes Impact 'Blueprint'

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The federal environment department is trying to make environmental assessment a fact of life for major federal or federally-financed projects such as dams, pipelines, harbors and airports.

Environment Minister Jack Davis revealed Tuesday details of what he calls "a blueprint for environmental assessment" that would require four separate stages of environmental assessment for all major federal or federally-supported undertakings.

The planned new environmental assessment procedure, which would be built right into the government's administration, could then be used to stop or alter such projects merely on environmental grounds.

Most important would be the requirement to do a pre-project assessment, before and not after the project has been given the official go-ahead.

This is not what happened with the controversial James Bay hydro-electric development, for example. And one senior government official suggested Tuesday that if the planned assessment procedure had been in effect a few years ago, Ottawa might have been able to use it to force Quebec to do proper environmental assessment studies before announcing James Bay would go ahead.

Similarly, the decision-making and perhaps even the outcome of the federal government's controversial selection of Pickering as the site for the Toronto-2 international airport might have been different, had the Davis "blueprint" on assessment studies been in effect at the time.

Almost as important as the before-the-fact studies would be a requirement to do post-project assessments, to pick up any mistakes and to put the experience to better use in future projects.

The during-construction phase of assessment would focus on ways to "enhance" use of the environment as well as on ways to minimize the damages of a particular project, Davis explained in an interview.

Proponents of such projects, usually the developers, would be required to foot most of the bill for the mandatory environmental assessment studies under the environment department's scheme, instead of the taxpayer as has happened often in the past.

Davis explained that he plans to test the scheme out on a number of projects and then submit it to cabinet for formal approval and "have it built right into the government's administrative procedures."

This, officials explained later, would make environmental considerations a part of life for federal agencies and for outside groups planning projects which could have significant impact on the environment. It would eventually mean that environmental considerations would often be as important as the more traditional economic concerns in government decision-making.

New Car Spread: 29.1 to 6.8 mpg

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency told U.S. consumers Tuesday they can expect gas mileage in 1974 model cars to range from a top of 29.1 miles per (U.S.) gallon for the Honda Civic to a low of 6.8 miles per gallon for the Oldsmobile Toronado.

The agency released the mileage figures to the public and to the automobile industry. Most auto companies have agreed to start posting the gas mileage figures on stickers inside the windows of new cars in order to help buyers become more conscious of fuel expenditures. The miles per gallon figures were arrived at during EPA tests of new cars to determine how they are complying with clean air standards.

The EPA proposed the mileage figures to help ease the energy situation, which automobiles contribute to by burning 170 million gallons of gasoline every day.

The test figures released today cover approximately 80 per cent of 1974 model cars. The balance will be released when the agency completes all of its tests.

The cars tested were driven 7.3 miles at speeds ranging up to 57 miles per hour. The agency said this is very close to the average automobile trip in the United States of 8.3 miles.

In the 2,000-pound weight class, the Honda Civic, with a 76-cubic inch engine and a manual four-speed transmission, showed the best fuel economy at 29.1 miles per gallon. The worst fuel economy in that weight class was the MG Midget at 21.7.

In the 2,250-pound class, the Datsun B 210, with a 79-cubic inch engine and manual four-speed transmission, came out on top at 24.9 m.p.g. Toyota's Corolla-2 sedan was worst at 18.8 m.p.g.

Here are the other weight classes and the most economical car in each one:

—2,500 pounds: Subaru SW, 83 cu. in., manual 4-speed, 22.7 m.p.g.

—3,000 pounds: Chevrolet Vega Kammback, 140-cu. in., automatic three-speed, 20.

—3,500 pounds: Ford Comet, 200 cu. in., manual three-speed, 19.9.

—4,000 pounds: Ford E-100, 240 cu. in., manual three-speed, 18.9.

—4,500 pounds: Chevrolet G-20 sport van, 250 cu. in., automatic three-speed, 12.4.

—5,000 pounds: Buick Century wagon, 350 cu. in., automatic three-speed, 16.7.

—5,500 pounds: Cadillac El Dorado, 500 cu. in. automatic three-speed, 10.4. The worst mileage in this class, and among all of those tested, was the Oldsmobile Toronado, 455 cu. in. automatic three-speed at 6.8 m.p.g.

MP Urges Safeway Ad Probe

OTTAWA (FP) — A suggestion that the "saturation advertising" tactics of Safeway grocery stores in western Canada should be investigated by the federal government's combines division was made in the Commons Tuesday by Grace MacInnes (NDP — Vancouver-Kingsway).

Addressing her question to Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Herb Gray she said "In view of the action just taken by the Supreme Court of Alberta in ordering Canada Safeway to reduce its domination of the retail grocery markets in Calgary and Edmonton, is the minister's department investigating the operations of Canada Safeway in other provinces where it is established with a view to determining the need to protect the consumer?"

Gray said that under the provisions of the act it is not possible for the minister to indicate what investigations are in progress. He added that he was confident the director and his staff were actively carrying out their responsibilities.

Opposition members groaned at this reply. Arnold Peters (NDP — Timiskaming) snapped "You have never given a decent answer in this House."

MacInnis said, "In view of the Alberta court order restricting the amount of money Canada Safeway may spend on advertising, particularly saturation advertising in Alberta does the minister contemplate similar investigation and restriction elsewhere?"

Gray said he did not think there is anything he could add to his previous answer.

Opposition members shouted jeers which came out in Hansard as "Oh, oh."

SHOPLIFTING

. . . UNTIL YOU'RE CAUGHT!

When a shoplifter is apprehended the crime is publicized. It results in a heavy fine, and could lead to a jail sentence.

Even though the identity of a juvenile who commits a crime is not made public, an offence is still an offence, and is dealt with by the authorities.

Juvenile Courts have the power to take you out of your home and send you to a correction school. They can also transfer juvenile offenders to Adult Court, where young people are treated as adults. They can be given jail sentences, and often are. ONE SHOPLIFTING CONVICTION CAN RUIN YOUR FUTURE!

Don't risk a police record, which will stay with you all of your life and follow wherever you go.

Think Before You Shoplift!

BUTCHART GARDENS. OPEN EVERY DAY 9 A.M. - 9:30 P.M. Many pleasing features combine to add to your pleasure. Regular admission at the International Entrance covers them all: Entertainment . . . Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars" . . . romantic after-dark illumination . . . 6 gardens — fabulous Sunken Garden, English Rose, stately Italian, quaint Japanese, Lake and Stage Show Gardens . . . plus the Begonia Bower, Show Greenhouse, fascinating Seed and Gift Shop. Restaurant and coffee bar service available.

BUTCHART GARDENS. KNOWN THROUGHOUT THE WORLD FOR THEIR INCREDIBLE BEAUTY . . . EVER CHANGING, ALWAYS LOVELY! Skilful planning, constant replanting, dedicated gardeners pooling their ideas and knowledge, keep them that way week after week, season after season. Developed from an old abandoned limestone quarry over half a century ago, they have grown to become one of the world's most unusual, written about, talked about, admired attractions.

BUTCHART GARDENS ROMANTIC NIGHT LIGHTING. As darkness takes over, a thousand hidden lights combine with the moon and stars, the hills, trees and shrubs, lakes, lily ponds and fountains, to create a fairyland, softly scented by the flowers — a spectacle so unusual, so grand it's indescribable! Featuring the Sunken Garden and the spectacular Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars." This alone is worth coming to see.

BUTCHART GARDENS FLORAL RESTAURANT. Open every day 11 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., serving delicious lunches, afternoon teas, and delightful suppers in the evening. Continuous Snack and Coffee Bar service.

BUTCHART GARDENS SPARKLING ENTERTAINMENT. Adding a touch of hilarity in a musical way the "Butchart Gardeners" will entertain you Mon.-Fri. inclusive 5:30-7:30 p.m. On Saturday and Sunday afternoon 1:00-3:00 p.m., a group of zany but very talented musicians "The Butchart Buskers" with John Dunbar, will provide the fun. Plus color films every evening of the week at dusk. "Helicopter Canada" or "Mountains of the Sea."

BUTCHART GARDENS SUGGESTS: Combine it all into one grand, thrifty outing — the Gardens by daylight . . . entertainment . . . romantic night lighting . . . featuring the Sunken Gardens . . . and the Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars". Regular admission covers it all. For added pleasure, dine in the Floral Restaurant.

Girl, 8, Jailed for Stabbing

GLASGOW, Scotland (UPI) — The sheriff looked down sternly at Mary Cairns in the hushed courtroom and pronounced sentence: 18 months in detention for stabbing her girlfriend.

Mary Cairns is eight years old.

"I want my mother, I want my mother," Mary screamed Tuesday as she was carried by a policeman from Glasgow sheriff court after pleading guilty to stabbing 11-year-old Morag Brown with a knife.

Mary's mother, Mrs. Helen Cairns, wept when Glasgow Sheriff Archibald Bell passed sentence.

"I could not believe it when wee Mary was carried from the court," Mrs. Cairns said. "I wanted to run to her. I just broke down."

Morag, who suffered a partially collapsed lung in the stabbing and spent five days in a hospital, said after sentencing: "We used to be friends and I'm sure we could be friends again. I'm sorry she's gone away for so long."

In Scotland the age of criminal responsibility begins at eight. Mary appeared in an adult court because of the severity of the charge, court officials said.

WINNIPEG — John Diefenbaker enjoyed his 78th birthday Tuesday, and so did some 500 people gathered to help him celebrate.

The capacity crowd at a fund-raising dinner for the Youth Parliament of Manitoba and Northwestern Ontario waited nearly 3½ hours — two hours longer than scheduled — to hear the former Conservative prime minister speak and found the wait worth well their while.

OTTAWA — Federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan has given himself until Monday to make up his mind whether he will toss his hat into the Ontario Liberal leadership race.

The 49-year-old farmer from southern Ontario who is well liked by Canadian farmers in his job as minister of agriculture, has acknowledged that he is "under considerable pressure" to enter the Ontario leadership contest.

SEATTLE — Canada is not anti-American but sometimes appears that way to largely uninformed U.S. citizens, Canadian Ambassador Marcel Cadieux said Tuesday.

Cadieux said his nation faces two major problems — defining its relationship with the United States and developing a self-image.

"Although much of what we do in Canada may be interpreted as anti-American, it is not," Cadieux said in an interview. "I am often told by my American friends that we must project the image of Canada better than we do. But in the end, it is the Americans who must inform themselves better about what's going on in Canada."

STOCKHOLM — Sweden's new king, 27-year-old Carl Gustav, formally succeeds to the throne today with his country locked in its biggest political crisis in years.

Prime Minister Olaf Palme and his ministers are among those to take part in the ceremony, and it may take their minds off the battle of survival facing the Social Democrat government after last Sunday's dead-heat election.

'GHOSTS' CHASE SECURITY GUARD

TORONTO (CP) — A 20-year-old security guard posted outside a 150-year-old house in nearby Thornhill says he is quitting his job because "it's enough to send me to a psychiatrist."

The house is Annswell, former home of faith-healer Holy Ann Preston, who died in the early 1900s. It is to be demolished soon to make room for a condominium project.

The security guard, John Sears, said he keeps hearing unusual noises coming from the house. And he thinks they are ghosts, one of them Holy Ann herself.

"I don't want to believe in ghosts but I keep hearing noises," Sears said. "I think they (the developers) should leave the house alone. If they don't, Holy Ann will be mad."

Sears said that two weeks ago while making his nightly patrol of the grounds he saw "a wisp of pitch black smoke in the shape of a woman floating five feet above the ground toward the back woods."

"Other times I've heard the windows being opened and people arguing in high-pitched, blurry voices. And no one is in there."

He called his boss Monday night to say he is quitting.

"I'm not going to stay here for anything," he said. "It's enough to send me to a psychiatrist."

Elizabeth Smith, a 26-year-old school teacher who owns the house, is trying to relocate it to save it from the developer's bulldozer, but has been unable to find a suitable site.

She says the "ghosts" are becoming panicky about the demolition plans.

Mill Not Rail Strikes Have Hit Newsprint

MONTREAL (CP) — Strikes at Canada's newsprint industry have meant the loss of about 250,000 tons of production so far this year but railway strikes have not significantly delayed newsprint deliveries from Canadian mills.

A Canadian Pulp and Paper Association spokesman said Tuesday the lost production is a small percentage of Canada's total annual output of about 10 million tons but added that the shortage came at a time when newsprint users buy newsprint for heavy fall consumption.

The strikes, which have hit Abitibi Paper Ltd., Canadian International Paper and Price Co. Ltd. mills among others, forced newspapers and magazines in the U.S. and Canada to either suspend some editions or reduce newsprint consumption.

Demands for higher wages and increased benefits have dominated the disputes between the producers, which export most of their newsprint to the U.S., and their employees, most of whom belong to the United Paperworkers International Union (UPIU).

The CPPA spokesman said it is unlikely that the lost production can be made up in a year in which North American mills have been operating at near capacity to meet heavy demands for newsprint.

Newsprint users would probably have to watch their consumption of newsprist this fall but shortages would be alleviated, he added.

A strike against Abitibi by UPIU members was settled earlier this month but CIP mills in Quebec and New Brunswick remain closed in a continuing dispute. Another 6,000 employees of Consolidated Bathurst and the Eastern Canada Newsprint Group are due to negotiate new pacts.

The Abitibi settlement, which has been ratified by most of the 17 locals involved in the dispute, gives UPIU members annual 8.5-per-cent increases during the two-year contract and increased fringe benefits.

A union spokesman described the settlement with Abitibi, one of the nation's largest newsprint producers, as a basis for talks with other producers.

Negotiations continued Tuesday between CIP and the UPIU. A union spokesman said the fact talks were continuing indicated some progress had been made.

The union said in a statement its priorities is the talks are increased pension benefits, job security, a two-year agreement and the inclusion of a cost-of living escalator clause.

New $100 Bonds Return $239.50

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will put its new issue of Canada Savings Bonds on sale Oct. 3 with a higher interest rate that will return $239.50 for every $100 bond held to full, 12-year maturity.

The finance department said the 1973-74 bonds will yield an average interest rate of 7.54 per cent, compared with 7.30 per cent on last year's issue.

A total of $2.1 billion in Canada Savings Bonds were sold last year, down $500,000 from the year before.

"Sales vary each year depending on how attractive the bonds are compared with other interest rates," said a finance department spokesman.

Bonds can be purchased in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $25,000, said the anouncement by Finance Minister John Turner.

"The maximum individual purchase will remain at $50,000, and the bonds may be acquired only by individuals who are bona fide residents of Canada and by estates of deceased persons," the announcement said.

Interest rates will be seven per cent for the first year (up from 5½ last year), 7½ per cent in each of the next six years (up from seven last year), 7¾ for the following three years (up from 7½ and eight per cent the final two years (up from 7¾ per cent in last year's issue.

The higher interest rates reflect the rising of interest rates throughout the country's economy this year and the government's efforts to make the savings bonds more attractive.

While other securities may pay more, many Canadians buy savings bonds because government backing makes them more secure.

Stitches in Time for Fall

By ANN DUNSMUIR
Times Staff

Sweaters girls are in fashion again but there is more sweater than girl to the 1973 version.

Sweaters in co-ordinated colors are layered for indoor wear and teamed with matching, heavyweight outdoor sweaters inspired by the Cowichan and Mexican sweater jackets.

Twin sets for indoor and outdoor wear are co-ordinated by dyed to match colors although patterns often vary.

The new fall and winter colors are deep burgundy, camel, black, navy, forest green, reddish brown, dunhill red, belvedere blue, loden green, and rust.

Shirts are made up in soft synthetic jerseys or wool challis for a softer, more feminine look to match the new pleated or A-line skirts.

Dresses are also pleated or A-line with the latest length of daytime wear set two inches above the knee. Both daytime and evening dresses often feature matching cardigans.

Pants are straight legged ad cuffs are on the way out. Only 30 per cent of pants shown in the misses departments are cuffed although cuffs are still populor in the less expensive junior departments.

The stress on sweaters means knitted accessories in bulky yarns and fancy stitches. Stores are featuring knitted cloches, cuffed turbans, berets and small all-round brim styles reminiscent of the twenties. The hats are matched with four to eight button knitted gloves in flat, cable and popcorn stitches and long woolen scarves.

In fact women who tend to their knitting should have no trouble making this winter's best dressed list.

The sweater look means a break for women fighting the rising cost of living. Two or three good sweaters combined with pants and a skirt in co-ordinated colors can be mixed and matched for a complete winter wardrobe for approximately $100.

The outfits can be mixed and matched to suit any occasion from theatre parties to wiener roasts. The clothes are available for $100 at one of Victoria's largest and oldest department stores. (Photos by John McKay)

It's Official: Men Are Weaker Sex

LONDON (AP) — The British male may have known it in his heart for years. But now it is official — he is the weaker sex.

At least that is the word from the British Medical Association.

The association estimated Monday that the average British male can expect to live only 66 years. Women in this country on the other hand can expect to live to the ripe old age of 72.

The trouble is, the association said in a booklet called Family Doctor, the British male is far more likely to keel over suddenly from heart disease, cancer, a stroke or an accident.

That was the bad news.

The good news, the association reported, is that despite all these problems, the British male's life expectancy has increased by 2.4 years since 1948.

On top of a shorter life span the British male has a long list of problems which may include constipation, headaches, insomnia, impotence and also stress at work. The booklet sets out ways to relieve the difficulties.

It said that generally a married man has a much better health than a single man.

"The importance of communication in a happy marriage cannot be too highly stressed," the booklet added.

"Take the time to talk to your wife about the things that matter to you and to listen when she talks about the things that matter to her."

On sex, the booklet said impotence can occur for the most trivial reasons, but it "is just a transient thing. It is not a sign of anything except that you are tired or drunk or not feeling too good.

"Occasional impotence is nothing to worry about."

Many people believe impotence is inevitable in old age.

"This is not true," the booklet emphasized in capital letters.

"If you don't want to lose it, use it," was a family doctor's blunt recommendation.

The booklet admitted that no one knows exactly why man's life expectancy is less than that of a woman.

"But it almost certainly lies in the difference in biological makeup and in life-style between the sexes," it suggests.

"Although a woman will probably continue to work in the house for all her active life, while a man retires at 65, she is less subject to the stresses and strains that beset her husband.

"Also, he may face occupational hazards — his work may be dirty, or very strenuous, or even dangerous."

The booklet outlined a series of recommended daily exercises and concluded with five rules to give man healthy living:

Don't smoke, especially cigarettes.

Eat a balanced, non-fattening diet.

Drink if you must, but only in moderation.

Take regular exercise.

And stay cheerful.

Professor Tags Stuttering As a Physical Impediment

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

It's not what he's saying, but the way he's saying it that his listener is concentrating on.

And as the stutterer knows from bitter experience, somewhere along the line a note of either sympathy or frustration can creep into his listener's answers.

The stammerer is well acquainted with the reaction; he's dealt with it since he first started to formulate words, says Dr. Beverly Timmons, a professor of education at university of Victoria.

Then parents started to correct him—they were afraid of having a stuttering child. Anxiety about the simple act of talking began to compound the situation.

Dr. Timmons says therapy has tended toward speech therapy — a long-term process — and psychiatric counselling.

She believes, however, the impediment is not psychologically produced, but a physiological problem having to do with bone and tissue formation.

Anxiety, in that case, simply acts as a catalyst and the words stop flowing easily.

She will spend the next 18 months investigating what she refers to as "a foul-up in communication" with a $23,500 grant awarded to UVic from the chicago-based Spencer Foundation.

The mechanisms of her research range from a modified tape recorder and time clock equipment to complicated computer systems that print pictures — or topographic maps — of voice sounds and stresses.

It evolves around a phenomenon called delayed auditory feedback and the tape recorder can give the non-stutterer such a complete understanding of the impediment that he begins stuttering uncontrollably.

Head locked between earphones, the subject spews words into the microphone only to be stopped short when the message is fed back through the earphones a split-second later. Concentration on the next word is next to impossible.

"To the stutterer being hooked up to that kind of tape recorder is a relaxing experience."

Though use of the equipment as therapy is premature Dr. Timmons foresees the time when the recorder can be used to motivate a stutterer to prolong words, feedback can be cut down and new habit patterns taught.

To prove her theory she will conduct experiments between five stutterers and five non-stutterers, and with the equipment measure differences in feedback timing and anxiety.

Hopefully, she says, she will be able to recommend therapy when the project's over.

Rail Service Wanted Back

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — The people in the pioneer communities of this area provided land and $1 million nearly 100 years ago for rail service they thought would be in "perpetuity."

"Perpetuity ended as far as the two railroad companies are concerned in November, 1970," when rail service to the area was stopped, says Robert Campbell, head of the Owen Sound Chamber of Commerce transportation committee.

A growing uproar is being heard from communities and organizations in the area for Canadian National Railways or CP Rail to reinstate passenger service to the area.

Stamp Honors McClung of the 'Famous Five'

elizabeth forbes

NELLIE McLUNG wrote 14 books and was probably the first Canadian to make money as an author. This photograph was taken shortly before her death in Victoria in 1951 at age 77.

A Canadian stamp issued earlier this month to mark the 100th anniversary of the birth of Nellie McClung, should give every women's organization that has fought — and is still fighting — for equal rights and opportunities, a feeling of pride in the pioneer work done for them by this great feminist and others like her.

We cannot lay claim to Nellie McClung as a native daughter, although in her twilight years, she and her husband did live in a delightful Gordon Head home named Lantern Lane. (There was a lantern, too, mounted above what was once the barn at the end of a long drive.)

However, we can take pride in the fact that she was prominent in that group of Canadian women who fought long and hard for female suffrage.

Pamphlet put out by the Post Office for the stamp issue, tells us this in brief with other accomplishments and honors of Nellie McClung, including the fact that through her leadership Manitoba became the first province in Canada to grant the vote to its women.

Story of that campaign is history now. It included petitions, speech making, ridicule and even a mock parliament.

As a small tribute, I'd like to tell you a ittle of it here.

Mrs. McClung was young when the campaign started. Full of fire and energy.

It was she who took the first petition to the Premier of Manitoba, Sir Roblin Redmond, and pleaded with him to sponsor a bill for women's rights.

He called her a conceited young woman and refused to even allow her to speak to members of his cabinet.

So, with a group of equally dedicated Manitoba women she activated a women's political equality league in the province.

Good speakers were gathered in. They toured the province, talked to women in rural communities and gained not only their support but that of the men and their farm groups.

In Winnipeg a large public meeting was organized and there they resorted to ridicule, a mock parliament where men were begging women legislators for the vote.

It was a burlesque that hit the headlines and made history. Mrs. McClung impersonated the premier and used some of his own words, spoken the day before in answer to a delegation she had led to the legislature.

That effort was conceded to be the turning point in the campaign. Very soon after, in January, 1916, Manitoba women won the right to vote.

Another major battle in which Nellie McClung played a prominent part was the one to have women declared "persons" within the meaning of the British North America Act.

The epic fight started when Emily Murphy of Edmonton, first woman magistrate in the British Empire, had her first decision appealed in the Alberta courts on the grounds she was not a person according to the meaning of that word in the BNA Act. Therefore, under the law, she was not eligible to sit as a magistrate.

The question went before the Appeal Court of Alberta where it was decided that Mrs. Murphy was a "person" in that province, at least.

Soon after, when Canadian women were granted the vote in federal elections and became eligible to sit in the House of Commons, the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada sent a resolution to the federal government urging the appointment of women to the Senate.

Reply came back that women were not "persons" within the meaning of the BNA Act and therefore were not eligible for appointment to the Senate.

Emily Murphy took up that challenge and in 1927, with Nellie McClung (by then living in Alberta with husband and family) and three other prominent women in the province, instituted a spirited campaign.

First they took the matter to the Supreme Court of Canada where again the decision was that women were not qualified as "persons."

Nothing daunted, they next sent a petition to the final Court of Appeal, the Privy Council of Great Britain.

There Lord Sankey, at the time Chancellor of Great Britain, ruled that in the interpretation of the Act "persons" included "women."

It was a dinstinct triumph for the five fighting women — "The Famous Five" as they are now spoken of in history. And I particularly like the statement made to the press on their behalf by Emily Murphy, when the decision of the Privy Council was known.

She said: "It should be made clear that we, and the women of Canada whom we had the high honor to represent, are not considering the pronouncement of the Privy Council as standing for a sex victory, but, rather as one which will now permit our saying "we" instead of "you" in the affairs of state."

Shortly after, Cairine Wilson of Ottawa was named Canada's first woman senator.

Today, if you stand at the entrance to the Senate Chamber in the House of Parliament at Ottawa, and look to the left, you will see on the wall a bronze plaque that is witness to the strength of purpose and the courage of "The Famous Five."

It was placed there in 1938 by the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

At the unveiling, Nellie McClung, then one of two surviving members of the five, was an honor guest.

Her name is on that plaque with Henrietta Muir Edwards of Macleod, Emily Murphy of Edmonton, Louise C. McKinney of Claresholm and Irene Parlby of Alix.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Thursday, Sept. 20

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What you thought could be delayed now commands attention. Emphasis is on completion, especially where legal-property matters are concerned. Gemini, Virgo persons may be in picture. Settle basic issues. Get to heart of matters.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Older relative may be in transit. You could receive message requesting personal service. Keep peace in the family. By giving, you also will receive. Know it and respond accordingly. Don't neglect medical, dental care.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be discriminating. Choose quality over quantity. Pisces, Virgo persons could be in picture. Accent is on money arrangements. One you care for has tendency to be extravagant. Know when to draw line. You will understand.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may have some freedoms curtailed — but this will be voluntary. You assume added responsibility. You direct and organize. You build for greater future security. Don't promise more than can be delivered. Capricorn could figure prominently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You are able to complete project. Agreement is reached with one behind the scenes. Aries, Libra persons could play key roles. Be a self-starter. Stop dwelling on "what might have been." Control your own destiny.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Friend may give you facts of life. Be appreciative instead of resentful. Some of your desires are subject to revision, mainly due to cost factors. Young person does care but has no idea about money and how it gets that way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Follow through on plan which enlists aid of one who taught you in past. Aquarian might play key role. Accent is on career, special project, standing in community. Co-operate in civic project. State views to person in authority.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Before embarking on long-range project, check what has occurred behind scenes. There may be factors which make proposal quiet different from surface appearances. Gemini, Sagittarius persons may be in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Specifics are highlighted. You get facts minus sugarcoating. This is to your advantage. Respond accordingly. Involves mate, partner and question of money. Surprise is due. It is of unusual nature and one romantically concerned is behind "plot."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Refuse to lose by expecting something for nothing. Be aware of legal implications. Spotlight is on co-operation, public relations, joint efforts — and marriage. Take time to analyze. Reject the superficial.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Home and domesticity dominate. Make fair concession to family member. Strive for harmony. Taurus, Libra are likely to be involved. Person close to you confides secret. Don't cast first stone. Listen and comprehend.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Good lunar aspect now coincides with understanding of basic emotions. Friend could make demands. Do what you can short of lending money. Romance is in picture. Your ego swells. You feel good and meaningful commitment is received.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are likely to be musical, moody and somewhat of a psychologist. In November, domestic adjustment is made which could change your lifestyle. You generally are frank, direct and capable of handling intricate details. You attract to you persons born under Capricorn and Cancer. You are loyal to family. You must stop brooding about the past. Your future is promising and some exciting events, upcoming, will make you realize this is true.

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By DR. W. ALVAREZ

At this time of the year, many thousands of people suffer a good deal from hay fever — that miserable allergy that causes the person to sneeze, cough, and have running eyes, and generally to feel miserable. Actually, hay fever is not a good name for it, because it is generally caused by ragweed, which can shoot forth billions of fine, powdery, yellowish pollen grains, but some people can have trouble in the spring or summer because of allergies to tree, grass or other pollens or mold spores.

People who can take leave from work for a month will often go to some place like Duluth or San Francisco or Denver where there is no ragweed. In a pamphlet I received from the Long Island Jewish Medical Centre, New Hyde Park, L.I., N.Y. 11040, I see a fine list of suggestions for people who are sensitive to pollens.

For instance, such people should keep their doors and windows closed, especially on dry, windy days, and if going out, should wear glasses, which can keep pollen from blowing into the eyes and starting tears coming and the nose running.

An air purifier can be helpful, and, also, an air conditioner. It is a good idea to turn it on and let it run for a few hours before spending time in the room. Naturally, while riding in a car, keep the windows closed.

On days when there is much pollen in the air, the wise thing is to stay indoors if possible. One should stay away from all sources of strong odor, such as insect sprays, detergents, ammonia water, or deodorizing sprays. Naturally, it is not a good idea to do gardening on such a day.

Keep a record of unusual foods eaten to see if any of them make your hay fever worse; people often have trouble with fresh fruits and spices. See if you are sensitive to certain pillows or carpets or blankets. Synthetic and cotton carpets generally cause less trouble than wools. Avoid alcoholic drinks, because alcohol tends to dilate blood vessels, as pollens do. Don't smoke, and try to keep from becoming overtired. Wear nose clips if you are going to swim in chlorinated water.

Also, if you see ragweed growing in your yard, pull it out.

Fortunately, today there are a number of drugs which can help to dry up a person's runny nose, and cut down some on his miseries.

Cards and Letters Keep on Coming

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for asking us senior citizens what our biggest problems are, and if we have none, how we manage to enjoy life.

Just had my 74th birthday and never felt better in my life. I walk a mile a day, stay away from boring old people, desserts, and redheaded women. I enjoy a little nip every evening before dinner, but never touch a drop before noon, no matter who's celebrating what. ART.

DEAR ABBY: My biggest problem is finding enough time to do the many interesting and helpful things that retirement makes possible. I've been retired for two years and I am busier now than when I was working full-time.

The secret of a happy old age is to try to forget the years, the infirmities, and to bury yourself in the service of others. Churches and community organizations are begging for help. Everyone can be a volunteer — even if he's bed-fast. There is always someone worse off than you! MRS. J. W. H.

DEAR ABBY: I am 67 years old, and I am crazy. I got this way taking care of my mother who is 92. She is positively the most impossible woman who ever lived. Unfortunately, she is in better health than I am. I'd sign this but she'd kill me. STUCK.

DEAR ABBY: My problem wasn't mentioned in your list. It's impotence, which causes many of us men to feel depressed and depected. We love our wives, but we can't perform. After the doctor completes our checkups, he smiles and says: "Sex is all in your head." That's humbug!

Here we are in Florida, home of the Fountain of Youth, but like Ponce de Leon, we can't find the well. READY, WILLING, BUT NOT ABLE.

DEAR ABBY: I'm only a kid of 92. Do I qualify for senior citizenship? I don't have any problems, but I've got a lot of relatives who are going to have plenty when I die. I'm leaving everything to the church. GRANDPA

DEAR ABBY: Now that I'm retired, I've never been happier. I went back to school and took German and typing and even a course in electricty. I've studied handwriting analysis, too. I re-roofed my own home, ran the concrete and made by own patio, put up my own fence, and did my own landscaping.

I do temporary office work, not because I need the money, but because I like to get out and see what's going on in the world. I've taken genealogy jaunts and compiled 23 notebooks on my family tree. One's mental attitude has a lot to do with one's engery. And having a great grandmother who lived to be 101 didn't hurt either. (P.S. I'm a woman.) MAKING OUT.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is controlling my anger when people refer to me as a "senior citizen." Whoever thought up that ridiculous label? I am 89 years old, and I'm still active. I keep my aches and pains to myself, take an interest in my home, my church, and my community and do what I can for the other fellow. That's all it take to stay young. HAPPY

DEAR ABBY: I am 83 and have no problems. Death took my two good wives. Did not dare to try for a third. Afraid I'd get a lemon. I bowl in four leagues and enjoy church. I give better than one tenth of my income to God because He lets me live well. ANDY

DEAR ABBY: You ask senior citizens to tell you their troubles. Money? It's not stretching as far as it used to. Health? Even machines wear out. I live alone and make the best of it. Boredom? Not really. I sew, play cards, work crossword puzzles, watch TV, read a lot, and love to write letters. I also do my own housekeeping and take the bus to go places. I am only 82. I am also your late mother's cousin. BERTHA RUSHALL MacFARLAND

DEAR ABBY: I'm an "older woman" who stands 5 feet 8 inches tall, and I cannot find a dress to cover my knees! C.P.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 78-year-old lady, living alone. And my biggest problem is finding someone to turn my mattress. SEATTLE.

DEAR ABBY: I am doing time in jail. Finally I have been granted permission to write you! It took a year and a change to another facility to do it.

This letter is typewritten. I learned to type in prison. Besides this, I have learned that I am not the only one in my little world who wants a better life for himself. But some inmates are not yet awake to the fact that even in the worst of prisons there are programs for education and improvement for those who want them. I have been in the worst of prisons, and I found that as long as I behaved myself and respected the rules, I was fairly treated.

Much to my amazement, I got less respect from some of my fellow inmates! These are the same guys who spoke of getting it together and being concerned for one another. Some who called for brotherhood, and being treated like men — not animals, forgot what being a man was when it came to riots — and I've been in several. I never was responsible for any of the uprisings in prisons, but I do know that most of them are lead into a blank wall!

There is an old saying: "If you can't do the time, don't do the crime!" — Got It Together.

It is easy to take good pictures of infants, because they ignore the camera.

The richly illustrated 24-page booklet "Snapshots of Babies and Children" helps you take natural pictures from the day your baby arrives. It suggests that during the first few months, when little ones grow so fast, you take pictures every week. After that, till his first birthday, every second or third week is probably enough.

Even while you are still in hospital you can take pictures of lasting interest. If you want to photograph through the nursery window, shoot at an oblique angle to the glass, this eliminates irritating flash reflections.

The booklet suggests many situations which yield worthwhile memories, like the day you take your baby home, your baby's first bath and his first attempt at feeding himself.

When taking children's pictures, close in as much as you can and shoot while they are absorbed in some activity. The booklet assures you that both indoors as well as outdoors the everyday activities of children can give you some of the best pictures. You don't have to wait for a party or special holiday.

Send your request to: Photo Information Services, Kodak Canada Ltd., 3500 Eglinton Avenue West, Toronto 15, Ontario. Please allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

Potato Is More Than Just a Calorie Maker

By HILDA BEASTALL

Potatoes have long been known as an easily available source of vitamins B and C, and of several minerals, too, but some people allow the caloric rating to overshadow the food value. Since calories are as necessary to life maintenance as the vitamins, let's make use of potatoes.

To conserve the best value of this vegetable, scrub the tubers instead of peeling. Steam, boil or bake in their skins.

When I pan-cook potatoes quickly on top of stove, I leave the skins on and the whole thing goes through the hand mouli grinder.

Potatoes are versatile enough to go into pies, cakes, cookies, casseroles, stuffings, scones, bread and omelets.

Here is a recipe for Potato Bread, making a most pleasantly textured and flavored loaf and buns from the same batch.

Keep half cup of mashed potato from the previous day. If no potato water available, use powdered skim milk and water instead.

POTATO BREAD

1 c. potato water or skim milk
¾ tsp salt
1 tsp sugar
1 Tbsp soft margarine
1 pkt or 1 Tbsp yeast
¼ c. tepid water
2 c. unbleached flour
½ c. mashed potatoes
2 c. wholewheat flour

Scald potato water or skim milk made with powder, and stir in salt, sugar, margarine. Cool to tepid. Meanwhile, sprinkle yeast on quarter cup tepid water and leave in warm place until bubbly on top, about 10 minutes.

Next stir yeast mixture into the now tepid margarine mixture. When dissolved, stir in 2 cups of flour with wooden spoon, and the potato which has been well softened with a fork.

Work in remainder of flour with spoon until all is smooth and elastic. Cover with warm cloth or plate and let stand in warm place free of draught, up to 85 deg. F. to rise (about 1½ hours) until double in bulk.

Stir down with spoon. Well grease a 9x5x3 loaf pan and half fill with dough. Cover with cloth or plate. Remainder of dough makes small round buns to cook on greased cookie sheet, or to put into large greased muffin pans. Cover the buns with plastic wrap and allow both the loaf and buns to rise again to double in bulk in a warm place. This time about 45 minutes.

Bake in 375 deg. oven for about 30 minutes. The buns take a few minutes less.

And now a real quick recipe to make a half-hour before a supper which has been prepared earlier. An oldtime favorite:

POTATO SCONES

1 c. wholewheat flour
1 tsp brewer's yeast
1 Tbsp wheat germ
2 tsp baking powder
¼ tsp salt
1 c. mashed potatoes
2 Tbsp soft margarine
½ c. water with powdered skim milk

Sift dry ingredients, add mashed potatoes and margarine, then milk gradually, working lightly into a soft ball. Drop by rounded tablespoons on greased baking sheet. Press lightly with fork, bake in 400 deg. oven for 15 minutes.

Or, you bake them in a greased pan on top of stove, turning the scones once with a spatula.

Learning Disabled Need Special Hand

EDMONTON (CP) — Children with learning disabilities need the type of personal attention they can get from parents and volunteer workers, says a leading specialist in the field.

Doris Johnson of Northwestern University in Illinois told a seminar for parents and volunteers that it's difficult for teachers to give each child the necessary attention.

She said one of the biggest hurdles which must be faced in acceptance of the problem. "You have to understand the learning disabled child is different and accept it. Often a lot of energy goes into denying the problem."

Volunteers are important to help at all levels of schooling, especially at the preschool level when screening procedures are undertaken to isolate the problem, she said.

"At the instructional level, volunteers can help with painting, art and games, and can assist with research into children's records, and the preparation of materials for the teacher."

She added that all teachers should take a course in learning disabilities.

'Gang' Takes To Seas

One of western Canada's most popular tourist shows took to the high seas this week when Fran Dowie led his Barkerville crew aboard the P and O cruise ship Spirit of London.

The ship sailed from Victoria for a tour of Alaska and northern B.C. ports. Subsequently she will sail south to San Francisco before returning to Vancouver.

And each evening during the cruise the Barkerville gang will entertain passengers with programs rooted in the gay nineties era of the British music halls.

"I have 16 years' worth of material," says Dowie, "so every night it will be a different show, all under the title Victorian Delights."

Dowie writes and ad-libs a lot of the material in the shows.

The six-member troupe has just completed its 10th season at Barkerville, the Cariboo gold rush town that 100 years ago was described as the largest North American city west of Chicago and north of San Francisco.

More than 178,000 visitors were recorded as attending the show this year.

B.C. government-subsidized, the company does a two-a-day routine in a converted firehall theatre in the former gold rush capital all summer long.

But up to now — except for the Best of Barkerville that went on tour during the B.C. centennial year — the "Barkerville show" has not been permitted to work outside the town.

"This is a real break and if it goes over — the captain rates the shipboard shows, so we'll have to hope he'll like us — the next few years could become a regular routine of Barkerville summers and fall-winter cruises," Dowie foresees.

CHURCHILL STABBED IN CHEST: HISTORIAN

LONDON (AP) — Winston Churchill was stabbed in the chest close to his heart during a fight over a penknife when he was a 10-year-old schoolboy, says a British historian.

Julian Mitchell, who is writing a script for a television series on Churchill's American-born mother Jennie Jerome, said young Churchill was not seriously hurt and the incident was not publicized to protect the unnamed boy who stabbed him.

Mitchell, in an interview, cited the stabbing as an example of previously unpublished material he has found in the Churchill family archives at Blenheim Palace near Oxford.

Point Roberts Study Latest by IJC Panel

Problems posed by the isolation of Point Roberts from the rest of the U.S. are among issues currently being studied by the International Joint Commission, its Canadian chairman said in Victoria today.

In a speech to the Men's Canadian Club, Louis Robichaud reviewed the role and history of the IJC, noting there have been only three instances out of some 90 cases where the commissioners of the unique Canadian-American organization have divided or failed to reach agreement.

The commission sprang from the Boundary Waters Treaty of 1909, he said, a permanent institution to deal with questions relating to almost 2,200 miles of the border which pass through water.

The commission consists of six members, three from each country with main offices in Ottawa and Washington, but acting as a unit, with decisions made by a majority irrespective of nationality in the common interests of the two countries.

Robichaud, Liberal premier of New Brunswick for more than a decade, was appointed chairman of the Canadian section of the IJC in 1971.

The commission has essentially three roles, he said:

—A judicial role where an application is submitted requesting approval of works that affect boundary water levels and flows.

—An investigative role, when a problem involving the rights or interests of either country along the common frontier is referred to it by one or both governments.

—A surveillance and co-ordinating role, to observe works it has approved and actions and programs which have resulted from its recommendations.

Over the years the IJC has dealt with everything from installation of a log boom on a small international stream to developing power on the Niagara and St. Lawrence Rivers.

In 1959, the IJC recommended "principles" for apportioning downstream benefits in the Columbia River basin, principles which guided both federal governments in negotiating the Columbia River Development Treaty, signed in 1961, he said.

Probably the most extensive hydrological survey ever undertaken, on how water levels can be better controlled in the Great Lakes, was launched by the IJC in 1964 and is due later this year.

Early in 1971 the IJC was asked to determine consequences of raising the level of Ross Lake on the Skagit River to provide more power for the Seattle area.

Robichaud noted that the commission's findings, "that it would adversely affect the present environment but would replace it with another," have been submitted to both governments.

LONDON (AP) — A sports car collided with a panel truck in the midst of London traffic.

A nude man jumped out of the car and began an argument.

"From the way he was standing arguing," said a bystander, "you would have thought he had his best suit on."

The man got a free mental examination at the local police station.

FREE PRESS COSTLIER

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Free Press announced Tuesday that effective Oct. 1 the single-copy price will increase to 15 cents from 10 and home-delivery rates to 75 cents a week from 60.

The Saturday edition, which includes Weekend Magazine, will go to 20 cents from 15 cents.

In its announcement, the newspaper cites rising costs and said the new price will be in line with such cities as Toronto, Montreal, Edmonton and Calgary.

The single-copy weekday price has been 10 cents since 1960. There have been two increases in home-delivery rates since that time.

VANCOUVER BARS 'DARK TOWERS'

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council told developers of the downtown Pacific Centre Tuesday that there are to be no more "dark towers" like the much criticized Toronto Dominion tower and IBM tower.

Lorne Cooke, vice-president and general manager of the two-block development, said Monday he wouldn't try to force the issue if council backed Mayor Art Phillips strong criticism of the tower.

Mayor Phillips said council is not critical of what type of glass is used for the tower—solar bronze is the most likely—if lighter materials break up the dark effect.

Consulting architect William Leithead said plans can be changed to "achieve what meets the pleasure of the city."

b.c. briefs

Housing 'Desirable' On UBC Property

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Art Phillips said Tuesday it is both inevitable and desirable that 1,000 acres of the University Endowment Lands be developed for housing, commerce and research-oriented industry.

Development of the provincially-owned land, he said, would ease housing shortages in the metropolitan area and is a major priority for council consideration next year.

Mr. Phillips, referring to recent housing proposals outlined by minister-without-portfolio Lorne Nicholson, said the provincial government has given verbal agreement that the city will be involved in development plans.

The mayor added it is inconceivable that the remaining 1,700 acres of undeveloped land in the area would be required for further university expansion.

"The university of B.C. is big enough now," he said. "Other university facilities can be built somewhere else."

Mr. Phillips said the endowment lands, False Creek and Champlain Heights represent the only remaining parts of the metropolitan area available for housing development.

Judges Confer

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Thirty judges from the B.C. southern interior will attend a corrections conference here Thursday and Friday. The conference is designed to give the judges an insight into the programming and functions of correctional centres.

Slide Warning

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial water resources branch said Tuesday there is a landslide danger on Lake Koocanusa in the Kootenay River valley.

A spokesman said that the lake, the reservoir formed by the Libby dam in Montana, is dropping more than a foot a day, which could cause sliding of the lake's steep sand and gravel banks.

The spokesman said all access roads to the lake, other than those to park developments on the lakeshore, have been shut off, with warning signs posted.

Walkout Ends

SURREY (CP) — About 70 employees of Lindal Cedar Homes Ltd. returned to work Tuesday, ending a walkout which started last Thursday in a dispute over roll calls and punching a time clock. An International Woodworkers of America spokesman said the company has agreed to withdraw the roll call and the time clock, at least temporarily.

Pearson Peak

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — A 10,000-foot peak in the Cariboo Mountains of central British Columbia has been named for former prime minister Lester B. Pearson.

The peak is in the premier range and close to mountains named for six other prime ministers: Louis St. Laurent, Arthur Meighen, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, R. B. Bennett and Sir John Abbott.

President Sought

BURNABY (CP) — Simon Fraser University will establish a 16-person presidential search committee, the university's board of governors announced Tuesday. The committee will recommend a replacement for Dr. Kenrith Strand, whose term expires in September, 1974.

Winery to Move

MISSION (CP) — Andres Wines Limited of Port Moody said Tuesday it will relocate its winery here. The development is expected to cost $6 to $8 million with relocation to take place over the next several years.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Two men and a woman were each fined $75 in Victoria provincial court Tuesday for possession of marijuana.

James D. Bicknell, 27, Ronald L. Meiers, 29, and Michele Devereaux, 19, all of 634 Admirals, all pleaded guilty.

Two Port Renfrew men were each fined $250 after they pleaded guilty to shoplifting.

Robert John Green, 25, and John M. Wight, 19, were arrested Monday after they stole two hardware items worth a total of $3.48 from a Victoria department store.

Ian Charles Wyness, 17, of 10379 Bowerbank, Sidney, was sentenced to four months in jail after he pleaded guilty to breaking a church window in Victoria May 17 and to stealing several camping items worth $65 in Tofino Aug. 9.

Police said Wyness was seen by the caretaker of the Seventh Day Adventist Church throwing a rock through the window. The caretaker held the youth until police arrived. At that time, Wyness told police he "was just killing time."

The Tofino charge arose after Wyness stole two coolers and a campstove from a campsite on Long Beach.

Mohinder Singh, 20, of 3420 Wascana, was sentenced to 21 days in jail after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving and driving while under suspension July 25 on Yates Street.

Singh had been convicted of another impaired driving offence July 16.

A Bamfield man who stole a news magazine so he could "read up on Watergate and be informed," was given a suspended sentence and six months probation after he pleaded guilty to theft under $200.

Daniel Murdock, 25, stole the $1 magazine from a news and smoke shop on Douglas Street Tuesday.

Six-day jail sentences were given to two people who pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

William Morrison, 43, of 1234 Esquimalt, was stopped on Monday. David McLellan, 22, of 1032 McGregor, was stopped for impaired driving Sunday in Oak Bay.

Gordon Patrick Greabelel, 19, of 114 Ontario, was sentenced to a total of 10 months in prison after he pleaded guilty to posession of a stolen tape deck March 14 and to shoplifting a belt from a department store June 21.

Judge F. S. Green ordered a one-year probation term to start after Greabelel's jail term is finished.

A Langford man was fined $500 after he was found guilty of failing to remain at the scene of a fatal accident April 7 in Colwood.

John Hudson, 48, of 743 Massie, told police he felt a bump as he drove across Parson's Bridge, but thought he had hit a construction block and did not stop.

The next day, Hudson learned that a car had hit and killed Ella Howard, 46, of Gold River and he went to the police.

A one-year probation term was imposed by Judge Harold Alder with the condition that Hudson not drive a car after he had consumed alcohol.

Two men who pleaded guilty to separate charges of impaired driving were sentenced to 14 days in jail.

Glen Scott Murray, 19, of 1345 Craigflower, pleaded guilty to a two-count charge of impaired driving and refusing to take a breath analysis test in Oak Bay Sunday.

Ian Murray Allen, 19, of 529 Ardersier, pleaded guilty to impaired driving in Saanich Sunday.

No Rush in Protesting: Sharp

OTTAWA (CP) — The pollution threat posed by supertankers carrying oil down the West Coast is not so immediate that it must be dealt with "today or tomorrow," External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Tuesday.

He told the Commons it will be "some years" before the proposed Alaska pipeline is completed and connecting supertanker operations can begin.

This will allow the government time to press its case for an alternate overland pipeline through the Northwest Territories.

This country's opposition to the Trans-Alaskan Pipeline System (T.A.P.S.) is well known to the U.S., he added, and further talks will take place.

John Fraser (PC—Vancouver South) said news reports indicate the Nixon administration has rejected any Canadian proposal that would bar supertankers from using the West Coast route. This would mean delivery of oil to the Cherry Point refinery.

Fraser accused the government of failing to negotiate with the U.S. after Sharp announced in July that Canada had "just begun to fight" against the T.A.P.S. route.

Sharp said he has had occasion since July to remind the U.S. of the government's views and will do so again next Tuesday at a scheduled meeting in New York with Henry Kissinger, U.S. state secretary.

Fraser said no one believes any longer that the government cares what happens to the West Coast as a result of the T.A.P.S. proposal.

U.S. Turns Down Any Deal Which Would Ban Tankers

Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Nixon administration has in effect turned down any deal with Canada which would ban supertankers from the dangerously narrow waters of the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

At least three cabinet ministers have recently come out in favor of eliminating the danger of oil spills when supertankers begin transporting Alaskan oil to refineries in Washington State by guaranteeing delivery of Canadian oil to the state via the Trans-Mountain Pipeline.

Although the Trudeau government has not yet formally proposed such a scheme to Washington, Interior Secretary Rogers Morton has written Congress making it clear the Nixon administration opposes any such deal.

"We do not believe," Morton wrote, "that encouragement should be given to the Canadian government to commit additional oil to this Puget Sound area since the oil could only be made available from present or future production which might otherwise be marketed in the Middle West of the United States."

Morton's reference to Puget Sound came in a 12-page letter to the chairman of the House of Representatives' committee on interior and insular affairs.

The letter made available this week, expressed the Nixon administration's views on the Senate and House bills authorizing construction of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline.

Representatives of the two houses of Congress are currently meeting to iron out differences in the two bills.

The interior secretary was referring specifically to a provision of the House bill which would direct the Nixon administration to negotiate with Canada regarding a possible scheme to ban supertankers in return for guarantees of an equivalent amount of Alberta oil.

Proposals of a deal with the U.S. to protect threatened West Coast beaches have been made by Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and the environment minister, Jack Davis.

When the scheme was first suggested in Ottawa it was treated lightly or negatively by politicians in Washington, especially mid-western senators and congressmen, for the same reason cited by Morton.

The U.S. Midwest is highly dependent on Canadian oil, drawing approximately one million barrels a day from the interprovincial pipeline.

Many believe that a guarantee of additional oil to Washington state would eventually result in a significant reduction in the amount of oil available in the U.S. Midwest, particularly in view of Trudeau's recent suggestion that the interprovincial pipeline be extended east from its present Toronto terminus to serve the huge Montreal market.

Joint Venture On Spills Seen

PORTLAND, Ore. (CP) — Marcel Cadieux, Canada's ambassador to the United States, forecasts a joint venture between the two countries to protect the marine environment against pollution in Atlantic and Pacific border regions.

Addressing an International Relations Club dinner here Tuesday, the ambassador touched on Canadian fears of oil spills from supertankers off the West Coast and called for international co-operation to prevent such accidents.

"The United States and Canada have already proven by their co-operation in the Great Lakes that they can work together to protect the marine environment against pollution," Ambassador Cadieux said.

"I have hopes that similar cooperation schemes will soon be in place for both the Atlantic and Pacific border regions."

He did not elaborate in his prepared text.

The ambassador left Washington Monday on his first official trip to the Pacific Northwest. From here, he goes to Seattle for speeches today and Thursday, leaving Friday for a two-day visit to Dallas for the opening of a new airport.

FEARS SUPERTANKERS

Cadieux expressed Canada's concern over "plans to bring supertankers into the navigationally difficult waters of the Strait of Juan de Fuca and Puget Sound."

"Think of it," he said. "While Canada would receive no benefit at all from tankers using these waters, we would be expected to accept most of the pollution damage if a tanker collision or grounding were to occur.

"Directly along the path of the currents north of Cherry Point lies the city of Vancouver with its miles of recreational beaches. The Canadian gulf islands and the American San Juan islands also have hundred of miles of recreational coastline vulnerable to damage."

The ambassador said Canadian concern was "not farfetched or hypothetical" and recalled a June, 1972, oil spill at a Cherry Point refinery in which 50 barrels of crude oil "produced a 14-mile-long slick which soiled 35 miles of resort beaches within 30 hours."

HUGE SPILL POSSIBLE

He quoted a U.S. Coast Guard report stating "oil tankers travelling from the terminus of the proposed trans-Alaska pipeline . . . will accidentally pill 140,000 barrels of oil a year off the Pacific coast of Canada and the United States."

The ambassador traced the history of energy co-operation between the two countries and said "one must conclude that the present outlook is not rosy for immediate and substantial increased exports of Canadian energy resources to the United States."

"Over the long run, however . . . there are some promisings areas for development.

"The lesson of the recent past is that the response in Canada to demands abroad cannot be masive and sudden. If it takes place, it must be perceived to be to the benefit of both countries.

"It will only be effected by Canada and the U.S. meeting on grounds of common interest and common respect for each other's needs and aspirations.

"Government energy studies suggest that by the year 2000, Canada could be supplying anywhere from zero to 12 per cent of U.S. natural gas and crude oil requirements.

"Where on this scale our energy trade will fall will depend on the success of our governments and our industries in developing new reserves and, especially, in making timely and wise political, economic and environmental decisions."

CLC 'LOSING' —CBRT CHIEF

TORONTO (CP) — D. N. Secord, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CBRT), says the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) and its international affiliates are fighting a losing battle in trying to delay an independent Canadian labor movement.

Secord said at the union's convention Monday that the CBRT, 65 years old and the country's oldest national union, welcomes the "nationalist awakening."

"Some international unions already have achieved satisfactory levels of autonomy," he said. "Others are genuinely striving to improve their autonomy and servicing standards.

"But all too many are dragging their heels, trying to cling to an outmoded colonial system that must be eliminated.

"Instead of pressing ahead with a renewed campaign to bring better servicing and more Canadian autonomy to American union members in this country, the CLC decided to go on the offensive against nationalist forces within the labor movement, in an effort to protect its U.S. affiliates . . ."

Secord said the congress is trying to crush the challenge of Canadian nationalism instead of reacting positively to it.

'MIRACLE' ENDS CHOLERA

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — The dark crystalized substance believers call the blood of St. Januarius liquefied today and thousands of Neapolitans cheered the news as a sign that the city's cholera outbreak was over.

The cry of "St. Januarius has made the miracle' echoed from street to narrow street in the old city moments after a nobleman waved a handkerchief in the city's cathedral to signal the substance had liquefied after only a few minutes of prayer.

Folk tradition has it that the thrice-annual "miracle" is a good sign when it occurs quickly. When it is slow or does not occur, Neapolitans say it means war, plague, volcanic eruption or some other disaster.

An overflow crowd in the cathedral, ranging from the mayor to relatives of suspected cholera victims, saw Cardinal Corrado Ursi raise the phials containing the reputed blood to signal its liquefication.

Tradition says Januarius was a bishop who was beheaded by Roman soldiers in the year 305 and his blood was collected by a pious woman after his death.

Various theories have been produced over the centuries to try to explain the liquefication. The Vatican said last year it planned a scientific investigation of the phenomenon, a step Neapolitans resented as an indication of disbelief.

Health authorities banned outdoor celebrations of the "miracle" today for fear of contagion, but placed no restrictions on church attendance.

Tuesday, an army of firemen and policemen hacked down seaside stalls selling fish and vegetables in a city-wide cleanup to stop the spread of the disease.

Vendors shouted in protest as the 600-man force, using pickaxes, chopped through the area. A small armada of Italian navy vessels stood offshore to help in case of violence.

Because of the outbreak, which has killed 23 persons here, health officials ordered strict enforcement of the hygiene laws.

ROOSEVELT

PINDLING

FDR's Son Plotted Murder: Con

WASHINGTON (AP) — A convicted stock swindler says Elliott Roosevelt and a reputed big-time gambler offered him $100,000 to assassinate the Bahamian prime minister.

Roosevelt, son of the late President Franklin Roosevelt and once mayor of Miami Beach, Fla., called the allegation "an utter and complete fabrication."

Louis Mastriana told the Senate permanent subcommittee on investigations Tuesday the assassination contract was offered because Prime Minister Lynden Pindling of the Bahamas is said to have refused to grant a gambling licence to Michael McLaney. Mastriana identified McLaney as a one-time employee of United States gambling kingpin Meyer Lansky.

Mastriana served time in a federal penitentiary for illegal securities dealings in Florida and is serving an eight-year sentence for mail fraud in Texas.

Roosevelt, contacted at his Lisbon, Portugal ranch, said:

"It is an utter and complete fabrication and outright lie made by a man who is a known con-artist and has been convicted, who has been put in jail, who has been adjudged by the courts of New Jersey as a mental incompetent, and who conned me and my associates at one time out of $10,000 in Miami."

Mastriana said he had had himself ruled insane purposely "so I could do anything." Later, he said, "I was examined by government psychiatrists who found me to be of sound mind and legally competent."

Mastriana testified that McLaney, convicted in 1971 of a securities violation, gave $1 million to Pindling for a 1968 political campaign. In return, Mastriana said, McLaney was to receive a gambling licence in the Bahamas.

"But he didn't deliver," Mastriana said of the Bahamian prime minister.

"They came to me and offered me $100,000 to kill, to whack Pindling," Mastriana said.

Mastriana identified "they" as Roosevelt and McLaney. Mastriana said he was paid $10,000 immediately. He said he received $2,500 in a cheque from McLaney to Roosevelt.

A committee staff member produced a photostatic copy of a cheque for that amount signed by McLaney and Roosevelt. The committee member said the cheque had been made over by Roosevelt to Mastriana.

Mastriana said there was no assassination attempt made, because he said he feared he would be unable to escape from the island country.

Mastriana said he had a concelead recording device on his body and had taped his conversations with Roosevelt. He said the equipment was furnished by the U.S. postal service, which he said he had worked for at that time "in an undercover capacity."

A postal service spokesman said there would be no comment on the allegation until a check of the files is completed.

Committee chief counsel Howard Feldman said the committee will attempt to interview Roosevelt at his Lisbon home.

Free Buses—Give It a Try

A free system of public transportation for the downtown Vancouver area was urged Tuesday in the legislature.

David Brousson (L—North Vancouver-Capilano) said the provincial government should supply free bus transportation to persons travelling between the downtown area of the city and North and West Vancouver.

Brousson said the government could learn from the experiment being conducted by the city of Seattle, which is spending $64 million in one year in a free transportation program.

The Liberal said the free buses could run between 7 and 9 in the morning and 3:30 and 6 in the afternoon, with express routes included.

Brousson said transportation is the one area where he is most disappointed with the provincial government's efforts. Another area for improvement, he said, would be in the availability of taxi cabs in city areas.

Cabs, he said, should be allowed to rove around the downtown area and pick people up from sidewalks, which is not now allowed by law.

In other areas, Brousson urged the government to establish a strong consumer affairs branch under Phyllis Young, with a system of storefront facilities which would make consumer information available to most persons.

He said the whole area of consumer credit needs examination, particularly the mortgage brokerage area.

Brousson also took the government to task for sloppy contract awarding practices, citing an example of a contract awarded for an intercom system for the B.C. Ferries Service to a company which did not follow the prescribed tendering procedure but bid lowest on the contract.

The Liberal also said that unless the government takes some positive steps, the U.S. Federal Power Commission will allow the city of Seattle to raise the level of the Ross dam and thereby flood the Skagit Valley. He urged financial support for a group known as ROSS (Run Out Skagit Spoilers).

In a wide-ranging attack on the government, Harvey Schroeder (SC—Chilliwack) said many weeks of work by the legislative standing committees have been treated as "window dressing" by the government.

Policies were already established before the final reports of the committees were given, he said. ". . . Input was zero."

Schroeder said the proposed department of consumer affairs should be concerned with "all consumers" and that includes suppliers.

As more and more people pay by cheque Schroeder said, grocers are obliged to accept them and are faced with a rapid increase in forged or worthless cheques.

Those losses are passed on in increased prices, he said, and therefore must be of concern to the new department.

Schroeder criticized the government for the red tape in appeal procedures under the Land Commission and said mining exploration in the province has declined 50 per cent over the last year.

Gary Lockstead (NDP—Mackenzie) said transportation was "one of the most basic problems" facing the residents in his constituency.

He said, however, that "planning is imperative" to protect the many unspoiled areas in his constituency while providing for transportation and the long-neglected industrial development of the central coast.

Ocean Falls is thriving, Lockstead said, and the people there are determined to show that it will continue to be an asset to the province and function "as a centre for hospital, police and educational services for the central coast area."

Carl Liden (NDP—Delta) closed Tuesday's debate with a speech criticizing the work of the Pollution Control Board and recommended establishment of a new B.C. environmental protection service which would stop giving out licences to "polluters."

Liden attacked past fishing treaties negotiated by the provincial government, and called for a new policy recognizing that salmon belong to the country of origin.

Daisy Webster (NDP—Vancouver South) renewed a plea for a new university to be established in the northern part of the province, preferably in the Prince George area.

She said with the population growing as rapidly as it is, the University of B.C., Simon Fraser Unjversity and University of Victoria will not be able to cope with increases in enrolment.

Lim Bang Thanks City

LIM
. . . thank you

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

The statue of Buddha sat in the nitch of the wall "smiling" on the group at the table.

At the head sat a slightly stooped 93-year-old former Victorian who returned to the city to say "thank you."

"I want to thank the city for the honor it has bestowed on me," said Lim Bang and, in voice that faltered now and again with emotion said of Victoria: "It is part of me."

The city last January had bestowed on him an honorary citizenship. He was ill and unable to attend the ceremony.

The dinner this week at the Ming's Restaurant, was Lim's opportunity to thank the city for the honor.

The group at his table included Mayor and Mrs. Peter Pollen, city archivist Ainslie Helmcken, Lim's daughter Betty Chan, relatives and close friends.

It was a friendly dinner, an opportunity to speak with a man who had played an important role in the development of the province.

Born in Victoria, Lim, was a former banker and one of the wealthiest men in B.C. He moved to Saskatoon about eight years ago.

The trouble started in 1907 when the Victoria school board passed a resolution excluding Chinese children.

Lim and Lee Mong Gow, also well known here, decided to fight and raised funds for a test case in court.

The Chinese community lost.

Undismayed, the two men urged the Chinese community to build the present Chinese Public School. It so alarmed school officials the ban was lifted.

In 1923 an attempt was made by the school board to introduce segregation. It wanted to separate Chinese and white children in classrooms.

The Chinese children retaliated by boycotting the public schools, and attended their own school. The board finally gave in.

In the business world, Lim built the Douglas Hotel and was the owner of the Gim Fook Yuen store in Victoria in the early 1900s. He operated a chain of greenhouses in both the city and Vancouver.

At the dinner Lim presented a silk Chinese painting to the mayor.

College Awards Contract

Bulldozers will move on to the Pedder Bay site of the future Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific next week, clearing the way for access roads.

Chew Excavating Ltd. has been awarded the road contract and Farmer Construction Ltd. the contract for the first phase of the $3 million project.

Administrator John Davis says, "We'll be punching a very rough access road in at the beginning so as too get moving."

Davis said the 35 acres of the 75-acre site will form the building core, with 10 acres of this core being actually covered with buildings.

"We'll be carrying out a highly selective site-clearing program," he said, "We've had three experts out and practically every tree has been tagged. We have a fair-sized logging operation ahead of us."

Construction of the buildings will begin about mid-October, he said.

Architects for the college, due to open in September 1974, are Ron Thom of Toronto (formerly of B.C.) and the firm of Downs, Archambault of Vancouver.

The local company of Graeme and Murray Consultants Ltd. will handle the engineering.

Davis said applicants for teaching positions are being interviewed. When the college opens there will be 100 students and a faculty of 15. This will be increased to 20 when the student body is upped to 200 during the second year of operation.

The Pedder Bay college will be the third United World College, the other two being in Wales and Singapore.

The campus will contain five residences for 200 students, an academic building, dining hall, library, administrative building and student common room.

Last Rites For Pioneer Policeman

Funeral services will be held Friday for a former police officer who began his career as a law enforcement officer when Victoria was a rough and tough city.

James George Florence, ex-police sergeant who joined the police department in 1909, died Monday at 94.

The funeral will be at McCall Bros. Chapel at 2 p.m.

Florence spent 30 years and a few days with the force.

He served under five police chiefs, walked the streets with Imperial Navy sailors, lumberjacks, gold-miners and roustabouts of every description.

On his 90th birthday, he recalled that back in 1909 there were 104 bars in the city and the police department comprised 27 men.

Born in Lossiemouth, Scotland, Florence came to Canada in 1903 and worked in his uncle's bakery before joining the police force.

During the First World War, he served with the 10th Ammunition Column. He was promoted to sergeant-major before returning to Canada and the police force.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Holman of Victoria, two grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren.

French Taught Forces Children

French classes began this week at the Fleet School in CFB Esquimalt for children of armed forces personnel.

Three teachers will give instruction to children ranging from kindergarten to Grade 4.

The program is in line with the federal government's policy of providing armed forces' dependents, no matter where they live, the opportunity to learn French.

At this time there are about 20 service families at the Esquimalt base whose mother tongue is French.

Originally, the defence department, the provincial education department and the Sooke school board were considering the possibility of classrooms being provided at John Stubbs Memorial.

When this plan fell through it was decided to set up temporary classrooms at the base so that the children could begin classes as soon as possible.

It is hoped further negotiations betwen the defence deparment and the B.C. education department will provide a permanent solution to the problem.

Death Laid To Carbon Monoxide

An elderly Sooke woman died from asphixiation and carbon monoxide poisoning, Sooke coroner Eugene Murphy said Tuesday after conducting an inquiry.

Miss Annie Bulmer Ellerby, 78, was found dead in her bed at her home at 6605 Sooke Road following a fire early Saturday morning.

The fire, which destroyed the living room and kitchen areas of Miss Ellerby's one-storey cottage, was believed due to carless cigarette smoking, Murphy said.

Wider Health Care Urged

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Establishment of government-insured intermediate health care facilities, including home care programs, should be given highest priority, says a report tabled in the legislature Tuesday.

The 30-page report of the select standing committee on social welfare and education pleads the case for equitable medical coverage for all patients in B.C. whether in need of acute, extended or intermediate care.

The present system of coverage not only penalizes elderly and others in need of intermediate care but leads to an inefficient use of acute care hospitals.

Recommendations brought down in the report are the result of 14 days of work by the 14-member, all-party committee which visited eight centres during May and heard 150 public presentations and briefs.

The major recommendations are that home-care programs be developed, particularly in urban areas, so patients are not admitted unnecessarily to acute care centres and can be discharged from hospitals sooner.

Equitable per diem coverag for all patients, including all necessary professional care for patients at home, should be instituted.

The government should provide a pilot cost-free training program for students in health fields, in return for accepting assignments in unserviced areas of the province.

The estimated cost of providing medical coverage for persons in need of intermediate care, based on the number now in private hospitals or nursing homes, is about $10 million.

If the cost of extended care is increased to $5 from $1 a day the additional funds could be used to help finance intermediate care and lower the cost to the government to about $6.5 million.

The committee felt higher per diem rate for extended care could be justified in most cases since patients are on government pension and are receiving at least $200 in pensions.

Intermediate care is defined as care for patients requiring 24-hour a day personal attention but not 24-hour a day skilled nursing service.

Extended care is for patients requiring skilled nursing service.

Extended care is for patients requiring skilled nursing service 24 hours a day.

In every community they visited the committee reported a shortage of intermediate care facilities and that few patients could afford to pay the costs involved in those facilities. While acute and extended care patients pay $1 a day, intermediate patients, unless on welfare, pay $400 and upwards per month.

The report recommends the government, in co-operation with non-profit bodies, should be responsible for providing intermediate care facilities on the same basis as other care units.

Such facilities should be an integral part of all hospital facilities and also be under the direction of regional hospital boards.

Development of home care as part of intermediate care, would mean patients left in actue care beds would be acutely ill.

This would mean a more efficient use of expensive hospital equipment says the report, and decrease the overall cost of patient care.

Other recommendations:

—That the first step in delivery of comprehensive home care service be the review and restructuring of the present federal-provincial cost sharing formula;

—That hospitals set up a lending service to home-care patients needing hospital equipment;

—That hospital districts become more involved in pooling and sharing ambulance services;

—That the B.C. Purchasing Commission make bulk purchases of generic drugs and form master "drug banks" in Victoria, Vancouver and Prince George;

—That attempts be made to standardize the training and provision of all medical, paramedical and related services in the province;

—That annual check-ups be included under medicare.

More Courts Eyed

Oak Bay council's public works committee will recommend three additional tennis courts for Henderson Park.

The committee agreed Monday to include the $31,500 project among those for which Oak Bay will apply for assistance under the federal Local Initiatives Program.

Another item would be $7,000 for the completion of landscaping at the park.

Also on the list is $12,000 for wire fencing and levelling of an additional playing field at the Oak Bay Senior Secondary School and $20,738 for a seaside sidewalk at Oak Bay Marina.

A total of $15,100 for renewing sidewalks on McNeill, King, Westdowne, Dufferin and Townley was approved, as well as $6,500 for the replacing of water mains to improve water pressure.

Another $25,000 was approved for the inspection of manholes and work on surface drains, and $8,853 for the improvement of the intersection at Beach and King George.

L.I.P. grant applications must be filed by Oct. 15 and money from grants does not become available unless work is done from December on.

SOUTH AFRICA PRESS CURBED

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa (Reuter)—Prime Minister John Vorster said Tuesday that legislation will be introduced next year to force off the streets any South African newspaper that persists in publishing articles inciting racial hatred.

Vorster said newspapers, individuals and organizations should refrain from doing or saying anything which might fan racial hatred into revolution and violence.

Under the proposed legislation, newspapers that failed to exercise self-restraint would not be allowed to be published.

Vorster, officially opening the annual Orange Free State congress of his ruling National party, said the issue in question was not criticism of the government but incitement.

In previous attacks on the press, Vorster was generally understood to be criticizing English-language newspapers and Tuesday he rounded on the most outspoken of these, Johannesburg's Rand Daily Mail.

Vorster told delegates that when a newspaper said to him, as the Rand Daily Mail had, that it was not prepared to censor itself, and that he should do whatever he wished, it was looking for a confrontation.

Referendum Aims Due

Details of a capital projects referendum, to go before voters Nov. 17, will be known" within 10 days or so," says Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis.

He said the amount of money to be sought has been substantially reduced through the paring of items not considered absolutely essential.

"It will reflect a significant reduction from the original amount of just under $6 million," he added.

He said council has finished most of the review of the referendum. There will be ample time, he said, to explain the program and answer questions from the public before the referendum goes to the vote.

The referendum is to raise funds for road improvement, drainage and recreational facilities.

MDs Plea to Government: Change With Moderation

VANCOUVER (CP) — A plea to the provincial government for moderation in any planned changes in the health care system of the province was made by the British Columbia Medical Association at a press conference Tuesday.

The association said the present system, despite its faults, provides a high standard of quality and efficiency and maintains a method by which a patient can go to a doctor of his choice.

The BCMA said it is better to correct existing errors and deficience "than destroy the system by a revolutionary approach."

The BCMA asked that government and the profession become partners so "that both groups can work together towards meeting the enormous challenges of the future in an atmosphere of mutual respect."

The press conference was called to make public a BCMA brief submitted to the government's health security program project July 30.

The project is directed by health systems consultant Dr. Richard Foulkes.

BCMA president Dr. K. C. Hill of Burnaby said the association gave the government time to study the 32 recommendations in its brief before the BCMA made its study public.

Dr. Hill said: "Like everything else, the traditional doctor-patient relationship has undergone change, but it is still an essential element in making sick people well. I don't think many people want to stand in line to see a nameless and faceless doctor in a public health clinic if they can go to the office of their own family physician."

He said there are studies showing that community health clinics, designed to take the load off acute care hospitals and so reduce hospita costs, will in fact "result in the sharp escalation of per capita costs."

But the BCMA suggests that a few community health clinics be set up on an experimental basis and the costs compared to the present system.

The brief also recommended:

—Consumers, buyers and providers of health services should form a health council to advise government on all matters of health care, including training of personnel.

—Formation of health resource centres in communities to co-ordinate such services as public health nursing, well-baby clinics, inoculations, home care and social services.

—Installation of a province-wide telephone number which could be used in emergency to obtain medical care.

—Incentives to doctors to practise in remote areas.

—Further development of roles for nurse practitioners to assist physicians.

—A crackdown on over-use of medications such as pills, lotions and sprays.

—Creation of a province-wide ambulance service.

—Support of home care programs to encourage earlier discharge from hospitals; reduction of the number of hospital admissions; and extended home care for prolonged illness.

We call our exciting New Paint Latex Velvet-Lustre Enamel.
Here's why:

VELVET because it's a soft touch to touch-up. Leaves barely a trace. If you skip a place, simply cover it later when the original coat dries. Blends perfectly.

ENAMEL because it's tough, hard-surfaced and hard-wearing. Washable, too, but it won't leave those annoying shiny patches. Now you can paint walls and woodwork from the same can.

LATEX because clean-up is a breeze. Simply wash brushes or rollers with water. And one coat is usually all you need to cover most previously painted surfaces.

LUSTRE because it gives you a unique, elegant, lustrous finish. Just a hint of sheen that adds subtle new life to your rooms.

Wide Gulf Remains Between China, France

Special to The Times

SHANGHAI — French President Georges Pompidou's week-long visit to Peking which ended Monday was suffused with a public show of cordiality, but largely bereft of the sort of concrete agreements that the French had hoped to secure to support their claim to a special relationship with China.

A joint communique issued as the French leader's DC-8 took off from Shanghai spoke of "a large measure of agreement" on numerous issues. But the document went on to confirm the failure of the two sides to bridge their differences on the key issue in the talks — detente in Europe.

In a reference to Sambodia the Chinese marked their difference from the French by reiterating their recognition of the Peking-based government of Prince Norodom Sihanouk. France continues to recognize the Lon Nol government in Phnom Penh, which overthrew the prince three years ago.

In one of the few commitments alluded to in the communique the two governments pledged themselves to an urgent study of ways in which their trade can be developed. But there was no mention of the deal the French are most anxious to conclude — the sale of two Concorde supersonic airlines.

Agreement to conclude a maritime treaty and to strengthen existing air links was also cited in the communique. Officials said this should lead to an increase in the frequency with which French ships and aircraft serve Chinese ports.

The few commitments, however, were overshadowed by the wide gulf that separate the two sides on the sensitive issue of European detente. The communique made it clear that efforts to find common ground on the issue had foundered on the parties differing attitudes towards the Soviet Union.

In the single paragraph devoted to Europe the Chinese emphasized the need for the countries of Europe to unite in defence of their security. But the French countered with an unequivocal statement of their commitment to pursue the quest for detente.

Said the communique "China supports the efforts made by the European peoples to safeguard the independence, sovereignty and security of their respective countries and on this foundation, to unite for the preservation of their common security.

"For its part France, faithful to her alliances, will adhere to a policy aimed at detente, entente and at the cooperation of all the peoples of the continent, at the same time as working for the construction of a true union among the nine member countries of the European community.

For all the cordiality displayed by the Chinese right up to the last moment on the French leader's visit, the French stand on detente almost certainly caused further disillusionment among the architects of China's rapproachement with the West.

The discussions with Pompidou, the first West European government leader to visit China, offered the Peking leaders their first opportunity of laying their suspicions about Soviet motives in seeking detente before one of the men who must fashion a European response to the Soviet initiatives.

At the least, the Chinese must have hoped that the French leader would use his Peking visit to express the same cautious reservations about detente that he has voiced in Europe. But apart from a brief and unspecific declaration against "all hegemony" by both parties to the communique, there was nothing in the document to indicate that the French sympathize with the Chinese view.

NAIROBI EXPECTS INSTANT BONANZA

NAIROBI (UPI) — The World Bank meeting this week may or may not solve the monetary crisis, but Kenyans are expecting a windfall.

"We're going to be financial capital of the world for one week," a hotelier chortled. "And we, Nairobi, are also going to make a lot of money."

His anticipation, and that of a ministry of tourism official who described the week-long meeting as an "instant bonanaza," were understandable.

From Sept. 20 until the end of the month 4,000 delegates, guests, wives and newsmen will become a virtual occupying force in this capital city.

The bank has commandeered 30 hotels—2,339 beds and 75 suites, five clubs and numerous private homes at up to $180 a night.

The government assembled a fleet of 80 new, red Mercedes cars, 20 new Ford Cortinas, 20 large buses and 20 mini-buses and "banks have been individually hiring blocs of 10 or 20 cars each for their own guests," according to one tour operator.

According to Joseph Gatuiria, deputy secretary in the ministry of finance who has been working on preparations for the meeting for two years, the visitors will pour the equivalent of around $270,000 a day into the Kenyan economy. That could mean two or $3 million by the time the conference is finished.

The government has allocated a petty cash fund of $600,000, which will cover such things as a self-contained mini airport for delegates at the main international terminal (a special lounge which will include customs, immigration, bank and bar facilities) and some 150 social functions ranging from a full government banquet to tea parties and tribal dancing for the ladies.

"We're running on a tight schedule," Gatuiria said. "Most cocktail parties will run a maximum of 90 minutes with 10 minute intervals to allow delegates to get to the three or four they will attend each evening."

That fund does not, of course, include the conference centre itself—a $10 million, 32-storey complex which the world bank's main coordinator, D. E. Brantley, described as "the best in the world."

Even as delegates began to arrive, workmen toiling around the clock were still putting the final nuts and bolts into offices, the 4,000 seat main hall and the tower's revolving restaurant.

The meeting already has produced numerous superlatives. It is the largest meeting ever held in Kenya, the first time the World Bank has met in Africa, probably the largest such meeting on record, with the largest number of newsmen (300-400) to cover such an event.

"Naturally, such a meeting is a potential target for extremists," Gatuiria said.

Cold Delays Crops

CALGARY (CP) — Cool, damp weather last week hampered the harvest in south and central Alberta and halted it completely in the north.

The Alberta Wheat Pool said in its weekly crop report that two weeks of warm dry weather would see rapid progress in the harvest.

Provincially, 81 per cent of the wheat, 84 per cent of the barley and 86 per cent of the rapeseed has been swathed.

Compared with last week, another 10 per cent of the crop has been harvested with 40 per cent of the wheat threshed, 42 per cent of the barley and 50 per cent of the rapeseed.

Duck damage has been reported in parts of southern Alberta and frost in the Peace River area is more extensive than previously indicated.

Relations Bleak

EDMONTON (CP) — An inquiry into coal mining operations at Grande Cache, Alta., was told Tuesday that managment-employee relations were bleak early this year before a mass layoff of miners.

Tom Grothern, a labor relations officer with the province, said "both sides were at fault . . . but it was a bit more on management side."

The inquiry commission under former CPR president N. R. Crump, held hearings earlier this year into the operation of McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd. and the town's development with the aim of making recommendations to the provincial government.

The hearings resumed Tuesday after a three-month summer recess and were adjourned after one hearing until next Monday.

Rare Birds Sighted

SASKATOO N(CP) — Three sightings of whooping cranes have been confirmed by the department of natural resources and a fourth report of the rare birds received this week is being investigated.

The department is not releasing the exact locations of any sightings to prevent crowds from bothering the birds.

The season's first sighting, Sept. 3 in the Outlook region, involved one crane on a sandbar in the South Saskatchewan River with a flock of about 3,000 sandhill cranes. The sandhill crane hunting season was closed in a 25-mile radius of outlook when the sighting was confirmed.

'Punk' Must Help

WINNIPEG (CP) — An 18-year-old boy who pleaded guilty Monday to robbing a newspaper delivery boy of $4.80 in collection money has been ordered to help his victim work the paper route for the next two months.

Judge Mike Baryluk, who described the youth as a "punk" said, "he'll do the dirty work, carrying the papers." The 14-year-old who was robbed June 7 will only have to "go along as a guide."

Grain Spilled

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — Nineteen rail cars derailed Monday night at this northern port, spilling their cargo of Saskatchewan grain over the tracks. There were no injuries.

The cars were part of a 150-car grain train arriving for export, but a spokesman for the port said crews are busy salvaging the spilled cargo. Cause of the derailment is believed to have been a broken rail leading into the rail yards.

POT PARTY'S OLDEST WAS 15

WINNIPEG (CP) — Police say they are worried about use of marijuana and the amphetamine MDA by youngsters in the city.

Fourteen youngsters aged 12 to 15 were picked up by police after a drug and liquor party in the city's west end on the weekend.

"It's causing us concern when the ages get down to 12 and they start having pot and MDA at their parties," said Insp. William Hrycyk of the morality division.

A search of the party site showed four cases of beer, a quantity of marijuana and MDA in the house. The oldest person at the party was a 15-year-old.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our gratitude and sincere thanks to all our friends, relatives, and neighbours for their kind and thoughtful expressions of sympathy in our time of sorrow at the passing of our dear wife and loving mother, Laura Cave.
—John Cave and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BAXTER — In loving memory of our dear brother Jack who passed away September 19, 1971.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger everyday
Remembrance keeps him near.

9 IN MEMORIAM

NOBLE — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Danny Noble, age 13, who passed away Sept. 19, 1972.
We often sit and think of him
when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend
that grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak,
when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep
green and never fade away.
—Always remembered by his Mom, Dad, and sisters.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our gratitude and sincere thanks to all our friends, relatives, and neighbours for their kind and thoughtful expressions of sympathy in our time of sorrow at the passing of our dear wife and loving mother, Laura Cave.
—John Cave and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BAXTER — In loving memory of our dear brother Jack who passed away September 19, 1971.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear,
Fond memories linger everyday
Remembrance keeps him near.

9 IN MEMORIAM

NOBLE — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Danny Noble, age 13, who passed away Sept. 19, 1972.
We often sit and think of him
when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend
that grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak,
when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep
green and never fade away.
—Always remembered by his Mom, Dad, and sisters.

Wednesday Movies and Specials

Movies

Funny Girl (xxxx), on 8 at 8. (See Specials for description of this superb musical.)

Inherit the Wind (xxxx), on 13 at 8. This 1969 movie adapted from the powerful Broadway play dealing with the famous Scopes trail in the '20s in which a school teacher was arrested for teaching Darwin's theory of evolution makes exciting screen entertainment. An excellent cast includes Spencer Tracy, Fredric March and Gene Kelly.

Satan's School for Girls, on 4 at 8:30. An unpreviewed 1973 TV movie that tells a chilling tale of a wealthy girls' school plagued with student problems of a macabre nature. Cast includes Pamela Franklin, Jo Van Fleet and Roy Thinnes.

Marooned (xxx), on 5 at 8:30. Oscar-winning special effects highlight this 1969 drama about a NASA rescue effort to save astronauts trapped in orbit starring Gregory Peck, Richard Crenna and David Janssen.

Killer By Night (xx), on 7 and 12 at 11:30. Robert Wagner and Diane Baker star in this 1972 TV movie about a killer and a diphtheria carrier being hunted by police and health officials.

Never Say Die (xx), on 2 at 11:50. A 1939 slapstick comedy starring Bob Hope as a hypochondriac millionaire who marries a Texas gal because he thinks he has only two weeks to live. Martha Raye co-stars.

The Day the Earth Froze (x), on 6 at midnight. A 1964 low-budget fantasy about a witch who stops the sun and turns the earth into a ball of ice. Nina Anderson and John Powers star.

Rough Night in Jericho (x), on 8 at midnight. A violent and unnecessarily brutal 1967 western about a sadistic town boss who clashes with a gambler starring Dean Martin, George Peppard and Jean Simmons.

Counterattack, on 13 at midnight. No rating available on this 1945 drama about Russian paratroopers and guerrillas who land in German-held territory in order to capture an enemy officer. Paul Muni and Marguerite Chapman star.

The Incredible Petrified World (x), on 6 at 1:25. A dull 1958 sci-fi tale about scientists trapped beneath the sea starring John Carradine and Robert Clarke.

Specials

Appointment with Destiny, on 8 at 7 and 6 at 10. Showdown at O.K. Corral — a repeat telecast of the drama-documentary that offers a front row seat at the shootout between Wyatt Earp and Doc Holliday, and the Clanton-McLaury bunch. (60 mins.)

Funny Girl, on 8 at 8. A world television premiere of the 1968 movie that made Barbra Streisand a star. The film is a musical biography of Fanny Brice, spanning her early years as she breaks into vaudeville, reaches stardom in the Ziegfeld Follies and finds heartache in her marriage to gambler Nick Arnstein (well played by Omar Sharif). As a biography, the film takes some liberties, as a Streisand vehicle, it's pure gold. The excellent score blends Brice standards with original tunes. Recommended!

Black Dragon Residence, on 9 at 8. A rare chance to view an example of Peking opera, a traditional type of Chinese theatre that falls somewhere between stylized drama and light opera. English dialogue with Chinese arias subtitled in English. (90 mins.)

BARBRA STREISAND stars as Fanny Brice in Funny Girl, premiering tonight on Channel 8 at 8 p.m.

CBC Radio Highlights

6:30 (FM) Opera Time — Host: Ruby Mercer. Tonight: The Barber of Seville (Rossini) (excerpts) (Teresa Berganza, mezzo-soprano; Ugo Benelli, tenor; Manuel Ausensi, baritone; Fernando Corena, baritone; Nicolai Chiaurov, bass; The Rossini Chorus and Orchestra of Naples conducted by Silvio Varviso).

8:00 (FM) Encore — Part I —It all Ends Up in a Shopping Bag, by Paul Kligman. The play is Kligman's memorial tribute to his father Morris, a small grocery store owner in Winnipeg. It's a warm, tragi-comic portrait of a man he never really knew or understood. Morris Kligman had escaped from the pogroms in Europe, come to settle with his family in Canada, and set up a small business. He had a bad temper, found it difficult to talk with his son, and made impossible demands. He was also a poor businessman, and often lost payment when he extended too much credit to his customers. The play opens with Paul, an established radio and TV actor, flying home to arrange his father's funeral after a sudden, lonely death. As he goes about his sad business, incidents from the past come crowding around him and he realizes he has come to understand his father better now that he is gone. Kligman takes the part of his father; and Paul is played by Richard Davidson. Part II After the holocaust, a program of two musical works, recorded in Poland: Dies Irae (Auschwitz oratorio) (Penderecki): Survivor from Warsaw (Schoenberg).

10:30 (FM) Ideas — Science Fiction: The Literature of Our Age — Doug Payne is heard with science-fiction writers Arthur C. Clarke, James Blish, Lord Ritchie Calder, and many others.

Early Thursday Movies

Cry Havoc (xx), on 4 at 9:30. A 1943 tribute to the women who served tirelessly as nurses during the U.S. defeat at Bataan starring Margaret Sullivan and Ann Southern.

The Love God? (x), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. Don Knotts plays a meek bird-journal publisher who unwittingly becomes the pigeon for a pornographer in this 1969 comedy. Anne Francis and Edmond O'Brien co-star.

Craig's Wife (xxx), on 13 at 1:30. A worthwhile 1936 drama about a woman who lives only for worldly possessions and loses sight of human values. It's a familiar story but well handled by an excellent cast that includes Rosalind Russell, John Boles, Billie Burke and Jane Darwell.

Chuka (xx), on 5 at 3:30. A predictable 1967 western about a vicious Indian attack on a military post. A competent cast includes Rod Taylor, Ernest Borgnine and John Mills.

The Adding Machine, on 7 at 3:30. No rating available on this 1969 English-made adaptation of Elmer Rice's 1923 play about a much-maligned bookkeeper who is driven to murder starring Milo O'Shea.

Oak Bay Before it's All Gone a Piece of
This could be your last chance to own an apartment by the ocean, right on Beach Drive and within walking distance of the world famous Oak Bay Marina and Restaurant, the Windsor Park rose gardens and just about anything else you could want at the Oak Bay Village.
Yes, there will be resales on Oak Bay. But one thing is almost certain . . . You'll pay a lot more for it than a new one of your choice at the ROYAL ALEXANDRA.
So, it stands to reason, if you're remotely interested in having a place in Oak Bay it would be worth your while to come see the ROYAL ALEXANDRA.
1-Bedroom Apartments
From $31,000
2-Bedroom Apartments
From $32,800
Almost every extra luxury has been provided . . . like a sauna, a therapeutic pool, exercise pavilion, hobby room, recreation lounge, underground parking with owner operated electronically controlled gates.
Each apartment is larger and more luxuriously appointed than you would expect at these prices.
If you've ever wanted a place in Oak Bay now is the time to get it before they're all gone.

Open Heart Record Perfect

The open heart surgery program which began at Royal Jubilee Hospital 10 weeks ago has compiled a perfect record so far, with all 16 patients showing vast improvement.

Jubilee has one of only four open heart units in B.C., the other three being in Vancouver. The special surgical team there undertook its first case July 10 and its 16th Tuesday.

"Every patient has vastly improved," Dr. A. C. Pickles, the hospital's executive director, said Tuesday when asked to summarize results to date.

Twelve of the patients have been men and four women. Nine are residents of Greater Victoria, three are from the Saanich Peninsula and four from up-Island, between the Cowichan Valley and Nanaimo. They have ranged in age from 46 to 64.

The team uses a heart-lung pump to take over the functions of these organs so doctors can operate on the heart at rest.

Ten of the 16 operations have been the so-called bypass procedure, where vein segments from a patient's leg are grafted to a coronary artery to bypass a section which has become clogged.

Not all patients with heart disease are suitable candidates for the operation.

The other six operations have been replacements of diseased heart valves with artificial ones.

The 16 patients have stayed in hospital an average of 11 days following surgery.

The open heart unit at Jubilee was to have conducted two operations a week but a shortage of nurses to provide the post-operative intensive care cut this to about three operations every two weeks.

The program is expected to move to two operations a week before long.

Prisoner Aid Suspected In William Head Escape

Director Gamaliel Milner said Tuesday he was "reasonably sure" someone helped the 41-year-old convict escape and said a former prisoner is the prime suspect.

Genereaux was reported missing during a prisoner count at 6:30 p.m. He had last been seen four hours earlier walking towards the end of William Head spit carrying a fishing rod and radio.

Police at first thought he might have slipped into the water and drowned but discounted that possibility after a search of the waterfront using divers and a helicopter.

Milner said Genereaux probably will return to his home in the Montreal area or try to contact relatives in Prince Albert, Sask.

Milner described the escaper as a quiet, rather nondescript man, 5'8", 140 pounds with a dark complexion.

He had been in jail since 1965 serving an indefinite sentence as a dangerous sexual offender. The original charge was indecent assault.

Despite the nature of the crime, Genereaux is not considered dangerous.

"During his years in jail he has always been a placid, calm individual ... rather docile in fact," Milner said.

But, Milner said, Genereaux' crimes were associated with a pattern of heavy drinking.

"I don't know what he would be like if he ever got drunk," he said.

Motorcyclist Labelled Fair After Spill

A Saanich motorcyclist is in fair condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital after he was thrown off his bike and landed in a field early today.

Saanich police said Walter Eckert, 20, of 1779 Laval, was driving on Cedar Hill Road at 1:20 a.m. when his bike went out of control and hit a ditch.

Eckert was thrown off the bike and landed in a grassy field by the side of the road. The motorcycle veered down the street about 70 feet and crashed into a tree.

Police said there were no witnesses, but the noise of the crash woke a nearby resident who then awakened a Saanich policeman who lived nearby.

The policeman found Eckert unconscious in the field.

Fountain Gift Costly, City Told

Victoria will get a modest, scaled-down version of the fountains in Copenhagen's famous Tivoli pleasure gardens, under a bequest of the late Herbert Anscomb.

City aldermen discussed the legacy briefly at their informal caucus session Tuesday — and learned that the gift could involve the city in substantial expenditure.

City manager Jim Bramley said the fountain itself could cost up to $215,000 (including about $39,000 for contingency expenditure). While that would be covered by the bequest, the city would have to pay for the landscaping and water and electricity connections.

Depending on whether it is moderate or lavish, landscaping could cost anywhere between $10,000 and $70,000, Bramley said, and hooking up electricity and water supplies was estimated at $20,000.

In addition, based on the $10,000 a year it costs the city to maintain the Centennial Square fountain, maintenance would account for at least $15,000 annually.

No decisions were reached in the preliminary discussion, but aldermen were told one site favored for the fountain in Beacon Hill Park is the corner at Circle Road and Heywood, roughly opposite the animal enclosure.

When Ald. Malcolm Anderson noted the bequest is for a single fountain and not a three-ring model as in the Tivoli gardens, Mayor Peter Pollen quipped: "As they say, one ring is better than a doughnut."

Victoria has six months in which to make a firm decision on accepting the gift.

Anscomb, a former Coalition government finance minister and B.C. Conservative party leader, represented Oak Bay in the legislature from 1932 to 1952.

Colwood Divers to Blast Old Okanagan Slipway

Divers from the Colwood fleet diving unit of CFB Esquimalt and 3rd Field Squadron of CFB Chilliwack arrived in Vernon today to start preparations to blow up the old slipway at Okanagan Landing.

A. L. Hill, president of the Okanagan Landing and District Community Association, asked for armed forces' help after many attempts to demolish the slipway failed because of its massive strength — the pilings are anchored to rock pits.

Defence department headquarters approved the demolition as a training exercise in support of an Okanagan Landing Local Initiatives Program project.

The divers will burrow tunnels under the pilings, inserting dynamite at each piling.

Because the slipway is under water it is expected that most of the explosions will be cushioned by water.

But, to make sure there are no injuries — the slipway is on a local beach — the RCMP will clear beaches before detonation.

The six naval and three army divers will be quartered at the Vernon Army Cadet Camp during the operations. On-site commander is Capt. D. E. Deane of the Colwood unit.

The first detonations are slated Monday. Once these are made the divers will be able to assess how long the job will take.

Power Out

The eastern section of Esquimalt and the Hillside-Douglas part of the city were without electricity Tuesday afternoon after a 12,000-volt line short-circuited on Skinner Street near Catherine.

A. B.C. Hydro spokesman said power was off from about 1:30 p.m. to 3 p.m. Cause of the short circuit is not known.

Girl Pushers Jailed

Two girls who financed a trip across Canada by trafficking in LSD were sentenced to three months in jail today.

Pamela Anne Douglas, 17, and Camille D. Rivait, 18, both of London, Ont., pleaded guilty Sept. 10 in Victoria provincial court.

They were charged Sept. 9 after police checked a car in the 1400-block Dallas and found 74 capsules of LSD on Rivait and 32 capsules on Douglas.

Rivait claimed 40 capsules were not hers.

Police said the pair bought 100 capsules of the drug in London for $65 and were selling them as they crossed the country with two other people.

Judge William Ostler said the sentence was a "difficult and painful" one to make, but necessary in view of the "vicious" substance they were selling.

He ordered 18 months probation following the jail term.

Both girls broke into tears as they were led from the courtroom.

Ferry Workers Want New Status

Unlicensed ferry workers have formally asked the provincial government to set up the B.C. Ferry Service as a Crown agency, with full collective bargaining rights.

In a brief to provincial secretary Ernie Hall, made public today, the executive of marine branch Local I asked that its association be treated as a separate, autonomous entity, completely free of the B.C. Government Employees Union.

The question of separate status was a contentious issue in the five-day strike by unlicensed ferry workers last month, and the local wants to make its position formally known to the government before legislation allowing for collective bargaining in the civil service is presented to the Legislature.

That legislation was tabled during the spring session of the Legislature and is scheduled to be re-introduced this fall.

"The unlicensed employees contend that they are working in a marine industry," the brief says, "and cannot be equated with the rest of the civil service either in wages or working condition."

The brief says Local 1 was given no representation before the commission of enquiry set up a year ago to study employer-employee relations in the B.C. public service.

The commission received only one "united" brief from the entire membership of the BCGEU and the ferry workers say their concerns were given little or no consideration in that brief.

GH New Horizons To Meet Oct. 12

The first general meeting of the New Horizons group at Gordon Head will be held in the hall of Gordon Head Church, Tyndall and San Juan, at 2 p.m. Friday, Oct. 12.

Using the facilities of the church and with the help of the Anglican and United Church congregation, a program will be launched for the elderly in the area.

The group has been awarded a $12,000 federal grant, $6,000 of which was received this year, the remainder being due in 1974 if the program proves successful.

President Barrie Goult says that, in addition to a drop-in centre at the hall, initial projects will include discussion groups, public speaking, historical research of the area, a directory of services and special events designed to bring involvement with younger people.

Mrs. Pauline Barker, director of the Silver Threads Service centre in Centennial Square, lives in Gordon Head and has volunteered to assist in setting up the local program.

New Rec Study Set

Directors of Sooke Community Association agreed Tuesday to take a fresh look at recreation.

They instructed an expanded combined data gathering committee to make an "immediate study" and report on monetary resources including the amount to be placed on taxes.

The committee will also look at suitability of present land, costs involved, determine the recreation facility which is most popular and make a preliminary study of types of construction.

Earlier this year, Sooke voters turned down a referendum to build an ice arena.

In a statement, the directors said it is hoped that "knowledgeable and resourceful groups and persons within the community will contribute their information."

Cool Rooting Time For Narcissi, Hyacinths

Ten weeks from now brings the date November 28 before us on the calendar. That is when pots of narcissi and hyacinths should be ready to come into house warmth after their 10-weeks of cool rooting, if you make the start today.

While the plants will scarcely flower at Christmas they will be well up in bud at that time, opening just when we need them most—early in the New Year.

It is apartment gardeners who need ideas on how to get their potted bulbs rooted well, for usually there is no patch of soil where the pots may be buried, nor any location for standing them in cool moist dark conditions. The temperature should be 35 to 40 degs. F.

So we deal first with the more difficult condition. Decide what bulbs you want to grow; be sure you get "forcing varieties" when buying daffodils or any of the narcissi. Also, there is more than one kind of hyacinth which may be grown in pots.

Roman hyacinths have many small stems of sweetly scented blossoms, while the so-called Dutch types put up one heavy stem from each bulb.

Early varieties of daffodils (or narcissi) are the ones to choose for early blooming indoors. Late varieties will bloom later—you cannot change this cycle.

While a good compost soil maintains bloom for two to three weeks, it is the cool rooting period on which the successful flowering depends.

An idea found in a New York review of a bulb gardening book published in 1954, was the construction of rough wood boxes to hold the pots for the rooting period on apartment balconies.

Made with a lid to open for watering or to expose to rain as needed, the boxes must have air space all around the pots which stand inside, and an almost solid bottom. Surplus moisture must be free to drain away.

The box prevents the warmth and sun from striking the pots, but still the most shaded and coolest part of the balcony must be chosen. Lids are removed at night for coolness.

Soil in the pots must be just damp but not wet, until roots and top growth is evident. From then on, the bulbs are treated like any other cool-weather, outdoor plant. The strongest roots form in the coolest soil, but when flowering time comes warmer day temperatures are suitable as in spring outdoors.

About November 20 gradually begin to acclimatize the pots to the warmer and lighter conditions until you take them indoors to grow their leaves and flower stems.

Winter sunshine on a low table by a large window is a good place if no heater is nearby. At night, putting the pots on the floor by the doors leading to the apartment balcony will give 10 degrees cooler, thus prolonging the life of the flowers.

SOLUTION THURSDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

It is not very often that a four-spot wins a trick on the very first lead of a suit, but it did happen in today's deal. Although the line of play which made a winner out of the four-spot may appear to be more exotic than sound, analysis will reveal that it was the sound play. The hand came up in a rubber-bridge game. Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

SOUTH

♣ A K 8

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
3 ♠	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass	♣

Opening lead: Queen of ♣.

After winning the opening lead with his king of clubs, South led the four of spades. When West followed suit with the three-spot, declarer played dummy's deuce. As is evident, the four won the trick. South next led his five of spades, finessed dummy's jack with the assurance that it would win, and brought home seven spade tricks.

If, on the original spade lead, South had finessed dummy's jack, he would have been in dire straits. Although the jack would have won the trick, West would still have retained the tripleton Q-10-9; and declarer would now have been able to make just two additional spade tricks, the ace and king.

What movitated South to play the spade suit as he actually did? For a good rubber-bridge player, who is always thinking of the fulfillment of his contract, it was automatic to play the suit as he did.

From South's position, if he could make six spade tricks, he would have a guaranteed contract. If the adversely-held spades were divided either 2-2 or 3-1, then it didn't matter whether he put up dummy's jack or the deuce on the initial spade lead. If, hypothetically, East had won this spade lead with either the queen or nine, the defenders would have but two spades remaining. And the ace and king would have gathered them in.

As declarer correctly viewed the situation, if East had the four outstanding spades, then declarer could never make more than two spade tricks, the ace and king. But if West had the four missing spades, then by playing low from dummy on the first spade led, he could guarantee the making of six spade tricks. And when West played the three on South's lead of the spade four, West had just become the only defender who might, in theory, have had the four missing spades.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"You know those crazy mod belts we bought?" said Dan. "Last night I noticed we'd sold only 26 of them, so I cut the price from $6.95 to $4.99."

Carol nodded. "A good idea, but that's a heck of a discount."

"Sure, but it's paid off already today," her husband declared. "We sold 55 at the new price, and actually made $6.75 more on them than our profit had been on the others."

The belts were all the same, but what had Dan paid for them?

(Answer tomorrow)

Yesterday's answer: WINE was 1293.

Firms Banned

AMMAN (Reuter) — Jordan's minister of finance issued a statement Sunday banning dealings with 13 foreign companies for having violated the boycott of Israel regulations. Three of the firms are British; two Swedish; two Spanish and the remainder American, Japanese, Swiss, French, West German and Belgian.

New U.S. Storm Brewing Over Sweeteners

WASHINGTON (AP) — A renewed scientific storm is brewing in the United States over the safety of artificial sweeteners.

New research indicates that cyclamate — banned four years ago as a cancer-causing agent in animals — was accused falsely, a government-sponsored review of evidence is under way and a fresh pronouncement on the issue may be made in a month or two.

Saccharin, shoved into the void cyclamate left, stands accused of causing cancer in laboratory animals. Already slightly restricted in use, it also faces possible banishment from the U.S. diet.

Artificial sweeteners are the mainstay of an estimated $1-billion annual food additive industry in the U.S.

Some consumer advocates are convinced the sweeteners pose sufficient threat to society to warrant banishment, despite new research.

The questions about cyclamate and saccharin safety are similar to those raised in recent years about monosodium glutamate, a flavor enhancer, and nitrite, a meat preservative.

They illustrate a nagging problem that continues to confront scientists and federal regulatory officials: how safe is safe enough?

Many of the safety tests for food additives are potentially inaccurate. All are difficult to reproduce exactly from laboratory to laboratory. Most are subject to different interpretations by experts.

Producing a response to a food additive in a test animal often requires a dose hundreds or even thousands of times greater than normal human consumption.

In a typical study, cyclamates made up 7.5 per cent of the entire diet given to rats. To consume that amount of cyclamate, a person would have to drink several hundred bottles of a soft drink each day.

Nevertheless . . . "regulation of the safety of food and drugs must depend upon informed scientific judgment," says Peter Hutt, general counsel of the U.S. Food and Drug Administrtion (FDA).

"The scientific uncertainty that exists at this moment in history simply requires that safety determinations be made more on the basis of subjective evaluation than objective standards," he says.

This so-called subjective evaluation of experimental data troubles scientists who have been schooled in the rigorous objectivity of the scientific method. It will trouble them more as they attempt to sort out the results from several major artificial sweetener studies in the U.S., Europe and Japan.

The Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation last year found bladder and uterine cancer in rats receiving five per cent saccharin in their diets.

Last May, the administration reported that a saccharin and cyclamate study conducted for them by a private laboratory found cancer in saccharin-fed animals but not in cyclamate-fed animals.

But a saccharin study sponsored by the U.S. National Cancer Institute found no saccharin-induced cancer in rats. Institute sources said preliminary data also indicated no cancer caused by cyclamates.

A major study with rats at Germany's University of Heidelberg found no cancer linked with either sweetener.

Industry sources say other studies in Japan, the Netherlands and Canada also have exonerated both chemicals.

Such data forms the basis for a new food additive petition that Abbott Laboratories of Chicago plans to file soon with the FDA, seeking permission to resume marketing cyclamate. A committee of scientists convened by the National Academy of Sciences at the behest of FDA is pondering the saccharin evidence and is expected to report in the fall.

In Ottawa, health department officials said Tuesday they have received no requests to review their decision banning cyclamates, an action taken in 1970.

As well, department officials say the chemical composition of saccharins used in Canada may be slightly different from that of saccharins used in the United States.

Needled Boy Hears Again

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — A seven-year-old boy, who lost almost all hearing after an infection then underwent acupuncture treatment, now is able to attend regular school classes using a hearing aid.

Eric Hansen, of nearby Corunna, lost most hearing ability because of the ear infection before he was a year old, said his father, Dean, president of the Lambton County Association for the Deaf.

Three years later, his remaining hearing ability declined suddenly with no medical explanation to the point where he was classed as profundly deaf in his left ear and severely hard of hearing in the right.

Then, earlier this year, Hansen heard of research being undertaken in London, Ont., into the ancient Chinese practice of acupuncture, in which fine needles are inserted into selected points on the body to reduce pain, induce local numbness to enable surgery to take place — or simply to effect a cure.

Hansen arranged for Eric to be treated by Dr. Leung Cho Yuk, one of two doctors operating an acupuncture clinic in a London hospital.

HEARING IMPROVED

After 60 treatments, in which nine needles are inserted around the ears, Eric's hearing is much improved, said Hansen.

Eric now is classed as hard of hearing in his right ear and severely hard of hearing in the left.

And, using a hearing aid, he attends regular Grade 2 classes, supplemented by a daily 50-minute class for the hard-of-hearing.

No one, including Chinese practitioners, knows how acupuncture works, except it operates somehow through the nervous system. Neither is it always a successful treatment.

But Hansen has requested Ontario Health Minister Richard Potter to set up a board of inquiry to consider licensing acupuncture as a recognized medical treatment.

BRAWLING DRUNKS SEPARATED

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Separate cages will be installed in the drunk tank of the city police station here to keep brawling drunks apart when they are locked up for the night.

The new cages, estimated to cost about $4,000, will divide up an existing larger cage.

City Manager Chester Jeffrey said a number of fights have broken out.

Xerox modestly announces a fantastic, unbelievably convenient copier. The 3100.

It's not easy for us at Xerox to tell you about our new, super fantastic convenient ... uh, there we go again ... our new copier. We've got a tradition of restraint when it comes to showing you a new product but this new convenience copier, the compact 3100, makes it hard to be humble.

The 3100 is compact and it comes on wheels. There's no special wiring required, so you can plug it in anywhere. That means that the copies can now come to you, instead of the other way around.

The 3100 also features an exclusive pre-loaded cassette that makes for easy paper handling. And because there are so few buttons and knobs, operation is as simple as can be.

The 3100 needs no warm-up, so you get the first crisp, clear copy, both halftones and solids, in just 8 seconds, followed by 20 copies per minute. All on ordinary, untreated cut-sheet paper.

So please excuse our enthusiasm, we're trying to cover it up. But we know that you're as eager as our inquisitive friend to find out more about our new even more convenient convenience copier from Xerox. The 3100.

90th YEAR, No. 87 ★★★ VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1973 ★★★ 15 CENTS DAILY, 20 CENTS SATURDAY

P.O. HAS YOUR NUMBER

The post office's new postal code mail system goes into effect in Victoria and other parts of British Columbia next Tuesday.

"Every householder, business owner, box owner or persons with a regular mailing address will be sent a written notice telling them what their code will be," a Victoria spokesman said today.

Each code goes letter-number - letter - number.

The first letter stands for a broad area (in this case, V for all of British Columbia). The first number represents one of 10 sub-areas. The second letter is for one of the 20 parts into which each sub-area is divided.

So it continues, until the last character — a number comes right down to one part of a mailman's route. It could possibly be just an apartment block that receives 50 or more letters a day.

Each piece of mail arriving in Victoria (or any postal station in B.C.) which bears the postal code with the address will pass through a machine whose operator transcribes the code into a small bar-like pattern.

Almost invisible to the naked eye, the pattern is "read" in ultra-violet light in the computerized machines which automatically sort the mail all the way until the moment it's popped into a mailman's bag.

In a year or so, however, even more sophisticated equipment is expected to be in operation. Optical character-reading equipment is to be added to the sorting machines.

B.C. Shoppers 'Victimized'

Times News Services

B.C. consumers are being victimized, especially in urban areas, by the major food retailing chains, the chairman of the federal Food Prices Review Board said Tuesday.

"Frankly, I'm angry," Beryl Plumptre told a news conference in Vancouver.

"Angry because some food retailers, and in a few cases even the processor, appear to be intentionally seeking to confuse the consumer through their merchandising practices."

Mrs. Plumptre said a complete report on a cross-Canada survey by 80 food price investigators will be issued next week and said it "will name names."

She said major food retailers had promised the review board they would cooperate in discouraging double-pricing and misleading advertising. But she said preliminary results of a three-month investigation across Canada show they have not kept their promises.

"Double pricing in B.C. is rampant," she said, adding that no longer is it simply double pricing but "multi-pricing." She held up a package of Kellogg's corn flakes which had four prices stamped on it and said although customers were to be charged the lowest price, investigators found otherwise.

"Last week in B.C. one of our researchers went through two different cashiers with double-ticketed items and was charged the higher price in each case," she said. She added the store had assured customers they would pay the lower price if two were marked on a product.

Mrs. Plumptre, also said "aisle-end rip-offs" were found frequently in B.C. as were "specials" which turned out to have higher prices rather than lower prices.

She also attacked "binning" —putting goods in bins marked "special" or "today only". She said often if prices were less than normal, so was the amount of the product.

She held up two jars of Heinz baby spinach, both the same price but one was 4½ ounces while the other was 4¾ ounces. She called the sizing "very misleading."

"Careful shopping can help counteract problems like these," she said, "but the board believes the consumer should not be required perpetually to be on his guard."

She said she had found the situation in British Columbia disappointing. "It may be that the over-all national picture may indicate a better general performance by processors and retail outlets," she said. "In Newfoundland, for example, the chains appear to have been more straight forward in their selling."

She said, particularly in B.C.'s urban areas, "the consumer continues to be considered fair game."

Mrs. Plumptre told the news conference the review board "will not hesitate to take up the prime minister on his offer to recommend effective legislative measures."

LONDON — Thirty thousand people wrote in for the 3,000 available tickets to hear opera singer Maria Callas Saturday — her first performance in eight years.

Scalpers have had a field day, selling tickets for up to $275 each.

But today, Miss Callas, 49, cancelled her appearance.

A telegram from the prima donna said her eye doctor has ordered her to rest for at least six weeks.

Alberta Drug Roundup

CALGARY (CP) — RCMP and police forces in Alberta began a province-wide round-up of suspected narcotics traffickers at 3 p.m. Tuesday, it was announced today.

Police officials told a press conference that 117 warrants have been issued for the arrests of suspects in Edmonton, Calgary, Red Deer, Lethbridge, Banff, Honton, Jasper, Fort Macleod, Fort McMurray, Canmore and Grande Prairie.

Insp. Jack Roy of the RCMP Calgary subdivision said raids were conducted simultaneously throughout Alberta as six undercover agents blew their covers.

The agents — three RCMP, two Edmonton city police and one Calgary city police officer — worked for a year to make more than 150 buys across the province.

The suspects being sought included 45 in Edmonton and 35 in Calgary. As of 9 a.m. (MDT), today, 18 of the 35 suspects were arrested in Calgary, Insp. Roy said.

He said a total of 189 charges will be laid against the 117 suspects, mostly for trafficking in heroin.

"There has been a fantastic increase in heroin use in Alberta over the last two years," said Sgt. Dutch Ryba of the RCMP Calgary drug squad.

The officials said the number of heroin users in Edmonton and Calgary has grown to 3,000 from 100 in five years.

Displaced Workers Top Issue

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Special consideration must be given to workers dislocated or laid off by new technology, Labor Minister Bill King told the legislature Tuesday.

In one of the most significant parts of a half-hour throne speech address, he appeared to indicate new labor legislation will offer job security in the area of technological change, where he said more concern was manifested "than any others" in labor-management conferences earlier this year.

King carefully avoided revealing details of the legislation, which by parliamentary custom must come first in the form of a bill or bills to the house.

He said great advances in science and technology bring with them special problems affecting employers and workers.

"While it is difficult to fully assess the dimensions of this problem, it cannot be denied that some special consideration must be give to those workers who are dislocated or laid off by new technology," he said.

King said a "substantial portion" of the fall session will be devoted to labor legislation to be introduced "very shortly."

Some people think legislative change alone is the answer to problems, he said, but "this government recognizes that healthy social relationships cannot be legislated. There must be a desire and a motivation to make new laws workable and acceptable."

He referred to the three-man advisory committee appointed earlier this year, which received more than 70 written briefs and convened three conferences of labor and management representatives.

But, he said, "quite frankly I do not take the position new legislation will adequately solve all of these problems.

Obviously it will be necessary to continually scrutinize and monitor the effect of new legislation over a period of time."

Disputes in essential services were also mentioned, and King appeared to be suggesting some new mechanism for dealing with them, possibly through encouragement of voluntary (as opposed to compulsory) arbitration.

"The dilemma is to seek an alternative to the strike when it seriously threatens or imperils the public health and welfare without denying to workers the full rights of collective bargaining.

"The problem must be faced and labor and management must be willing to each

Gun-holding Koreny wins three-day reprieve

'Muscle' In Ottawa

CALGARY (CP) — If the battle between the federal and Alberta governments over the 40-cent-a-barrel oil export tax came to a head, Ottawa would have the constitutional muscle to win, federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday.

Macdonald was commenting on the hard stand taken against the recently-announced tax by Premier Peter Lougheed in a television broadcast Tuesday night.

Lougheed lashed out at Ottawa's planned export tax on oil and then pleaded with the federal government to pave the way for an $800 million development in Alberta's Athabasca oil sands.

The premier said the province would fight Ottawa's discriminatory tax move.

He then announced Syncrude Canada Ltd. will proceed with a huge oil sands extraction plant provided the federal government cooperates by not imposing price regulations on synthetic crude oil.

However, Macdonald said the federal government has not yet decided to exempt synthetic crude from the export tax or price regulation. His comments were made before Lougheed's televised speech.

Describing the plan to levy the export tax as a federal "power play to control Alberta's oil and gas resources," Lougheed said it was "clearly detrimental" to Alberta and would result in the province becoming another "have-not" area of Canada.

"We've been able to avoid a sales tax in this province — the only proyince without a sales tax — because of the revenues from oil and gas."

The proposed fedreal tax means money will be diverted from Alberta and siphoned off to be spent essentially in other parts of Canada, he said.

Construction of the immense plant, using 3,000 workers near Fort McMurray in northeastern Alberta 225 miles from Edmondon, depends on federal co-operation because the four-company consortium that owns Syncrude insists that synthetic crude be exempt from price regulation, the premier said.

At the same time the province will be seeking Ottawa's approval of a new approach to calculating royalties. The province is to take 50 per cent of Syncrude's profits compared with present conven-

DENVER (AP) — One of the Stanek sextuplets died Tuesday night from a lung disease common in premature babies. Three of the other infants show signs of the same ailment, a doctor said.

Cigarettes Raise Price On Life

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's newest insruance company, MONY Life is offering a premium discount of about six per cent to potential policyholders over 20 who attest they haven't smoked a cigarette within a year.

Users of tobacco in other forms — such as cigars and pipes — also qualify for the reduced premium. The reduction is available only on ordinary or whole life policies.

"This is not a moral judgment about smoking," said MONY President Jack Birkenshaw. "It is a well-considered business decision."

"Smoking is clearly a health hazard, and an important factor in some types of cancer, cardiovascular ailments and tuberculosis. Our mortality tables bear out the statistics of government and health organizations. They show that, on average, a non-smoker can expect to live somthing like three years longer than a person who smokes."

IROQUOIS HUSTLE NON-INDIANS OUT

MONTREAL (CP) — The militant Warrior Society began evicting non-Indian families from the Caughnawaga Iroquois Reserve Tuesday after their deadline for voluntary eviction had passed.

The warriors issued a warning two weeks ago to all completely non-Indian families telling them to get out by Sept. 18.

Members of the society, surrounded by a large crowd and escorted by reserve police, went from house to house telling non-Indians to leave the reserve.

No shots were fired, and after a brief meeting with society representatives, Koreny was allowed to remain on the reserve for three more days.

Heath's Remarks Trigger Storm

LONDON (Reuter) — Prime Minister Edward Heath has touched off a political storm in Britain and Ireland by his warning Tuesday that Northern Ireland might have to be fully integrated with the rest of Britain.

Heath added later that his government hopes instead for a system that will allow Northern Ireland to manage its own affairs, with integration only a last resort.

Heath's remarks provoked an immediate response from the violent Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army. It said the war in Northern Ireland will be brought right to the doorstep of the English people if such a policy is proceeded with.

The IRA warned it would lay Britain in ruins if integration was attempted.

"If Mr. Heath wishes to have the war right on the doorsteps of the English people then he should proceed as quickly as possible with his policy of integration," the IRA said.

"He can be assured of ruin, devastation and suffering in his own land," the statement said.

It was the second time within a week that the IRA had referred specifically to the possibility of extending its campaign of violence to Britain itself. In a statement on Sept. 13 the IRA warned that British civilians might be killed if British troops were not withdrawn from Northern Ireland.

There was an outcry, too, from Britain's opposition Labor party. It urged Heath to clarify his statement to a television interviewer.

Such remarks, they said, might threaten the bipartisan policy on Northern Ireland built up in recent years by both Conservative and Labor administrations.

Heath made the remark when dealing with Britain's possible reaction if politicians in Ulster do not form an executive to run their new assembly by next March, when their mandate expires.

CURB GAS EXPORTS, B.C. TELLS OTTAWA

British Columbia has asked the federal government to force Westcoast Transmission to cut back its exports of natural gas rather than curtail supplies to domestic customers.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald told the legislature Tuesday he made such a request to Ottawa by telegram.

Macdonald said the National Energy Board has been "remiss" in not making Westcoast establish a contingency reserve supply of natural gas to cover such emergencies as the shortfall in production which it is now experiencing.

The attorney-general also said the NEB should not have approved Westcoast's application to ship an extra 70 million cubic feet of gas per day, which it did less than a year ago, without first ensuring that domestic needs of British Columbians were looked after.

Among the industrial operations which are bound to be affected by the natural gas shortage, Macdonald mentioned Cominco, which is supplied by Inland Natural Gas, one of Westcoast's domestic customers, and Canadian Cellulose, the government-owned forest company supplied by Pacific Northern Gas.

Macdonald's telegram was sent to Robert Stead, chairman of the National Energy Board. Copies went to federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, Prime Minister Trudeau, Conservative leader Robert Stanfield and New Democratic Party leader

The attorney-general told reporters later that if there has to be a production shortfall, the effects should be felt by export customers of Westcoast Transmission.

Exports, Macdonald said, should be made only in the event of a surplus of natural gas after all domestic needs are looked after.

Agnew Shaft From Top?

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The White House apparently was behind the report that Vice-President Spiro Agnew had discussed resigning, according to a source close to Agnew. He said the vice-president will "fight" rather than step down.

The source, who declined to speak for attribution, said there were "indications that it's coming from people over at the White House." He referred to a Washington Post report Tuesday morning quoting an unnamed "senior Republican" as being "9½ per cent certain" Agnew would resign.

"It just isn't true," the Agnew associate said. "He's talked to a number of senators and congressmen about what he ought to do, and the unanimous feeling is to fight, and that's what he intends to do. There's never been any question in my mind of his resolve to fight this thing."

Agnew's press secretary, Marsh Thomson, said Tuesday that the vice-president may have discussed resigning with others while in "a dark mood," but does not intend to do so.

One congressman who has been a strong supporter said he also was suspicious that Agnew was being "sandbagged" by some persons at the White House.

"Let me tell you something," said Rep. William Scherle (Rep.—Iowa). "As far as I'm concerned, the White House is not cleaned out. Haldeman and Erhlichman are gone — and they were no friends of the vice-president — but their ghosts still haunt the place."

Federal prosecutors in Baltimore plan to begin presenting evidence against Agnew to a grand jury either next week or the following week, reliable sources said Tuesday.

The federal grand jury is scheduled to meet Thursday when it may return more indictments involving officials of the Baltimore County government, which Anew headed from 1962 to 1966 before becoming governor of Maryland.

Army Holds Chile Quiet

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Soldiers in battle gear patrolled downtown Santiago overnight Tuesday and today, arresting 53 persons and confiscating 60 weapons in their effort to crush the final opposition to the military coup which took power eight days ago, officials said.

The troops occasionally clashed with armed leftist workers loyal to former president Salvador Allende who died in the bloody coup on Sept. 11.

Earlier, the junta said documents found in the interior ministry indicated a plot to assassinate the leaders of Chile's armed forces. So far, none of the documents have been made public.

A Tragedy in the Sun —On Losing a Friend

The picture of Arthur Fraser, as I'll call him, in this paper earlier in the week, announcing his appointment to the board of directors of a certain major firm, had the embalmed look characteristic of such pictures, but it sent my mind back over the years with an almost frightening clarity.

Finis Farr, in his new biography on John O'Hara, writes of O'Hara's total recall, his fantastic ability to remember exact detail and dialogue from his younger days. Certainly that was O'Hara's greatest gift.

Yet I wonder if it's all that rare, if, in fact, everyone does not have precise, photographic memories of incidents from years past, particularly those incidents freighted with tragedy, grief or unhappiness.

My own memories of an uneventful, marble-playing boyhood are mostly misty in recapturing the happier times, but startlingly clear in recalling events which brought sorrow. I suppose this is a natural thing. Sorrow in a boy's life is a rarity, leaving its mark on raw, new emotions and, thus, remembered.

All of this is preamble to the recollections which came flooding into my mind when I saw Arthur Fraser's middle-aged face staring out at me from the financial page.

I could have been no more than 10 or 11 at the time yet the events of that afternoon are as sharply in focus as if they had happened yesterday. It seems to me now that this was my first realization that the big, pleasant world was full of dark complications and that life was not all as serene or tidy as it seemed.

My memory of that day has a feeling of space and sunlight and, paradoxically, that is the most dramatic backdrop for sorrow. The funeral in the rain never seems as gloomy as the funeral in the sun.

It was early afternoon and Artie and I were truants from school hiding out for the afternoon in a playground then at the far end of a board-walk which skirted Kitsilano Beach. The tingling sensation of danger in playing hookey was heightened by the loneliness of a place usually crowded.

I remember the sun on the asphalt volleyball court in the middle of the playground and the empty swings hanging straight down from the cross-bars, the board-walk, the deserted stretch of the beach and the glinting bay beyond.

Long before she was recognizable to me Artie had identified the walk and figure of his mother far down the board-walk. We ran and crouched in the shelter of a small building and watched Artie's mother and a man stroll by and then on and out of sight down the beach.

I remember turning to Artie, elated that his mother was obviously not searching for us, and the shock in seeing his face, white and pinched and holding a nameless melancholy.

"That man isn't my father," he said in a voice full of shame and close to tears. I hadn't any remote conception of what this meant, but suddenly all the simplicities of life were gone and the bright, empty afternoon seemed strange and frightening.

I remember following Artie when he ran down to the beach and then cutting back up through a small park, searching for the adults. Then seeing them on a log on the beach below us and in each other's arms.

We crept through the tall grass until we were at the edge of a steep bank. We could see Artie's mother and the man. We lay on our stomachs watching them, the man and woman almost directly below us and beyond them the bay dancing with sunlight. The long, yellow grass was cool and the birds were singing, but there was no joy left in the world.

I stayed there only because of Artie. I wanted to run away. I was filled with embarrassment and disillusionment and a kind of furtive indecency, spying on the grown-up people.

Finally Artie squirmed around in the grass and crawled away. I followed him until we were out of sight of the place on the beach, not talking or looking at each other. Then he began to run ahead. I made no effort to go after him. I watched him run on down the long, deserted beach, knowing that we could never be really deep friends again.

It was still time before the school was out, but I walked slowly home anyway and found my mother in the kitchen and told her I had played hookey. I knew I would have to tell her something and that was the easiest to tell.

Moonlight Assessing Hit

Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer today promised legislation that will stop assessors from using their specialized knowledge to make money in real estate dealings.

Lorimer told the B.C. Association of Assessors, which began its 24th annual conference at the Empress Hotel today:

"I am distressed when I hear of assessors dealing in real estate or, in fact, moonlighting by doing private assessment work. They are able to use confidential information or special knowledge they have obtained or their own special gain.

"This practice must stop."

Stating that the numbers of assessors doing this were small, he added, "There is great need for conflict of interest legislation and I believe we can look forward to this in the not too distant future."

Lorimer said his department is considering regional assessment as a replacement for the provincial plus municipal assessment system.

"Equalization between urban and rural land would be more readily attained (by regionalization)," he said. "Assessors could move periodically from region to region and so assist further in the equalization of assessments. This would do away with the necessity of combining the assessor, the building inspector and the dog catcher in small communities."

Lorimer said a thorough study of assessments and taxation is being made and "This next year we hope to have some interesting suggestions tested in municipalities to see what results might appear."

"Techniques should be standardised," he said, "so that one data centre could assist all areas in preparing (tax) rolls. It should not be necessary for every municipality to go into the expensive computer field on their owne."

Lorimer said that owners of residential properties, in the past, had been subsidizing industry and commercial property owners.

The "stop gap change" of removing the 10 per cent limitation of assessment increase per year on industrial and commercial areas in 1972 Lorimer said had helped improve this situation.

"Assessors generally have done a good job in this province," Lorimer said, "Industrial and commercial sites have probably lagged behind increases in assessments for homes."

LORIMER
. . . practice must stop

He said he did not "buy the argument" that homes in a neighborhood sell frequently and so assessors can easily arrive at evaluations while this was not the case with industrial and commercial sites that do not change hands so often.

"It is not too great a chore," he said, "to determine at what price sales would take place. Values of this kind should be much closer in touch with reality."

Gallery Gets Funds

Funds are available and major developments in the Greater Victoria Art Gallery can be expected, new director Richard Simmins said Tuesday night.

He did not elaborate on details to several hundred gallery members, saying this would have to await his return from a visit to Ottawa.

Simmins, regarded as one of the ablest and most creative personalities in gallery administration was a former director of extension services at the National Gallery of Canada and for more than three years director of the Vancouver Art Gallery.

He was introduced by art gallery president Bertram Butler. Simmins paid warm tribute to retiring director Colin Graham.

The occasion also marked the opening of four uniquely different exhibitions.

The works of three Canadian artists — Mary Filer, Ian Garrioch and John Charnetski — will be on view until Oct. 7. Landscape silk screen abstractions by Cathrin Hoskinson will be shown to Sept. 30.

Region Seeks Major Role In Land, Houses

The Capital Regional Board should take over responsibility for land assembly, land banking and housing on southern Vancouver Island.

This is the main recommendation expected to go before the district board Oct. 10 by the region's planning committee.

If the recommendation is approved the matter will then go to the provincial government for action.

Committee chairwoman Ald. Edith Gunning of Saanich said the role of the district would be mainly that of "initiator and facilitator" with capital costs being carried by senior governments.

The committee agreed with the following purposes and activities for the proposed functions of land assembly, land banking and housing:

—Land assembly will be to make available lands now planned for servicing or which can more readily be serviced in order to meet immediate needs for residential housing and related uses in five-year growth periods.

This would include assessing and forecasting urban land requirements and acquisition of a proportion of the supply of land to meet immediate urban residential requirements.

It would also include reducing the cost of residential land by:

—Influencing the land market by marketing a proportion of land requirements for each year;

—Supplying serviced land at less than market value;

—Leasing land.

To ensure housing for all income groups, the committee agreed to a number of steps. These included an inventory of housing needs assessed and forecast, assistance given to non-profit organizations to enter the field by supplying information, locating suitable sites and acting as "facilitator or ombudsman" with senior governments.

After much discussion, the committee agreed land banking should be the acquisition of significently large areas of undeveloped land to direct and control growth on a long-term basis in specified areas by:

—Withholding land from development for 20- to 30-year periods.

—Controlling price and availability of land in designated areas when future needs arise.

These points will go to the regional board as supporting information for the basic recommendation, that the district apply to the provincial government for letters patent to assume the functions of land assembly, housing, land banking, development of rental housing, co-operation with senior governments in schemes for home ownership and new communities.

Cost of these areas is largely met by provincial and federal governments. Loans for land assembly and developing land for housing, under the National Housing Act, cover up to 90 per cent of the cost.

The local budget for administration and rental subsidies would be met by a ¼ mill levy throughout the regional district which would raise $145,000, the committee was told.

Implementation would involve close co-operation with municipalities in which projects are planned.

Leasing of land, one aspect of the entire subject, was described by Mrs. Gunning as a "great idea" but one which wil ltake time to become popular.

She said leasing is common in Britain and Europe but "people here are used to owning land."

The district's executive director, Dennis Young, said this attitude is changing and added there are "short-range benefits but some very significant long-range benefits to leasing land."

It meant that after 50 years or so, with government ownership in what are by then older communities, the ability to redevelop is improved a great deal over a multitude of private ownerships of land.

Fishing Harm Feared If Durrance Lowered

A proposal by Butchart's Gardens to bolster its water supply by taking water from Durrance Lake could harm the lake's trout fishing and recreational use, says a report to Victoria city council's parks committee.

Acting parks administrator Alan Smith says the Butchart's application to the provincial water rights branch asks for removal of two vertical feet of water from Durrance Lake for irrigation purposes.

If permitted, this would reduce the size of the lake by about two acres by exposing shallows portions, Smith states in the report, which will be considered Thursday by the parks committee.

Smith explained today that as the lake is a small one, reducing its size will increase its water temperature to the detriment of fish stocks.

"Trout can't stand the temperature when its gets into the 80s," he said.

The 254-acre lake property in the Highlands district was acquired by the city several years ago from B.C. Hydro, in a land trade when Hydro sought a right of way through Thetis Lake. But at the same time Butchart's apparently bought the dam at the eastern end of the lake for a nominal $1.

Smith says in his report the water rights branch has indicated it will turn down the application if the city has sound reasons for opposing it.

However, parks committee chairman Ald. Malcolm Anderson said today he will propose tabling the matter until further information is available. It may prove possible to meet the Butchart's Gardens needs for water at least partially, he said.

A spokesman for the water rights branch said Butchart's Gardens experiences water shortages in the summer months and would like to draw additional water from Durrance Lake via Tod Creek — for which it already has a licence.

The creek is also fed by Prospect Lake and Heal's Lake, Smith suggests the latter, a small lake southeast of Durrance Lake situated on Crown land, be considered as a source of extra water for the gardens.

Big Car Seller Shifting Down

Victoria's car dealer mayor, Peter Pollen, found himself Tuesday in the somewhat awkward position of having to betray Ford's big line products and promote the advantages of small cars.

It happened at city council's committee-of-the-whole meeting, after aldermen had given the green light to construction of a new downtown carpark between Courtney and Broughton.

Pollen said council should give serious thought to having the $898,000 structure designed specifically for small cars, "... like VWs and Datsuns," so that its capacity would be greatly increased.

The man whose firm sells full-sized LTDs said:

"It tears my heart out to even say it, but 81 per cent of the cars being sold in the Greater Victoria area now — compared with only about 40 per cent five years ago — are small cars."

The decision to approve the new parking facility, which council hedged at two weeks ago, was opposed only by Ald. Tom Christie and Ald. Mike Young.

Young repeated his earlier objections the carpark in that location would benefit only the monthly "parker, and would not attract the shopping short-term parkers.

"The only people-generator I can see in sight of that location is Hayward's funeral parlor," he commented.

To which Pollen replied: "And they're going, not coming."

Ladd was 5'10" and had blond hair.

All may be bought in any government liquor store, except grenadine which is not alcoholic and can be bought in a supermarket.

GIRL PULLED FROM BAY

A woman found Monday lying in three feet of water at Horseshoe Bay on Dallas Road is in fair condition in Victoria General Hospital after spending the past two days in intensive care.

Police have identified the girl as Christine Smith but have not been able to determine her address. She is agout 20.

An ambulance and fire department rescue team rushed to the scene at about 4:40 p.m. Monday when a citizen reported a girl had slipped off a pathway and fallen 50 feet.

Cuban Casas on $14 a Month!

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

A four-room apartment in a new building that rents at $14 a month.

A roast of beef at 55 cents a pound.

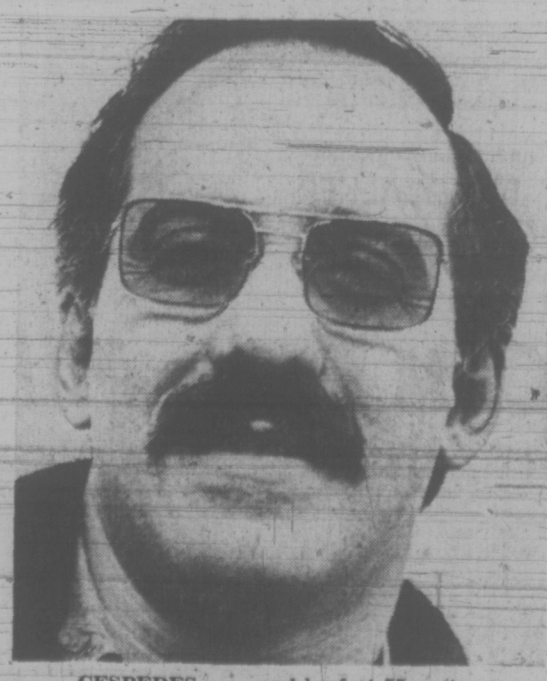
The aroma of his Havana cigar tweeks at the nostrils, a fragrant reminder of his apparent Utopia.

For Capt. Luis Cespedes, 37, is from Cuba and master of the freighter Imias, now at Ogden Point.

This is Cespedes first glimpse of Victoria, which he finds "nice and clean and very quiet."

On her way back to Havana from Japan with a load of general cargo, the Imias put in to Victoria so her crew can do some engine repairs.

There's no language barrier. The captain has taught himself to speak English during his 10 years at sea.



CESPEDES . . . and beef at 55 cents

"I have a book aboard," he explains, "It took me a long time but I pick up a little on this trip, and some more on the next."

This is his first glimpse of western Canada but he's no stranger to other parts of the country.

"I've been to Montreal, St. John's in Newfoundland and Halifax. When we knew we were coming here we were afraid it would be as cold as in those other places — but it isn't."

A print of Fidel Castro looks down on us. The captain tells how Cuba's merchant fleet, which Castro began, is building:

"We are getting ships all the time — new ships and old ships from all over the world."

He tells how Cuba exports lobster, shrimps, frozen tuna, sugar "and of course, tobacco" to Canada, importing Canadian flour, baking powder and other items in return.

He offers a demitasse of Cuban coffee — strong and very sweet.

"Our coffee is why we're called the sweetest people in the world," he quips.

Cespedes hails from Santiago de Cuba, the second largest city in Cuba with a population of one million. He says he turned to seafaring because "freighting costs a lot of money so we must have our own fleet and somebody has to go to sea."

He says his countrywomen are rapidly becoming emancipated.

"The women are getting liberated. They have all the opportunities of men. They can be anything they want."

The captain has four daughters.

Will they be able to follow in their father's footsteps?

Cespedes concedes that, to date, women have not been able to infiltrate the ranks of the seafaring.

Will they be successful in breaking into this male-dominated sphere?

He thinks so:

"They're pushing to be sailors. I think they'll make it."

This visiting "salt" admits:

"That would be nice."

FIRE WAS HANDY

It was a case of the right man being at the right place at almost the right time.

Central Saanich volunteer firemen only had to travel across the street to fight a basement blaze at the home of one of their members, Peter Cellarius.

Cellarius was returning to his home at 7843 East Saanich at about 10:30 p.m. when he saw smoke.

Firemen were on the scene for two-and-one-half hours.

The fire, which was confined largely to the basement area, caused an estimated $10,000 to $15,000 damage.

Cause has not been determined.

Open Heart Record Perfect

The open heart surgery program which began at Royal Jubilee Hospital 10 weeks ago has compiled a perfect record so far, with all 16 patients showing vast improvement.

Jubilee has one of only four open heart units in B.C., the other three being in Vancouver. The special surgical team there undertook its first case July 10 and its 16th Tuesday.

"Every patient has vastly improved," Dr. A. C. Pickles, the hospital's executive director, said Tuesday when asked to summarize results to date.

Twelve of the patients have been men and four women. Nine are residents of Greater Victoria, three are from the Saanich Peninsula and four from up-Island, between the Cowichan Valley and Nanaimo. They have ranged in age from 46 to 64.

The team uses a heart-lung pump to take over the functions of these organs so doctors can operate on the heart at rest.

Ten of the 16 operations have been the so-called bypass procedure, where vein segments from a patient's leg are grafted to a coronary artery to bypass a section which has become clogged.

Not all patients with heart disease are suitable candidates for the operation.

The other six operations have been replacements of diseased heart valves with artificial ones.

The 16 patients have stayed in hospital an average of 11 days following surgery.

The open heart unit at Jubilee was to have conducted two operations a week but a shortage of nurses to provide the post-operative intensive care cut this to about three operations every two weeks.

The program is expected to move to two operations a week before long.

Prisoner Aid Suspected In William Head Escape

Director Gamaliel Milner said Tuesday he was "reasonably sure" someone helped the 41-year-old convict escape and said a former prisoner is the prime suspect.

Genereaux was reported missing during a prisoner count at 6:30 p.m. He had last been seen four hours earlier walking towards the end of William Head spit carrying a fishing rod and radio.

Police at first thought he might have slipped into the water and drowned but discounted that possibility after a search of the waterfront using divers and a helicopter.

Milner said Genereaux probably will return to his home in the Montreal area or try to contact relatives in Prince Albert, Sask.

Milner described the escaper as a quiet, rather nondescript man, 5'8", 140 pounds with a dark complexion.

He had been in jail since 1965 serving an indefinite sentence as a dangerous sexual offender. The original charge was indecent assault.

Despite the nature of the crime, Genereaux is not considered dangerous.

"During his years in jail he has always been a placid, calm individual ... rather docile in fact," Milner said.

But, Milner said, Genereaux' crimes were associated with a pattern of heavy drinking.

"I don't know what he would be like if he ever got drunk," he said.

Motorcyclist Labelled Fair After Spill

A Saanich motorcyclist is in fair condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital after he was thrown off his bike and landed in a field early today.

Saanich police said Walter Eckert, 20, of 1779 Laval, was driving on Cedar Hill Road at 1:20 a.m. when his bike went out of control and hit a ditch.

Eckert was thrown off the bike and landed in a grassy field by the side of the road. The motorcycle veered down the street about 70 feet and crashed into a tree.

Police said there were no witnesses, but the noise of the crash woke a nearby resident who then awakened a Saanich policeman who lived nearby.

The policeman found Eckert unconscious in the field.

Colwood Divers to Blast Old Okanagan Slipway

Divers from the Colwood fleet diving unit of CFB Esquimalt and 3rd Field Squadron of CFB Chilliwack arrived in Vernon today to start preparations to blow up the old slipway at Okanagan Landing.

A. L. Hill, president of the Okanagan Landing and District Community Association, asked for armed forces' help after many attempts to demolish the slipway failed because of its massive strength — the pilings are anchored to rock pits.

Defence department headquarters approved the demolition as a training exercise in support of an Okanagan Landing Local Initiatives Program project.

The divers will burrow tunnels under the pilings, inserting dynamite at each piling.

Because the slipway is under water it is expected that most of the explosions will be cushioned by water.

But, to make sure there are no injuries — the slipway is on a local beach — the RCMP will clear beaches before detonation.

The six naval and three army divers will be quartered at the Vernon Army Cadet Camp during the operations. On-site commander is Capt. D. E. Deane of the Colwood unit.

The first detonations are slated Monday. Once these are made the divers will be able to assess how long the job will take.

Power Out

The eastern section of Esquimalt and the Hillside-Douglas part of the city were without electricity Tuesday afternoon after a 12,000-volt line short-circuited on Skinner Street near Catherine.

A. B.C. Hydro spokesman said power was off from about 1:30 p.m. to 3 p.m. Cause of the short circuit is not known.

Fountain Gift Costly, City Told

Victoria will get a modest, scaled-down version of the fountains in Copenhagen's famous Tivoli pleasure gardens, under a bequest of the late Herbert Anscomb.

City aldermen discussed the legacy briefly at their informal caucus session Tuesday — and learned that the gift could involve the city in substantial expenditure.

City manager Jim Bramley said the fountain itself could cost up to $215,000 (including about $39,000 for contingency expenditure). While that would be covered by the bequest, the city would have to pay for the landscaping and water and electricity connections.

Depending on whether it is moderate or lavish, landscaping could cost anywhere between $10,000 and $70,000, Bramley said, and hooking up electricity and water supplies was estimated at $20,000.

In addition, based on the $10,000 a year it costs the city to maintain the Centennial Square fountain, maintenance would account for at least $15,000 annually.

No decisions were reached in the preliminary discussion, but aldermen were told one site favored for the fountain in Beacon Hill Park is the corner at Circle Road and Heywood, roughly opposite the animal enclosure.

When Ald. Malcolm Anderson noted the bequest is for a single fountain and not a three-ring model as in the Tivoli gardens, Mayor Peter Pollen quipped: "As they say, one ring is better than a doughnut."

Victoria has six months in which to make a firm decision on accepting the gift.

Anscomb, a former Coalition government finance minister and B.C. Conservative party leader, represented Oak Bay in the legislature from 1932 to 1952.

Girl Pushers Jailed

Two girls who financed a trip across Canada by trafficking in LSD were sentenced to three months in jail today.

Pamela Anne Douglas, 17, and Camille D. Rivait, 18, both of London, Ont., pleaded guilty Sept. 10 in Victoria provincial court.

They were charged Sept. 9 after police checked a car in the 1400-block Dallas and found 74 capsules of LSD on Rivait and 32 capsules on Douglas.

Rivait claimed 40 capsules were not hers.

Police said the pair bought 100 capsules of the drug in London for $65 and were selling them as they crossed the country with two other people.

Judge William Ostler said the sentence was a "difficult and painful" one to make, but necessary in view of the "vicious" substance they were selling.

He ordered 18 months probation following the jail term.

Both girls broke into tears as they were led from the courtroom.

Ferry Workers Want New Status

Unlicensed ferry workers have formally asked the provincial government to set up the B.C. Ferry Service as a Crown agency, with full collective bargaining rights.

In a brief to provincial secretary Ernie Hall, made public today, the executive of marine branch Local I asked that its association be treated as a separate, autonomous entity, completely free of the B.C. Government Employees Union.

The question of separate status was a contentious issue in the five-day strike by unlicensed ferry workers last month, and the local wants to make its position formally known to the government before legislation allowing for collective bargaining in the civil service is presented to the Legislature.

That legislation was tabled during the spring session of the Legislature and is scheduled to be re-introduced this fall.

"The unlicensed employees contend that they are working in a marine industry," the brief says, "and cannot be equated with the rest of the civil service either in wages or working condition."

The brief says Local 1 was given no representation before the commission of enquiry set up a year ago to study employer-employee relations in the B.C. public service.

The commission received only one "united" brief from the entire membership of the BCGEU and the ferry workers say their concerns were given little or no consideration in that brief.

GH New Horizons To Meet Friday

The first general meeting of the New Horizons group at Gordon Head will be held in the hall of Gordon Head Church, Tyndall and San Juan, at 2 p.m. Friday, Oct. 12.

Using the facilities of the church and with the help of the Anglican and United Church congregation, a program will be launched for the elderly in the area.

The group has been awarded a $12,000 federal grant, $6,000 of which was received this year, the remainder being due in 1974 if the program proves successful.

President Barrie Goult says that, in addition to a drop-in centre at the hall, initial projects will include discussion groups, public speaking, historical research of the area, a directory of services and special events designed to bring involvement with younger people.

Mrs. Pauline Barker, director of the Silver Threads Service centre in Centennial Square, lives in Gordon Head and has volunteered to assist in setting up the local program.

New Rec Study Set

Directors of Sooke Community Association agreed Tuesday to take a fresh look at recreation.

They instructed an expanded combined data gathering committee to make an "immediate study" and report on monetary resources including the amount to be placed on taxes.

The committee will also look at suitability of present land, costs involved, determine the recreation facility which is most popular and make a preliminary study of types of construction.

Earlier this year, Sooke voters turned down a referendum to build an ice arena.

In a statement, the directors said it is hoped that "knowledgeable and resourceful groups and persons within the community will contribute their information."

FINAL EDITION

90th YEAR, No. 87 — VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1973 — 15 CENTS DAILY, 20 CENTS SATURDAY

P.O. HAS YOUR NUMBER

The post office's new postal code mail system goes into effect in Victoria and other parts of British Columbia next Tuesday.

Every householder, business owner, box owner or persons with a regular mailing address will be sent a written notice telling them what their code will be.

Each code goes letter-number-letter, number-letter-number.

The first letter stands for a broad area (in this case, V for all of British Columbia). The first number represents one of 10 sub-areas. The second letter is for one of the 20 parts into which each sub-area is divided.

So it continues, until the last character — a number comes right down to one part of a mailman's route. It could possibly be just an apartment block that receives 50 or more letters a day.

Each piece of mail arriving in Victoria (or any postal station in B.C.) which bears the postal code with the address will pass through a machine whose operator transcribes the code into a small bar-like pattern.

Almost invisible to the naked eye, the pattern is "read" in ultra-violet light in the compuferized machines which automatically sort the mail all the way until the moment it's popped into a mailman's bag.

In a year or so, however, even more sophisticated equipment is expected to be in operation. Optical character-reading equipment is to be added to the sorting machines.

B.C. Shoppers 'Victimized'

Times News Services

B.C. consumers are being victimized, especially in urban areas, by the major food retailing chains, the chairman of the federal Food Prices Review Board said Tuesday.

"Frankly, I'm angry," Beryl Plumptre told a news conference in Vancouver.

"Angry because some food retailers, and in a few cases even the processor, appear to be intentionally seeking to confuse the consumer through their merchandising practices."

Mrs. Plumptre said a complete report on a cross-Canada survey by 80 food price investigators will be issued next week and said it "will name names."

She said major food retailers had promised the review board they would co-operate in discouraging double-pricing and misleading advertising. But she said preliminary results of a three-month investigation across Canada show they have not kept their promises.

"Double pricing in B.C. is rampant," she said, adding that no longer is it simply double pricing but "multi-pricing." She held up a package of Kellogg's corn flakes which had four prices stamped on it and said although customers were to be charged the lowest price, investigators found otherwise.

"Last week in B.C. one of our researchers went through two different cashiers with double-ticketed items and was charged the higher price in each case," she said. She added the store had assured customers they would pay the lower price if two were marked on a product.

Mrs. Plumptre, also said "aisle-end rip-offs" were found frequently in B.C. as were "specials" which turned out to have higher prices rather than lower prices.

She also attacked "binning" —putting goods in bins marked "special" or "today only". She said often if prices were less than normal, so was the amount of the product.

She held up two jars of Heinz baby spinach, both the same price but one was 4½ ounces while the other was 4¾ ounces. She called the sizing "very misleading."

"Careful shopping can help counteract problems like these," she said, "but the board believes the consumer should not be required perpetually to be on his guard."

She said she had found the situation in British Columbia disappointing. "It may be that the over-all national picture may indicate a better general performance by processors and retail outlets," she said. "In Newfoundland, for example, the chains appear to have been more straight forward in their selling."

She said particularly in B.C.'s urban areas, "the consumer continues to be considered fair game."

Mrs. Plumptre told the news conference the review board "will not hesitate to take up the prime minister on his offer to recommend effective legislative measures."

Displaced Workers Top Issue

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Special consideration must be given to workers dislocated or laid off by new technology, Labor Minister Bill King told the legislature Tuesday.

In one of the most significant parts of a half-hour throne speech address, he appeared to indicate new labor legislation will offer job security in the area of technological change, where he said more concern was manifested "than any others" in labor-management conferences earlier this year.

King carefully avoided revealing details of the legislation, which by parliamentary custom must come first in the form of a bill or bills to the house.

He said great advances in science and technology bring with them special problems affecting employers and workers.

"While it is difficult to fully assess the dimensions of this problem, it cannot be denied that some special consideration must be give to those workers who are dislocated or laid off by new technology," he said.

King said a "substantial portion" of the fall session will be devoted to labor legislation to be introduced "very shortly."

Some people think legislative change alone is the answer to problems, he said, but "this government recognizes that healthy social relationships cannot be legislated. There must be a desire and a motivation to make new laws workable and acceptable."

He referred to the three-man advisory committee appointed earlier this year, which received more than 70 written briefs and convened three conferences of labor and management representatives.

But, he said, "quite frankly I do not take the position new legislation will adequately solve all of these problems.

Obviously it will be necessary to continually scrutinize and monitor the effect of new legislation over a period of time."

Disputes in essential services were also mentioned, and King appeared to be suggesting some new mechanism for dealing with them, possibly through encouragement of voluntary (as opposed to compulsory) arbitration.

"The dilemma is to seek an alternative to the strike when it seriously threatens or imperils the public health and welfare without denying to workers the full rights of collective bargaining.

"The problem must be faced and labor and management must be willing to each

Gun-holding Koreny wins three-day reprieve

IROQUOIS HUSTLE NON-INDIANS OUT

MONTREAL (CP) — The militant Warrior Society began evicting non-Indian families from the Caughnawaga Iroquois Reserve Tuesday after their deadline for voluntary eviction had passed.

The warriors issued a warning two weeks ago to all completely non-Indian families telling them to get out by Sept. 18.

Members of the society, surrounded by a large crowd and escorted by reserve police, went from house to house telling non-Indians to leave the reserve.

When they came to evict James Koreny the former Hungarian freedom fighter appeared at his door brandishing a shotgun.

No shots were fired, and after a brief meeting with society representatives, Koreny was allowed to remain on the reserve for three more days.

DIVA DUMPS DEVOTEES

Times News Services

LONDON — Thirty thousand people wrote in for the 3,000 available tickets to hear opera singer Maria Callas Saturday — her first performance in eight years.

Scalpers have had a field day, selling tickets for up to $275 each.

But today, Miss Callas, 49, cancelled her appearance.

A telegram from the prima donna said her eye doctor has ordered her to rest for at least six weeks.

Alberta Drug Roundup

CALGARY (CP) — RCMP and police forces in Alberta began a province-wide round-up of suspected narcotics traffickers at 3 p.m. Tuesday, it was announced today.

Police officials told a press conference that 117 warrants have been issued for the arrests of suspects in Edmonton, Calgary, Red Deer, Lethbridge, Banff, Hinton, Jasper, Fort Macleod, Fort McMurray, Canmore and Grande Prairie.

Insp. Jack Roy of the RCMP Calgary subdivision said raids were conducted simultaneously throughout Alberta as six undercover agents blew their covers.

The agents — three RCMP, two Edmonton city police and one Calgary city police officer — worked for a year to make more than 150 buys across the province.

The suspects being sought included 45 in Edmonton and 35 in Calgary.

'Muscle' In Ottawa

CALGARY (CP) — If the battle between the federal and Alberta governments over the 40-cent-a-barrel oil export tax came to a head, Ottawa would have the constitutional muscle to win, federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday.

Macdonald was commenting on the hard stand taken against the recently-announced tax by Premier Peter Lougheed in a television broadcast Tuesday night.

Lougheed lashed out at Ottawa's planned export tax on oil and then pleaded with the federal government to pave the way for an $800 million development in Alberta's Athabasca oil sands.

The premier said the province would fight Ottawa's discriminatory tax move.

He then announced Syncrude Canada Ltd. will proceed with a huge oil sands extraction plant provided the federal government co-operates by not imposing price regulations on synthetic crude oil.

However, Macdonald said the federal government has not yet decided to exempt synthetic crude from the export tax or price regulation. His comments were made before Lougheed's televised speech.

Describing the plan to levy the export tax as a federal "power play to control Alberta's oil and gas resources," Lougheed said it was "clearly detrimental" to Alberta and would result in the province becoming another "have-not" area of Canada.

"We've been able to avoid a sales tax in this province — the only province without a sales tax — because of the revenues from oil and gas."

The proposed federal tax means money will be diverted from Alberta and siphoned off to be spent essentially in other parts of Canada, he said.

Construction of the immense plant, using 3,000 workers near Fort McMurray in northeastern Alberta 225 miles from Edmondon, depends on federal co-operation because the four-company consortium that owns Syncrude insists that synthetic crude be exempt from price regulation, the premier said.

At the same time the province will be seeking Ottawa's approval of a new approach to calculating royalties. The province is to take 50 per cent of Syncrude's profits compared with present conven-

Cigarettes Raise Price On Life

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's newest insurance company, MONY Life is offering a premium discount of about six per cent to potential policyholders over 20 who attest they haven't smoked a cigarette within a year.

Users of tobacco in other forms — such as cigars and pipes — also qualify for the reduced premium. The reduction is available only on ordinary or whole life policies.

"This is not a moral judgment about smoking," said MONY President Jack Birkenshaw. "It is a well-considered business decision."

"Smoking is clearly a health hazard, and an important factor in some types of cancer, cardiovascular ailments and tuberculosis. Our mortality tables bear out the statistics of government and health organizations. They show that, on average, a non-smoker can expect to live somthing like three years longer than a person who smokes."

Heath's Remarks Trigger Storm

LONDON (Reuter) — Prime Minister Edward Heath has touched off a political storm in Britain and Ireland by his warning Tuesday that Northern Ireland might have to be fully integrated with the rest of Britain.

Heath added later that his government hopes instead for a system that will allow Northern Ireland to manage its own affairs, with integration only a last resort.

Heath's remarks provoked an immediate response from the violent Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army. It said the war in Northern Ireland will be brought right to the doorstep of the English people if such a policy is proceeded with.

The IRA warned it would lay Britain in ruins if integration was attempted.

"If Mr. Heath wishes to have the war right on the doorsteps of the English people then he should proceed as quickly as possible with his policy of integration," the IRA said.

"He can be assured of ruin, devastation and suffering in his own land," the statement said.

It was the second time within a week that the IRA had referred specifically to the possibility of extending its campaign of violence to Britain itself. In a statement on Sept. 13 the IRA warned that British civilians might be killed if British troops were not withdrawn from Northern Ireland.

There was an outcry, too, from Britain's opposition Labor party. It urged Heath to clarify his statement to a television interviewer.

Such remarks, they said, might threaten the bipartisan policy on Northern Ireland built up in recent years by both Conservative and Labor administrations.

Heath made the remark when dealing with Britain's possible reaction if politicians in Ulster do not form an executive to run their new assembly by next March, when their mandate expires.

Five Survive

DENVER (AP) — One of the Stanek sextuplets died Tuesday night from a lung disease common in premature babies. Three of the other infants show signs of the same ailment, a doctor said.

CURB GAS EXPORTS, B.C. TELLS OTTAWA

British Columbia has asked the federal government to force Westcoast Transmission to cut back its exports of natural gas rather than curtail supplies to domestic customers.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald told the legislature Tuesday he made such a request to Ottawa by telegram.

In Ottawa today the government asked the National Energy Board to make an immediate assessment of possible natural gas shortages.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald told reporters, after the matter was raised in the Commons, that a decision will be made on action to prevent shortage when all factors in the situation become clear.

B.C.'s Alex Macdonald said the National Energy Board has been "remiss" in not making Westcoast establish a contingency reserve supply of natural gas to cover such emergencies as the shortfall in pro cthcwnihioud r in production which it is now experiencing.

The attorney-general also said the NEB should not have approved Westcoast's application to ship an extra 70 million cubic feet of gas per day, which it did less than a year ago, without first ensuring that domestic needs of British Columbians were looked after.

Among the industrial operations which are bound to be affected by the natural gas shortage, Macdonald mentioned Cominco, which is supplied by Inland Natural Gas, one of Westcoast's domestic customers, and Canadian Cellulose, the government-owned forest company supplied by Pacific Northern Gas.

Agnew Shaft From Top?

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The White House apparently was behind the report that Vice-President Spiro Agnew had discussed resigning, according to a source close to Agnew. He said the vice-president will "fight" rather than step down.

The source, who declined to speak for attribution, said there were "indications that it's coming from people over at the White House." He referred to a Washington Post report Tuesday morning quoting an unnamed "senior Republican" as being "99½ per cent certain" Agnew would resign.

"It just isn't true," the Agnew associate said. "He's talked to a number of senators and congressmen about what he ought to do, and the unanimous feeling is to fight, and that's what he intends to do. There's never been any question in my mind of his resolve to fight this thing."

Agnew's press secretary, Marsh Thomson, said Tuesday that the vice-president may have discussed resigning with others while in "a dark mood," but does not intend to do so.

One congressman who has been a strong supporter said he also was suspicious that Agnew was being "sandbagged" by some persons at the White House.

"Let me tell you something," said Rep. William Scherle (Rep.—Iowa). "As far as I'm concerned, the White House is not cleaned out. Haldeman and Erhlichman are gone — and they were no friends of the vice-president — but their ghosts still haunt the place."

Federal prosecutors in Baltimore plan to begin presenting evidence against Agnew to a grand jury either next week or the following week, reliable sources said Tuesday.

The federal grand jury is scheduled to meet Thursday when it may return more indictments involving officials of the Baltimore County government, which Anew headed from 1962 to 1966 before becoming governor of Maryland.

Army Holds Chile Quiet

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Soldiers in battle gear patrolled downtown Santiago overnight Tuesday and today, arresting 53 persons and confiscating 60 weapons in their effort to crush the final opposition to the military coup which took power eight days ago, officials said.

The troops occasionally clashed with armed leftist workers loyal to former president Salvador Allende who died in the bloody coup on Sept. 11.

Earlier, the junta said documents found in the interior ministry indicated a plot to assassinate the leaders of Chile's armed forces. So far, none of the documents have been made public.
